WE advise you to read "Volney's Ruins of Empires."

Volney was born in France in 1757. He devoted himself to the study of truth. A small inheritance was devoted to travel, to historical investigation. He was a profound student, an earnest, simple man, a true philosopher. His arguments were sound. The proof of this may be found in the conduct of that distinguished gentleman, Napoleon Bonaparte. Napoleon asked Volney for his frank opinion and got it so truthfully that he kicked the distinguished writer in the stomach, being able to make no other adequate reply. Volney's splendid work, the foundation of much that now passes for original thought, is based upon an earnest desire to fathom the causes of men's success and failure. He says of himself in his famous letter to Dr. Priestley:

"The part which belongs to me is that of a traveler, resting upon the ruins and meditating on the causes of misfortunes of the human race."

THE essence of Volney's l[illegible] may be found in two lines at the end of his pamphlet, on "The Law of Nature."

"Preserve thyself, instruct thyself, moderate thyself, live for thy fellow-citizens, that they may live for thee."

Could there be more admirable combination of Christianity and sound, benevolent philosophy? It combines the importance of education with the moral beauty of the golden rule.

"Education, moderation, combined with unselfish interests in other men, will indeed accomplish the true work of civilization. For causes of evil, there are two; Ignorance and Cupidity. These are the twin sources of all the torments of man."

THE invocation with which he opens his splendid study of men's minds begins thus:

"Hail, solitary ruins, holy sepulchres and silent walls. You I invoke, to you I address my power. While your aspect averts with secret terror the vulgar regard, it excites in my heart the charm of delicious sentiments, sublime contemplatfons. What useful lessons, what affecting and profound reflections you suggest to him who knows how to consult you."

"When the whole earth, in chains and silence, bowed the neck before its tyrants, you had already proclaimed the truths which they abhor; and confounding the dust of the king with that of the meanest slave, did announce to man the sacred dogma of equality. Within your pale, in solitary adoration of liberty, I saw her genius arise from the mansion of the dead; not such as she is painted by the impassioned multitude, armed with fire and sword, but under the august aspect of justice, poising in her hand the sacred balance wherein are weighed the actions of men at the gates of eternity."

PITTSBURGH DETECTIVE NAMES TWO GREEKS AS ALLEGED ACCESSORIES

Probe Into Assassination Reveals Weaknesses That May "Nip in Bud" Several Political Careers.

NET IS CLOSING IN ON KILLERS

Trail Leads Investigators to Steubenville as Postal Inspectors Examine Letters Sent to Suspects.

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—Evidence and sworn testimony that should, he said, result in accessory charges against George Psialias and Mike Contos, prominent Greek characters, in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton, O., publisher, were forwarded by Detective Peter Connors here today to Prosecutor McClintock of Stark county, O.

Turns Over Evidence.

The evidence and sworn testimony Connors turned over to the Ohio authorities stated that on June 10, John Ritz, a Somerset county coal miner, was standing before the Hanna employment agency in Second avenue when a large auto bearing an Ohio license drove up and stopped.

Two men were in the car and Ritz has positively identified Psialias as the driver and Mike Contos as the man in the back seat, Connors declared.

Connors said Ritz will swear on the stand that Contos, said to be well known in Youngstown and Canton, offered Ritz and another man $1,500 to go to Canton and "do a job."

"Contos wouldn't tell me what the job would be but said that if I decided to go in on it to go to the Grand hotel in Canton and ask to be directed to 'Jumbo' Crowley who would give me further instructions," Ritz said, according to Connors.

Sleuth Ridicules "Kidnaping" Fear.

Statements attributed to Attorneys for Psialias that private officers were planning to "frame" him and "kidnap" him to Canton were ridiculed by Connors.

"That's all a smoke screen to keep George from getting into my hands," Connors declared. "He's scored, and knows he can't stand up under a real questioning.

"George knows I can produce a witness who will testify under oath that George was driving the car on June 10 when Mike Contos, in the rear seat of the car, offered two men $1,500 to go to Canton and report to 'Jumbo' Crowley for further instructions on a 'job.'"

Ritz became suspicious because of the large remuneration offered for what Contos was said to have described as an "easy job' and never reported tc Crowley, Connors declared.

Connors said he had investigated Rit's reputation and was told by everyone that Ritz was truthful and reliable.

"I've done all I can on the case here," Connors said. "Psialias is in jail where the Canton officials can get him anytime they want to.

"Contos was last seen in Youngstown. It's up to the others to get him. I'm wiring Prosecutor McClintock to find out if he intends doing

COLUMBUS, O., July 29.—While waiting in the offices of the state industrial commission, which was to hear his claim that he had suffered an injury while working for the city of Columbus, resulting in a permanent heart ailment, Howard Viney, colored, 33, dropped dead today. Death was pronounced due to heart disease.

Viney filed a clai mwith the commission which was denied July 15. A hearing was set for today. He collapsed as the commission gathered to hear his petition.

HEALTH BOARD URGES WILLITE ON TWO ALLEYS

Cite Unsanitary Conditions in Diamond and Crook Ways.

COMPLAINT HEARD

Fifty-four Births and 24 Deaths in One Month.

Alleged unsanitary conditions existing in Diamond alley between Market and Washington streets and in Crook alley between Fifth and Sixth streets were condemned by the board of health at a meeting in the clinic rooms, Diamond, last night.

T. V. Milligan, property owner, complained about the condition of the two alleys. He said that a movement had been launched by the property holders to have the two alleys resurfaced with Willite, the city to pay engineering and advertising costs and the remainder of the expense to be borne by the abutting property.

The board decided to urge council to take steps to resurface the alleys.

Complaint against alleged poisonous fumes arising from the F. Q. Mason Chemical plant on lower Broadway filed by residents of the neighborhood with the health board recently, were dismissed last night.

Mason and several others were questioned by the board members said that nothing was manufactured or mixed at the plant serving to kill vegetation as had been charged.

Monthly report of Mrs. Alice Davidson, registrar of vital statistics, showed 54 births—34 males and 20 females—and 24 deaths—seven males and 17 females. In the clinic, seven new cases were admitted, while 153 treatments were given. The only contagious disease was one case of scarlet fever, according to Health Commissioner Fraser's report.

THREE AUTOS STOLEN HERE

Three machines, one of which was recovered, were stolen from their parking places on the down town streets, last night, according to reports to police.

A Chevrolet readster, belonging to Glenn Gaston, Clarkson, taken from a parking place on Fourth and Washington streets, was found near the Hobbs farm on the Washington school house road, four miles back of Chester, this morning. It had been stripped of tires, battery, tools, lights and other equipment.

Emmett Densmore's Scripps-Booth touring car was stolen on West Sixth street near the A. & P. tea store.

YOUTH ADMITS GAS STATION ROBBERY WHEN ARRESTED HERE

Carson Haas Held for Jay Crawford Place Looting.

PLEADS GUILTY

Caught in Stolen Auto by Patrolman Smith.

Pleading guilty to a charge of breaking and entering in connection with the robbery of the Jay Crawford's Lincoln highway filling station, one mile south of West Point, last Sunday night, Carson Haas, 28, Belmont street, Youngstown, was held for action by the Columbiana county grand jury in $2,000 bond by Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today.

Haas was arrested by Patrolman Chester Smith, while sleeping in an automobile parked near the upper end of the old Columbian park race track, East End, at 7:30 o'clock this morning. The car, property of the Risher Car Rental Systems, of Warren, had been missing since the morning of July 13.

Haas, who admitted having served two years in the reformatory for a box car robbery at Columbiana four years ago, told the police that he came to East Liverpool during the latter part of last week. Last Sunday night, while intoxicated, he said, he removed the bars from one of the windows of the Crawford gas station, smashed the window and made his escape with two tires, about a dozen tubes and other motor accessories, chewing gum, candy, tobacco and cigarettes.

Find Stolen Property.

The tires, five tubes, two Ford timers, three boxes of chocolates, one box of mixed candy, about two dozen packages of chewing gum, a sack of other candy, a box of cigars and part of a carton of cigarettes were found in the car when Haas was arrested.

The prisoner said that he had been sleeping in his car since coming to East Liverpool. When he arrived, according to his story, he had about $10 in cash earned on a road construction job out of Youngstown.

Patrolman Smith was on his way home when he noticed the automobile parked in the field. Haas offered no resistance when the officer placed him under arrest.

Sheriff Questions Suspect.

Eight Bandits Seize Pouch of Mail Without Using Guns

Payroll and Other Funds Enroute to Boston Bank Taken in Cleverly Staged Train Hold-up.

SALISBURY, Mass., July 29.—A "wild west" $65,000 mail train robbery was staged today by eight armed bandits but a motor car was used in stead of fast horses. Not a shot was fired.

Between Newberryport and Amesbury six armed men in a speedy automobile caught up with a Boston and Maine railroad train, containing a baggage car with the registered mail.

Meanwhile, two armed passengers walked into the baggage room from the smoking compartment of the passenger train, held up Baggagemaster Jordan, snatched up the pouch containing the $65,000 registered mail, and, at the cross road, tossed it in the direction of the waiting automobile.

Pocketing their pistols, the robbers swung off the train, and, making their way to the motor car, escaped.

The mail was from a Boston bank to the Powow River National bank at Amesbury and part of it was the payroll of the Biddle and Smart automobile company of Amesbury.

FIRE DAMAGES RAIL TRESTLE

Wooden railroad trestle at the T. A. McNicol pottery, on the River road, was slightly damaged by fire at 3 o'clock this morning.

The blaze, which started in the ties, was extinguished with chemicals. Fire trucks from the Central and East End stations answered the alarm.

Sparks from a passing locomotive are believed to have been responsible for the blaze.

Two Motorists Will Face Charges of Reckless Driving

F. W. Laughlin, Seventh street, was arrested at the W. T. Anderson coal yards, where he is employed, by Special Officer Leslie Curran, yesterday, upon a charge of fast and reckless driving as an aftermath of an automobile collision on Pennsylvania avenue last week in which a car driven by William H. Finley, Bradshaw avenue, is alleged to have been damaged. The affidavit was signed by Finley.

McLaughlin will be given a hearing before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Abraham Polinsky, Market house fish dealer, was arrested today, charged with reckless driving filed by Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore. He was to appear before Judge Hanley for trial at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Judge J. C. Hanley Will Rule on Auto Accident Saturday

Decision in the reckless driving case against Frank Crawford, Fredericktown potter, arrested as a result of an accident at Fredericktown 10 days ago, in which 5-year-old Virginia Lee Shaw was injured, will be announced by Municipal Judge Hanley at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Evidence in the case was submitted last Saturday, but the court withheld his decision until he could visit the scene of the accident. Attorneys in the case—S. W. Crawford, for the defense, and Solicitor Hoover and Attorney Ben L. Bennett, for the prosecution—will deliver their closing arguments Saturday morning.

WIFE OF SLAIN PASTOR JAILED FOR BAFFLING DOUBLE MURDER

Mrs. Frances Hall Arrested at New Jersey Home.

AWAITS GRILLING

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 29.—Protesting her innocence and maintaining that "some day I will make those who are responsible for this suffer as I am suffering," Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, held on charges of murdering her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and a chorister, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, today awaited the result of her attorneys' efforts to obtain her release on bail or on a writ of habeas corpus.

The accused woman spent practically the entire night in conference with Attorney Russell E. Watson, New Brunswick, a woman companion and another man presumed to be a lawyer.

No Signs of Emotion.

At 7:30 this morning Mrs. Hall was taken by Mrs. James Major, jail matron, to the room she will occupy on the second floor of the jail. Mrs. Hall remained there but a short time, returning to the conference room where she continued discussion of her case.

E. M. McCarter, her chief attorney, said that although bail was unusual in such a case, he still hoped it might be allowed.

Prosecutor Bergen said:

"After going over the evidence, I have concluded that it is of sufficient importance to be taken before the grand jury."

It was reported this afternoon that two men, both related to Mrs. Hall, probably would be taken into custody. Both men figured prominently in the investigation four years ago.

Bergen refused to confirm a report that Willie Stevens, brother of Mrs. Hall, would be brought in for questioning.

McCarter endeavored in vain to learn something of the new evidence from Bergen.

Contrary to some reports, the accused woman retained her self-possession to the last degree. Far from being in a state of collapse, Mrs. Hall evinced no visible signs of emotion but with the remarkable stoicism prepared herself for the ordeal or cross-examination.

Woman Sleeps in Chair.

It was reported that Mrs. Hall did not go to bed during the night. Her only rest being short naps in a chair.

The woman spent two hours at state police headquarters before she was taken to the jail. She was arraigned before Justice of the Peace William R. Sutphen, Somerville, but did not plead.

As Mrs. Hall reached the jail entrance, flash lights boomed and the woman was admonished by Attorney Watson to keep her head down.

Later in the day, when Mrs. Hall had ended the discussion for the time being, breakfast was served to her in the conference room.

One of the investigators in the famous case said that the names of the new witnesses would not be made public in order to preclude any possible recurrence of the charges which arose during the previous investigation that some of the most valuable witnesses had been approached.

Policy of Silence.

Despite the dramatic denouncement of the recent investigation into the Hall-Mills murders, residents of this town here inclined to accept the arrest of Mrs. Hall in a matter-of-fact manner. There was no outward sign of excitement.

The policy of silence adopted by all Somerville officials had its effect upon newspapermen in their quest of news. Keepers at the jail refused to answer the doorbell.

Robert H. McCarter, former attorney-general of New Jersey, arrived

Meanwhile, two armed passengers walked into the baggage room from the smoking compartment of the passenger train, held up Baggagemaster Jordan, snatched up the pouch containing the $65,000 registered mail, and, at the cross road, tossed it in the direction of the waiting automobile.

Pocketing their pistols, the robbers swung off the train, and, making their way to the motor car, escaped.

The mail was from a Boston bank to the Powow River National bank at Amesbury and part of it was the payroll of the Biddle and Smart automobile company of Amesbury.

FIRE DAMAGES RAIL TRESTLE

Wooden railroad trestle at the T. A. McNicol pottery, on the River road, was slightly damaged by fire at 3 o'clock this morning.

The blaze, which started in the ties, was extinguished with chemicals. Fire trucks from the Central and East End stations answered the alarm.

Sparks from a passing locomotive are believed to have been responsible for the blaze.

Two Motorists Will Face Charges of Reckless Driving

F. W. Laughlin, Seventh street, was arrested at the W. T. Anderson coal yards, where he is employed, by Special Officer Leslie Curran, yesterday, upon a charge of fast and reckless driving as an aftermath of an automobile collision on Pennsylvania avenue last week in which a car driven by William H. Finley, Bradshaw avenue, is alleged to have been damaged. The affidavit was signed by Finley.

McLaughlin will be given a hearing before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Abraham Polinsky, Market house fish dealer, was arrested today, charged with reckless driving filed by Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore. He was to appear before Judge Hanley for trial at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Judge J. C. Hanley Will Rule on Auto Accident Saturday

Decision in the reckless driving case against Frank Crawford, Fredericktown potter, arrested as a result of an accident at Fredericktown 10 days ago, in which 5-year-old Virginia Lee Shaw was injured, will be announced by Municipal Judge Hanley at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Evidence in the case was submitted last Saturday, but the court withheld his decision until he could visit the scene of the accident. Attorneys in the case—S. W. Crawford, for the defense, and Solicitor Hoover and Attorney Ben L. Bennett, for the prosecution—will deliver their closing arguments Saturday morning.

BY ORDER WORTHY MATRON

WIFE OF SLAIN PASTOR JAILED FOR BAFFLING DOUBLE MURDER

Mrs. Frances Hall Arrested at New Jersey Home.

AWAITS GRILLING

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 29.—Protesting her innocence and maintaining that "some day I will make those who are responsible for this suffer as I am suffering," Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, held on charges of murdering her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and a chorister, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, today awaited the result of her attorneys' efforts to obtain her release on bail or on a writ of habeas corpus.

The accused woman spent practically the entire night in conference with Attorney Russell E. Watson, New Brunswick, a woman companion and another man presumed to be a lawyer.

No Signs of Emotion.

At 7:30 this morning Mrs. Hall was taken by Mrs. James Major, jail matron, to the room she will occupy on the second floor of the jail. Mrs. Hall remained there but a short time, returning to the conference room where she continued discussion of her case.

E. M. McCarter, her chief attorney, said that although bail was unusual in such a case, he still hoped it might be allowed.

Prosecutor Bergen said:

"After going over the evidence, I have concluded that it is of sufficient importance to be taken before the grand jury."

It was reported this afternoon that two men, both related to Mrs. Hall, probably would be taken into custody. Both men figured prominently in the investigation four years ago.

Bergen refused to confirm a report that Willie Stevens, brother of Mrs. Hall, would be brought in for questioning.

McCarter endeavored in vain to learn something of the new evidence from Bergen.

Contrary to some reports, the accused woman retained her self-possession to the last degree. Far from being in a state of collapse, Mrs. Hall evinced no visible signs of emotion but with the remarkable stoicism prepared herself for the ordeal or cross-examination.

Woman Sleeps in Chair.

It was reported that Mrs. Hall did not go to bed during the night. Her only rest being short naps in a chair.

The woman spent two hours at state police headquarters before she was taken to the jail. She was arraigned before Justice of the Peace William R. Sutphen, Somerville, but did not plead.

As Mrs. Hall reached the jail entrance, flash lights boomed and the woman was admonished by Attorney Watson to keep her head down.

Later in the day, when Mrs. Hall had ended the discussion for the time being, breakfast was served to her in the conference room.

One of the investigators in the famous case said that the names of the new witnesses would not be made public in order to preclude any possible recurrence of the charges which arose during the previous investigation that some of the most valuable witnesses had been approached.

Policy of Silence.

Despite the dramatic denouncement of the recent investigation into the Hall-Mills murders, residents of this town here inclined to accept the arrest of Mrs. Hall in a matter-of-fact manner. There was no outward sign of excitement.

The policy of silence adopted by all Somerville officials had its effect upon newspapermen in their quest of news. Keepers at the jail refused to answer the doorbell.

PENNSY TEAMS RESUME SERIES

Clerks, Foremen, Clash in Second Game Tomorrow.

The Clerks and the Foremen of the Pennsylvania railroad shops here will clash tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at Central park in the second game of their three-game series for the shops championship.

In the initial encounter of the series the Clerks trimmed the Foremen to the tune of 8 to 7. The Foremen are determined to avenge their defeat and tie the series, while the Clerks are confident they will repeat their victory and thereby clinch the championship.

The friendly rivalry existing between the two factions presages a good contest and judging from the interest shown at the shops a big crowd of fans, partisans of both teams, is certain to turn out.

The batteries will probably be as follows:

RISLER TELLS STORY OF MURDER

Frank Risler, Toronto tinsmith, on trial for his life in common pleas court in Steubenville for shooting to death Dry Agent John McCoy, at Risler's home in Toronto April 28, when a party of prohibition agents raided the home, today told his own story from the witness stand.

"I am 54 years old," Risler stated after he was sworn in, "and have never been arrested before. On April 28 I came home from Steubenville where I had drawn my pay. A boy came running up to me as I neared the house and told me that my wife wanted me at once as a strange man was in the house. I hurried in.

"When I entered the house I was confronted by a stranger who wore a heavy beard. 'What are you doing here?' I asked. 'None of your d— business,' the man replied.

"I was afraid he might try to rob me so I went upstairs and hid my envelope. The man followed me. I managed to take a revolver unnoticed from a box and slip it into my pocket. I then went downstairs into the kitchen and when the man came in I asked him again what he was doing there. 'None of your d— business,' he answered again. 'I'll make it my business,' I told him. The man drew a gun. I went after mine."

The state succeeded in controverting one statement Risler made on the stand today. He testified that prior to the shooting he had worked four days and four nights consecutively at a Toronto tin mill.

The prosecuting attorney produced records from the mill showing that Risler worked only 10 hours on April 26 and 10 hours on April 27 and was not credited for any overtime.

Mrs. Risler was to be called to the stand this afternoon. She was an eyewitness of the shooting.

It was believed today that the case would go to the jury about tomorrow night.

CHILD CRUSHED BY AUTO WHEEL

Funeral services probably will be held tomorrow for Betty Thomas, aged 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas, of near Empire, who was crushed to death Tuesday night under the wheel of the automobile in which her parents were riding.

The unusual accident occurred a short distance abcve Stratton when the child fell out of the auto. She had been riding with her parents enroute to Mr. Thomas' store at Stratton, the three sitting in the front seat.

The door of the car suddenly flew open and the child fell out. Striking her head against the concrete curb she was knocked back under the auto and the rear wheel passed over her body.

The parents rushed the girl to the office of Dr. H. A. Talbot at Toronto but the child died enroute.

POTTERS AID SALEM OUTFIT

Five East Liverpool Men on Elks' Nine Roster.

SALEM, July 29.—Two games are on the Salem Elks' schedule for the week-end. The team plays Chester, W. Va., at Chester, Saturday as a return engagement, and on Sunday entertains the Sheibon Cleaners of Youngstown at Kelley's park.

On Saturday, Aug. 7, the Goodyears, of Akron, victors over the Elks last Saturday at Akron, will play here.

Sunday's crowd at Kelley's was the largest of the season, and it was the first game this year in which the Elks broke even, Manager Carroll Bumbaugh said.

A large number of Chester fans swelled the total, but there were also many from Salem. If fans continue to turn out like that, Bumbaugh said, there will be no doubt about the Elks continuing Sunday games at the park.

Salem's club is now composed of a group of county players from all sections, and therefore draws from other towns on Sunday, since East Liverpool, Chester, and several other sport centers have no local Sunday games.

Shorty Borton, Harry Fisher, the Saunders trio, Captain Harry Vincent, now make up the Salem contingent. East Liverpool is represented by Kent McConnell, Eddie Bailey, Finley, Pollock and Deshler. Dutch Johnson, of East Palestine, always has been a member of the team.

Pollock is now at the first sack, replacing Bob Lipe who left the team. McConnell is behind the bat.

Firearms Restriction

The national crime commission has turned its attention to the relation of the sale of small arms to crime. It has long been recognized by thoughtful citizens that this relation is very close. A large section of the public will give immediate approval to the following suggestions of the crime commission:

1. The imposition of a high tax on pistols.
2. A system for registering their sale.
3. The restriction of sale to police, army and navy officers.

The New York city commissioner of police favors those three proposals and adds a fourth—that only the police should be allowed to sell pistols.

It seems absolutely ridiculous that a nation suffering from such a "crime wave" as this country has known for several years, should permit the indiscriminate manufacture and sale of firearms, and that persons in states or communities restricting such sale can easily obtain the weapons they desire through mail order houses in other states.

If we are serious about wanting to check crime, we will be serious about banning guns and pistols and revolvers for illegitimate purposes.

Victory For Debate

When Herriot overthrew the Briand government it was a victory, not for the radical Socialist group which Herriot is supposed to represent, but rather for interminable debate.

Herriot and his followers have been loud in their demands for the preservation of republican principles, insistent in their protests against the adoption of any financial policy with which all the people may not be familiar and on which the nation has not had chance to pass. They offer no constructive policy of their own; they do not know what they want, but they will not be denied the chance to say what they don't want, once they have had a chance to look it over.

Under the circumstances, neither the French people nor those who view their situation sympathetically have reason for too great optimism. It is perfectly true that Poincare and his associates, Millerand, Maginot and the survivors of the old Clemenceau group, seem to have almost all the sound financial brains in France, but they have not the votes, and however excellent may be the proposals which they bring forward, their financial program must still run the gauntlet of the Left with its sentimental attachment for the theory of a capital tax, its fondness for debate, and its comparative indifference to considerations other than those which concern immediate political strategy.

Meanwhile the franc slips, the Parisian populace indulges its flair for rioting and the world wonders.

France is fortunate indeed in that none of the royalist pretenders cares to tackle the financial problems which confront the republic. The government has not been more unstable since the Commune.

London Heat

London has been sweltering lately in a hot wave. Or rather, in what our English friends mistake for a hot wave. The natives droop and melt in a temperature of 79 or 80, while the throngs of American visitors go about as usual, enjoying the weather.

There's something in the state of mind, no doubt. Those Americans are on vacation and the English are working. But there are other reasons.

The English are unaccustomed to heat spells such as Americans take as a matter of course. The British Isles are not only warm in winter, compared with most of the United States, but cool in summer.

Possibly clothing has still more to do with it. Londoners mostly wear heavy clothing through the summer, while Americans dress lightly. Almost any kind of weather is tolerable if one dresses for it. Still, our own cities are full of natives who never seem to have discovered that fact.

Grace For Digestion

There is more than religion in "grace before meals," says Dr. Gilbert Fitzpatrick, president of the American Institute of Homeopathy. It is an excellent aid to digestion. While rendering due thanks to the Creator for His bounty, it composes the mind and thereby helps the body take care of its digestive job.

Incidentally he condemns carrying business problems to the lunch table, as many Americans now do. They retard digestion, he says, and waste time instead of saving it. Better Heaven's blessing on food than trade talk with it.

True religion should have a similar effect on all proper human activities, smoothing out life and releasing its wholesome energies.

Detroit proposes to erect a building 873 feet high, beating everything else on earth. Better remember what happened to the old Mesopotamians when they tried that on the plains of Shinar.

A magazine writer says men fall in love with women who remind them of their mothers. A lot of them must marry without falling in love.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 9.—There is a stretch along Twelfth avenue where novices at motoring are given freedom of the street and the unwritten law is "every pedestrian for himself." It is where Manhattan learns to drive automobiles and is known as "The Farm."

Some learn to drive a motor car in an hour and some never learn. One young lady was a patient scholar for six months before she finally gave up in despair. She could start and guide the machine successfully but never able to stop it. Stopping, it seems, is quite necessary.

Once she interrupted trade in a milk and egg store by crashing into the place via the display window. Huge sandpiles on one side of "The Farm" protect those who may accidently start for the Hudson river shouting a prankish: "Whoops, my dear!"

Oddly enough, there has never been a serious accident on "The Farm." Once a chorus girl testing out a new car from her current boy friend spun around madly and came to a sudden full stop. That is the car did but she sped on over the windshield.

She explained naively, however, that being accustomed to joy riding she always got out of automobiles that way. Aged men are said to be hopeless as students. They are entirely too timid to attune themselves to the rather reckless spirit of the motor age.

Some demonstration cars are equipped with double steering wheels, breaks and clutches so instructors may come to the rescue in sudden emergency. There are on an average of 25 a day who take up the problem of learning to drive.

There is a tantalizing group of urchins who loiter about "The Farm" hurling their jibes and jeers at beginners until they are tossed coins and move away.

In a southeasternly knoll in Central park on rainy days lately is often seen a painter at work at his easel under a huge umbrella. He is a painter of rainy day scenes and is shortly to give a gallery exhibition.

An enterprising directory firm has launched an innovation that is welcomed with loud banzais by young bloods. It contains a directory of every person in town connected with the stage, including telephone numbers and home addresses. Every chorus girl is listed and amateur "cluck books" are being tossed in the ash can. There are at this writing something more than 700 chorines appearing in theatres and cabarets in the greater city. It is also noted most chorus girls live on the west side north of 50th street. Three reside in Park avenue and two in the Fashionable East Fifties. These ladies, of course, are able to maintain rather elaborate establishments by "playing the market." In fact that seems to be the explanation of many New York ladies whose sources of income appear dubious to the curious. It is as good as any.

The vehicular tunnels for those who live in those towns with the wild Jersey names will be opened for motorists around the first of the year. They are twin tubes, the north for westbound and the south for eastbound traffic. The passages are as smooth as glass and the walls are tiled in brown and white. This will obvsate all werrisom traffic waits and one may whisk under the river on "a one way street,' and reach New Jersey as quickly as 72nd street.

My Favorite Stories

By IRVIN S. COBB

A TESTIMONIAL TO STRENGTH.

A man I know told me that one evening he got on an "L" train in Chicago to go to his home in the suburbs. In one of the lengthwise seats near him sat three negroes—a big, wide darky in the center, with a little, slender darky on each side of him. The big negro was looking for trouble; that much was plain.

Every time the guard, who was a little German, opened the door to call a station the big darky would mimic him, and then the other two darkies would laugh admiringly. The pestered guard finally protested, whereupon the big darky threatened him.

"Go on, you Dutchman!" he said. "Ef you sasses me I'll hit you jest oncet, an' knock you so high in the air you'll starve to death comin' down!"

"He'll do it, too," said one of the little negroes.

"He will 'at!" assented the other. "Ef he say he'll do it, he shore will!"

Just then the door flew open and in came the German, accompanied by another guard, nearly seven feet high. The German pointed out the disturber, and the giant, without a word, grabbed him by the collar, jerked him out of his place like a tooth out of a socket, cuffed him on one side of the head and then on the other, dragged him on the platform and pitched him bodily over the gate upon the platform of a station from which the train was just moving. Then he reopened the door and gave the friends of the late departed a hard threatening look. But they were staring straight ahead of them, their eyes blinking and their faces indicative of a great mental concentration.

For a long minute there was silence. Then, as if moved by the same set of strings, the heads of the two little darkies turned gently, inch by inch, until each looked into the other's face across the gap where their friend had been sitting. One of them sighed musingly.

"Dat suttinly was a strong man!" was all he said.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Totem Poles Disappearing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—The totem poles of southeastern Alaska, among the most remarkable records of a vanishing race, are rapidly disappearing through neglect, decay, fires, and even outright destruction, and those which might be preserved are likely to go the same way because the native Indians will not allow anything to be done with these sacred relics.

Efforts by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington to preserve at least one typical group of these poles and one typical Indian house in its natural state have so far been thwarted by a combination of natural and native acts, and the village originally selected for this plan of preservation no longer is in shape for such treatment.

The village in question is old Kassan, which was abandoned about 1900. It stands on Prince of Wales Island, and today is overgrown with weeds and shrubs, its houses rotting and its fine collection of totems partly burned and partly in a state of decay beyond hope of saving. Also it is now entirely off the route of steamships, and while the site has been designated as a National Monument and is theoretically under the jurisdiction of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Smithsonian scientists who have visited it this year do not believe much good would be done in preserving its historical and ethnological records, since the public would have no access to it.

The Smithsonian and other great museums have a number of excellent specimens of totem poles, but most of these have come from the Haida tribes of Queen Charlotte Island, British Columbia. The Tlingit and Tsimsian tribes of Alaska are the other principal totem-owning groups, and few of their totems have been saved or are likely to be.

These Indians are great rovers. Their villages have been repeatedly abandoned as they have moved in search of better fishing grounds, or to avoid the attacks of enemies. Since no totems have been carved for more than half a century, and the wood does not last well unless kept painted or otherwise protected, the famous poles are usually practically ruined by rot by the time a village is abandoned or soon thereafter.

Totems Held As Sacred.

Where the Indians still occupy villages dating back to the totem pole era, they object strenuously to the white man's ideas of moving their sacred monuments. The totem poles, magnificently and ornately carved with the emblems of the tribes and the symbols of great events in the lives of chieftains, are either tribal monuments or individual grave markers. In either event they are sacred and the white man's desire for them is regarded by the Indians as commercializing their proudest heritage.

Most of these Indians of southwestern Alaska are very poor, and large cash offers for totem poles have been tempting to them. Even when they desire to sell, however, they are not likely to strike a bargain, because the laws of inheritance among these tribes have been entirely upset in recent generations, and the totems instead of being the individual property of a single heir become very rapidly the property of practically a whole village. Hence any cash offer must be large enough to satisfy everybody, and such negotiations as have been attempted have usually come to an end by the time an increasing list of

The national crime commission has turned its attention to the relation of the sale of small arms to crime. It has long been recognized by thoughtful citizens that this relation is very close. A large section of the public will give immediate approval to the following suggestions of the crime commission:

1. The imposition of a high tax on pistols.
2. A system for registering their sale.
3. The restriction of sale to police, army and navy officers.

The New York city commissioner of police favors those three proposals and adds a fourth—that only the police should be allowed to sell pistols.

It seems absolutely ridiculous that a nation suffering from such a "crime wave" as this country has known for several years, should permit the indiscriminate manufacture and sale of firearms, and that persons in states or communities restricting such sale can easily obtain the weapons they desire through mail order houses in other states.

If we are serious about wanting to check crime, we will be serious about banning guns and pistols and revolvers for illegitimate purposes.

Victory For Debate

When Herriot overthrew the Briand government it was a victory, not for the radical Socialist group which Herriot is supposed to represent, but rather for interminable debate.

Herriot and his followers have been loud in their demands for the preservation of republican principles, insistent in their protests against the adoption of any financial policy with which all the people may not be familiar and on which the nation has not had chance to pass. They offer no constructive policy of their own; they do not know what they want, but they will not be denied the chance to say what they don't want, once they have had a chance to look it over.

Under the circumstances, neither the French people nor those who view their situation sympathetically have reason for too great optimism. It is perfectly true that Poincare and his associates, Millerand, Maginot and the survivors of the old Clemenceau group, seem to have almost all the sound financial brains in France, but they have not the votes, and however excellent may be the proposals which they bring forward, their financial program must still run the gauntlet of the Left with its sentimental attachment for the theory of a capital tax, its fondness for debate, and its comparative indifference to considerations other than those which concern immediate political strategy.

Meanwhile the franc slips, the Parisian populace indulges its flair for rioting and the world wonders.

France is fortunate indeed in that none of the royalist pretenders cares to tackle the financial problems which confront the republic. The government has not been more unstable since the Commune.

London Heat

London has been sweltering lately in a hot wave. Or rather, in what our English friends mistake for a hot wave. The natives droop and melt in a temperature of 79 or 80, while the throngs of American visitors go about as usual, enjoying the weather.

There's something in the state of mind, no doubt. Those Americans are on vacation and the English are working. But there are other reasons.

The English are unaccustomed to heat spells such as Americans take as a matter of course. The British Isles are not only warm in winter, compared with most of the United States, but cool in summer.

Possibly clothing has still more to do with it. Londoners mostly wear heavy clothing through the summer, while Americans dress lightly. Almost any kind of weather is tolerable if one dresses for it. Still, our own cities are full of natives who never seem to have discovered that fact.

Grace For Digestion

There is more than religion in "grace before meals," says Dr. Gilbert Fitzpatrick, president of the American Institute of Homeopathy. It is an excellent aid to digestion. While rendering due thanks to the Creator for His bounty, it composes the mind and thereby helps the body take care of its digestive job.

Incidentally he condemns carrying business problems to the lunch table, as many Americans now do. They retard digestion, he says, and waste time instead of saving it. Better Heaven's blessing on food than trade talk with it.

True religion should have a similar effect on all proper human activities, smoothing out life and releasing its wholesome energies.

Detroit proposes to erect a building 873 feet high, beating everything else on earth. Better remember what happened to the old Mesopotamians when they tried that on the plains of Shinar.

A magazine writer says men fall in love with women who remind them of their mothers. A lot of them must marry without falling in love.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 9.—There is a stretch along Twelfth avenue where novices at motoring are given freedom of the street and the unwritten law is "every pedestrian for himself." It is where Manhattan learns to drive automobiles and is known as "The Farm."

Some learn to drive a motor car in an hour and some never learn. One young lady was a patient scholar for six months before she finally gave up in despair. She could start and guide the machine successfully but never able to stop it. Stopping, it seems, is quite necessary.

Once she interrupted trade in a milk and egg store by crashing into the place via the display window. Huge sandpiles on one side of "The Farm" protect those who may accidently start for the Hudson river shouting a prankish: "Whoops, my dear!"

Oddly enough, there has never been a serious accident on "The Farm." Once a chorus girl testing out a new car from her current boy friend spun around madly and came to a sudden full stop. That is the car did but she sped on over the windshield.

She explained naively, however, that being accustomed to joy riding she always got out of automobiles that way. Aged men are said to be hopeless as students. They are entirely too timid to attune themselves to the rather reckless spirit of the motor age.

Some demonstration cars are equipped with double steering wheels, breaks and clutches so instructors may come to the rescue in sudden emergency. There are on an average of 25 a day who take up the problem of learning to drive.

There is a tantalizing group of urchins who loiter about "The Farm" hurling their jibes and jeers at beginners until they are tossed coins and move away.

In a southeasternly knoll in Central park on rainy days lately is often seen a painter at work at his easel under a huge umbrella. He is a painter of rainy day scenes and is shortly to give a gallery exhibition.

An enterprising directory firm has launched an innovation that is welcomed with loud banzais by young bloods. It contains a directory of every person in town connected with the stage, including telephone numbers and home addresses. Every chorus girl is listed and amateur "cluck books" are being tossed in the ash can. There are at this writing something more than 700 choruses appearing in theatres and cabarets in the greater city. It is also noted most chorus girls live on the west side north of 50th street. Three reside in Park avenue and two in the Fashionable East Fifties. These ladies, of course, are able to maintain rather elaborate establishments by "playing the market." In fact many seems to be the explanation of many New York ladies whose sources of income appear dubious to the curious. It is as good as any.

The vehicular tunnels for those who live in those towns with the wild Jersey names will be opened for motorists around the first of the year. They are twin tubes, the north for westbound and the south for eastbound traffic. The passages are as smooth as glass and the walls are tiled in brown and white. This will obvsate all werrisom traffic waits and one may whisk under the river on "a one way street,' and reach New Jersey as quickly as 72nd street.

A TESTIMONIAL TO STRENGTH.

A man I know told me that one evening he got on an "L" train in Chicago to go to his home in the suburbs. In one of the lengthwise seats near him sat three negroes—a big, wide darky in the center, with a little, slender darky on each side of him. The big negro was looking for trouble; that much was plain.

Every time the guard, who was a little German, opened the door to call a station the big darky would mimic him, and then the other two darkies would laugh admiringly. The pestered guard finally protested, whereupon the big darky threatened him.

"Go on, you Dutchman!" he said. "Ef you sasses me I'll hit you jest oncet, an' knock you so high in the air you'll starve to death comin' down!"

"He'll do it, too," said one of the little negroes.

"He will 'at!" assented the other. "Ef he say he'll do it, he shore will!"

Just then the door flew open and in came the German, accompanied by another guard, nearly seven feet high. The German pointed out the disturber, and the giant, without a word, grabbed him by the collar, jerked him out of his place like a tooth out of a socket, cuffed him on one side of the head and then on the other, dragged him on the platform and pitched him bodily over the gate upon the platform of a station from which the train was just moving. Then he reopened the door and gave the friends of the late departed a hard threatening look. But they were staring straight ahead of them, their eyes blinking and their faces indicative of a great mental concentration.

For a long minute there was silence. Then, as if moved by the same set of strings, the heads of the two little darkies turned gently, inch by inch, until each looked into the other's face across the gap where their friend had been sitting. One of them sighed musingly.

"Dat suttinly was a strong man!" was all he said.

Totem Poles Disappearing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—The totem poles of southeastern Alaska, among the most remarkable records of a vanishing race, are rapidly disappearing through neglect, decay, fires, and even outright destruction, and those which might be preserved are likely to go the same way because the native Indians will not allow anything to be done with these sacred relics.

Efforts by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington to preserve at least one typical group of these poles and one typical Indian house in its natural state have so far been thwarted by a combination of natural and native acts, and the village originally selected for this plan of preservation no longer is in shape for such treatment.

The village in question is old Kassan, which was abandoned about 1900. It stands on Prince of Wales Island, and today is overgrown with weeds and shrubs, its houses rotting and its fine collection of totems partly burned and partly in a state of decay beyond hope of saving. Also it is now entirely off the route of steamships, and while the site has been designated as a National Monument and is theoretically under the jurisdiction of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Smithsonian scientists who have visited it this year do not believe much good would be done in preserving its historical and ethnological records, since the public would have no access to it.

The Smithsonian and other great museums have a number of excellent specimens of totem poles, but most of these have come from the Haida tribes of Queen Charlotte Island, British Columbia. The Tlingit and Tsimsian tribes of Alaska are the other principal totem-owning groups, and few of their totems have been saved or are likely to be.

These Indians are great rovers. Their villages have been repeatedly abandoned as they have moved in search of better fishing grounds, or to avoid the attacks of enemies. Since no totems have been carved for more than half a century, and the wood does not last well unless kept painted or otherwise protected, the famous poles are usually practically ruined by rot by the time a village is abandoned or soon thereafter.

Totems Held As Sacred.

Where the Indians still occupy villages dating back to the totem pole era, they object strenuously to the white man's ideas of moving their sacred monuments. The totem poles, magnificently and ornately carved with the emblems of the tribes and the symbols of great events in the lives of chieftains, are either tribal monuments or individual grave markers. In either event they are sacred and the white man's desire for them is regarded by the Indians as commercializing their proudest heritage.

Most of these Indians of southwestern Alaska are very poor, and large cash offers for totem poles have been tempting to them. Even when they desire to sell, however, they are not likely to strike a bargain, because the laws of inheritance among these tribes have been entirely upset in recent generations, and the totems instead of being the individual property of a single heir become very rapidly the property of practically a whole village. Hence any cash offer must be large enough to satisfy everybody, and such negotiations as have been attempted have usually come to an end by the time an increasing list of

Alliance Ladies Defeated in Golf Play for Trophy

The ladies of the East Liverpool Country club, who entertained the ladies of the Alliance Country club yesterday in a return golf tournament, were awarded the Mrs. Homer J. Taylor cup which was won last year by the Alliance golfers. The Alliance team included Mesdames Pittenger, Hasner, Kealey, Sebring, Mayer, Aubaugh and Roat. East Liverpool representatives were: Misses Mary Irwin and Mayme Simms and Mesdames H. S. Russell, Christian Metsch, Samuel Groglode, Herbert A. Smith and C. A. Smith. Mrs. Richard Mayer of Alliance was awarded the trophy presented by Mrs. John B. McDonald for the visitor's lowest score. Mrs. Mayer received the trophy presented by Mrs. C. A. Bough for the afternoon's bridge party.

Luncheon was served at noon, covers being arranged for 55 guests at the attractively decorated tables. The afternoon was spent with progressive bridge, thirteen tables being in play.

The visitors included Mesdames Ray Cliff, Henry Morgan, Fred Zang, Lester Ruth, C. W. Pittenger, Carl Hafner, Kembel Kealey, Charles Sebring, Robert Roat, C. Aubaugh and Richard Mayer of Alliance; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Maynard of Los Angeles, Cal.; and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Outerbridge of New York City.

The championship cup donated by Mrs. Edwin M. Knowles will be given in the finals to be played in September.

Miss Elsie Rigot Becomes Bride of Walter M. Nichols

Miss Elsie K. Rigot, of Minerva street, and Walter M. Nichols, of Chester, were married last night in the St. Aloysius rectory, West Fifth street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James H. Smith, assistant pastor.

The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rigot. Mr. Nichols, who is a son of Charles Nichols, is employed as a stationary fireman.

Mr. and Mrs. Nichols left following the ceremony for a honeymoon trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Canadian points. Upon their return they will reside in Minerva street.

Miss Cochran Surprised.

A surprise party was given Monday evening in honor of Miss Helen Cochran at her home in East Eighth street, in celebration of her eighteenth birthday anniversary. Music, dancing and cards were the diversions of the social hours, at the close of which a buffet luncheon was served by the honor guest's mother, Mrs. George Cochran, assisted by Mrs. W. C. Paul. Places were arranged for 20 persons. Pink and white formed the color scheme used in the appointments.

The honor guest received many gifts.

Among the out-tof-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Schrieber, of Canton, and Miss Mary Trimble, of Georgetown.

Mrs. George Russell Surprised.

Ladies of the Maccabees surprised Mrs. George Russell at her home in Fairview street, last evening. Music and games were pastimes. A two-course luncheon was served by Mesdames Alice Pierce, Drucilla Sinclair and Jennie Duncan. Places were arranged for Mesdames Willa Brookes, Blanche Gardner, Alice Pierce, Jennie Duncan, Delma Gillespie, Sarah Stewart, Christine Russo, Mary Russell, Gladys Bourne, Grace Warrick, Garnet Russell, Drucilla Sinclair and Misses Patricia Pierce, Virginia Sinclair and Rosina Russell.

Poe Family Reunion.

The first anual reunion of the sons and daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh H. Poe was held yesterday afternoon and evening at Thompson park. Dinner was served at 6 o'clock. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Potts and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Potts and family of McDonald, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Potts and family of Steubenville; Mr. and Mrs. William Simms of Weirton, W. Va.; Mrs. Cora Brookes of Chicago, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Poe and family of Chester; Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Connelly and family and Dan Shirk of Woodlawn, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Bass of Columbus, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanten Poe and family of this city.

Sunday School Outing.

The annual outing of the Sunday school of St. John's Lutheran church was held yesterday afternoon and evening at Thompson park. A program of sports was featured. At 6 o'clock guests were seated for a basket dinner. Following the dinner a baseball game was staged between the married and single men, the score being 15 to 5 in favor of the benedicts. A horseshoe contest was also a diversion.

Hostess to Seattle Club.

Miss Alice Kinsey entertained the members of the Seattle club last evening at her home in Almont street. Nineteen members responded to roll call. Three new members, Miss Jennie Roedell and Mesdames Mary McConville and Nell Aufderheide, were enrolled.

During the social hours, a guessing contest was conducted, trophies being presented Mrs. Agnes Sinclair and Mrs. Mary Hughes.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her sisters, Mesdames Anna Conkle, Agnes Sinclair and Madge Floto, and Miss Mary Buckley.

Special guests were Mrs. Laura Buckley and daughter, Mary. Roses formed the decoration of the home.

The club will meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Laura Hughes of Ridgeway avenue.

Dancing Mineral Springs Friday eve.

B. O. T. Club Entertained.

Mrs. Harry Gabbert delightfully entertained the members of the B. O. T. Five Hundred club last evening at her home in Pleasant Heights. Two tables were in play at the close of which trophies were awarded Mrs. Frank Green and Mrs. Walter Kountz. A two-course luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Leola McConville and Mrs. E. F. Arnold.

Next Thursday evening Mrs. E. F. Arnold will receive the club at her home in 222 West Third street.

Miss McCullough Entertains.

Miss Phyllis McCullough was hostess to a group of friends at a weiner sizzle at the home of her brother in St. Clair avenue last evening. The social hours were spent with games and music.

Those present included Misses Blanche Barnes, Audrey DeHaven, Esther Allen, Grace Welch, Phyllis McCullough, Delores DeHaven; Mesdames Frank Kirkham, Dan MacDonald, Richard Fontz, Lenten Barnes, David Wherry and George Kelley.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McCullough and son, Billy.

Community Club Weiner Sizzle.

The East End Community club held a weiner sizzle and bathing party last evening near the Frank Suttler home in St. George street. Thirty-five guests were present. Mrs. Suttler was assisted in serving refreshments by Mesdames Mabel Lee and Bessie White.

A business session of the club will be held Wednesday, August 4, in the East End fire station.

Mrs. Harold Dorsey Hostess.

Members of the Wood-Be Bridge club were guests last evening of Mrs. Harold Dorsey in West Ninth street. Three tables of bridge were in play. Trophies were awarded Mesdames Bert Brown and Marvella Monroe. The club colors of pink and white predominated in the home decorations and luncheon appointments.

The club will meet in two weeks at the home of Miss Mary Jones in Third street, Wellsville.

Honor Salvation Army Officers.

A group of young people from the Salvation Army held a basket picnic yesterday at Thompson park, honoring Captain Percy Holdon, of New York city; Lieutenant Cordelia Scott, of Massillon, O., and Lieutenant Naomi Shingler, of Cleveland. Covers were arranged for 40 guests at dinner. The social hours were spent informally.

CLOCK RECORDS COOLIDGE HAND SHAKING SPEED

Counter Shows He Greets 150,000 in 34 Months.

COPPER ON JOB

White House Police Keep Check on "Respects."

WASHINGTON.—Shake, brother! (Or sister). How many times has Calvin Coolidge been forced to say this at least figuratively since his first began to hold down his White House job?

Official figures, as read off the automatic counter in the hand of the copper at the exit to the Executive offices, coupled with conservative estimates of out-of-town receptions, place the total in round numbers at 150,000 in the thirty-four months up to June 1, 1926, that Mr. Coolidge has been president.

Keep Careful Check.

The White House police keep a careful check on the number of "respects" that pass through the Executive Office daily. (A "respect" is a person who comes to the White House armed with a written request from his senator or congressman asking an audience with the president.)

From August 3, 1923 to June 1, 1926, there have been of these—coupled with the annual New Year's diplomatic, cabinet, judicial, congressional and army and navy receptions—exactly 128,009.

In addition, there have been three garden parties for disabled soldiers in the vicinity of Washington, each averaging about 1,500.

Then, the president has an average of at least ten visitors a day who come by appointment and do not have to leave by the door where the policeman and his counter stand. Thus, most conservatively, another 10,000 are added.

Out of Town.

While out of town on speaking engagements, Mr. Coolidge has shaken at least 5,000 hands. Above this figure, on Vermont Day, 1924, while visiting Plymouth, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge received over 2,000 natives of the state.

And thus, with these figures, the mean total of 150,000 is reached.

Taking the White House "respects" figure of 128,009 alone, the president receives an average of 3,765 of his constituents every month, or 125 a day. But taking into consideration the fact that, on vacations and speaking engagements, he has ben out of Washington for about four months of the thirty four, the average runs still higher.

Visitors Watched.

The effect of receiving any considerable number of persons is most apparent when Mrs. Coolidge also is in the receiving line. She will start wearing elbow-length white kid gloves When the last person has passed by, her right glove will be black with grime and several seams will be split.

Neither the president nor Mrs. Coolidge use a single expression of greeting. Rather, they have a number—such as "How are you?," "Glad to see you," "A pleasure, I'm sure, etc,"—which they rotate mechanically.

Every visitor must run a gauntlet of watchful secret service men. No packages may be carried, no hand may be bandaged or concealed in pocket, for McKinley was assassinated with a gun wrapped in what apparently was a bandage.

FAMILY PEW, LIKE HORSE CAR, IS OUT OF DATE, SAYS MINISTER

BOSTON—Like the horse-car, dragging skirts and side-whiskers, the family pew in the average church is all out of date today, according to the Rev. Dr. Phillips E. Osgood, rector of St. Mark's church at Minneapolis.

And family worship has become virtually impossible under traditional forms of arrangement of Sunday services, Rev. Osgood told the clergy attending the Episcopal conference for church work here.

Failure to adapt the service of the church to the needs of a modern congregation, he declared, is one of the great mistakes made today in houses of worship, especially in those parishes whose constituents come from widely scattered districts.

"Under such circumstances, it is quite impossible with the old system of holding church either in the morning or afternoon, to develop the old idea of family worship in church," he said. "The family pew has gone quite out of date."

His views created considerable discussion among the assembled clergy, some approving, others disapproving.

Miss Ethel Langton, the 15-year-old daughter of the keeper of a lighthouse on the Isle of Wight, has been awarded a bronze medal for her courage in keeping the lights working for three days during a gale. Her father and mother had gone ashore for supplies and the storm prevented them from getting back. The girl kept everything in order, although she had nothing to eat but half a loaf of bread, thereby saving many ships and men from disaster.

Here's Instant Relief from Bunions and Soft Corns

Actually Reduces the Swelling — Soft Corns Dry Right Up and Can Be Picked Off.

Mathews Med. Store and J. D. Holloway Say Emerald Oil Must Give Complete Satisfaction or Money Cheerfully Refunded.

Get a two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) today. Every well stocked drug store has this, with the distinct understanding that your money will be cheerfully returned if it does not reduce the inflammation, soreness and pain much quicker than any remedy you ever used.

Your bunions may be so swollen and inflamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture and pray for quick relief. What's to be done?

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes all the pain and soreness disappear. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And as for Soft Corns a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with pads, shields, or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn. Something that will end your foot troubles forever.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

Mathews' Medicine Store and J. D. Holloway and every good druggist guarantees Moone's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.

Firearms Restriction

The national crime commission has turned its attention to the relation of the sale of small arms to crime. It has long been recognized by thoughtful citizens that this relation is very close. A large section of the public will give immediate approval to the following suggestions of the crime commission:

1. The imposition of a high tax on pistols.
2. A system for registering their sale.
3. The restriction of sale to police, army and navy officers.

The New York city commissioner of police favors those three proposals and adds a fourth—that only the police should be allowed to sell pistols.

It seems absolutely ridiculous that a nation suffering from such a "crime wave" as this country has known for several years, should permit the indiscriminate manufacture and sale of firearms, and that persons in states or communities restricting such sale can easily obtain the weapons they desire through mail order houses in other states.

If we are serious about wanting to check crime, we will be serious about banning guns and pistols and revolvers for illegitimate purposes.

Victory For Debate

When Herriot overthrew the Briand government it was a victory, not for the radical Socialist group which Herriot is supposed to represent, but rather for interminable debate.

Herriot and his followers have been loud in their demands for the preservation of republican principles, insistent in their protests against the adoption of any financial policy with which all the people may not be familiar and on which the nation has not had chance to pass. They offer no constructive policy of their own; they do not know what they want, but they will not be denied the chance to say what they don't want, once they have had a chance to look it over.

Under the circumstances, neither the French people nor those who view their situation sympathetically have reason for too great optimism. It is perfectly true that Poincare and his associates, Millerand, Maginot and the survivors of the old Clemenceau group, seem to have almost all the sound financial brains in France, but they have not the votes, and however excellent may be the proposals which they bring forward, their financial program must still run the gauntlet of the Left with its sentimental attachment for the theory of a capital tax, its fondness for debate, and its comparative indifference to considerations other than those which concern immediate political strategy.

Meanwhile the franc slips, the Parisian populace indulges its flair for rioting and the world wonders.

France is fortunate indeed in that none of the royalist pretenders cares to tackle the financial problems which confront the republic. The government has not been more unstable since the Commune.

London Heat

London has been sweltering lately in a hot wave. Or rather, in what our English friends mistake for a hot wave. The natives droop and melt in a temperature of 79 or 80, while the throngs of American visitors go about as usual, enjoying the weather.

There's something in the state of mind, no doubt. Those Americans are on vacation and the English are working. But there are other reasons.

The English are unaccustomed to heat spells such as Americans take as a matter of course. The British Isles are not only warm in winter, compared with most of the United States, but cool in summer.

Possibly clothing has still more to do with it. Londoners mostly wear heavy clothing through the summer, while Americans dress lightly. Almost any kind of weather is tolerable if one dresses for it. Still, our own cities are full of natives who never seem to have discovered that fact.

Grace For Digestion

There is more than religion in "grace before meals," says Dr. Gilbert Fitzpatrick, president of the American Institute of Homeopathy. It is an excellent aid to digestion. While rendering due thanks to the Creator for His bounty, it composes the mind and thereby helps the body take care of its digestive job.

Incidentally he condemns carrying business problems to the lunch table, as many Americans now do. They retard digestion, he says, and waste time instead of saving it. Better Heaven's blessing on food than trade talk with it.

True religion should have a similar effect on all proper human activities, smoothing out life and releasing its wholesome energies.

Detroit proposes to erect a building 873 feet high, beating everything else on earth. Better remember what happened to the old Mesopotamians when they tried that on the plains of Shinar.

A magazine writer says men fall in love with women who remind them of their mothers. A lot of them must marry without falling in love.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 9.—There is a stretch along Twelfth avenue where novices at motoring are given freedom of the street and the unwritten law is "every pedestrian for himself." It is where Manhattan learns to drive automobiles and is known as "The Farm."

Some learn to drive a motor car in an hour and some never learn. One young lady was a patient scholar for six months before she finally gave up in despair. She could start and guide the machine successfully but never able to stop it. Stopping, it seems, is quite necessary.

Once she interrupted trade in a milk and egg store by crashing into the place via the display window. Huge sandpiles on one side of "The Farm" protect those who may accidently start for the Hudson river shouting a prankish: "Whoops, my dear!"

Oddly enough, there has never been a serious accident on "The Farm." Once a chorus girl testing out a new car from her current boy friend spun around madly and came to a sudden full stop. That is the car did but she sped on over the windshield.

She explained naively, however, that being accustomed to joy riding she always got out of automobiles that way. Aged men are said to be hopeless as students. They are entirely too timid to attune themselves to the rather reckless spirit of the motor age.

Some demonstration cars are equipped with double steering wheels, breaks and clutches so instructors may come to the rescue in sudden emergency. There are on an average of 25 a day who take up the problem of learning to drive.

There is a tantalizing group of urchins who loiter about "The Farm" hurling their jibes and jeers at beginners until they are tossed coins and move away.

In a southeasternly knoll in Central park on rainy days lately is often seen a painter at work at his easel under a huge umbrella. He is a painter of rainy day scenes and is shortly to give a gallery exhibition.

An enterprising directory firm has launched an innovation that is welcomed with loud banzais by young bloods. It contains a directory of every person in town connected with the stage, including telephone numbers and home addresses. Every chorus girl is listed and amateur "cluck books" are being tossed in the ash can. There are at this writing something more than 700 chorines appearing in theatres and cabarets in the greater city. It is also noted most chorus girls live on the west side north of 50th street. Three reside in Park avenue and two in the Fashionable East Fifties. These ladies, of course, are able to maintain rather elaborate establishments by "playing the market." In fact that seems to be the explanation of many New York ladies whose sources of income appear dubious to the curious. It is as good as any.

The vehicular tunnels for those who live in those towns with the wild Jersey names will be opened for motorists around the first of the year. They are twin tubes, the north for westbound and the south for eastbound traffic. The passages are as smooth as glass and the walls are tiled in brown and white. This will obvsate all werrisom traffic waits and one may whisk under the river on "a one way street,' and reach New Jersey as quickly as 72nd street.

A TESTIMONIAL TO STRENGTH.

A man I know told me that one evening he got on an "L" train in Chicago to go to his home in the suburbs. In one of the lengthwise seats near him sat three negroes—a big, wide darky in the center, with a little, slender darky on each side of him. The big negro was looking for trouble; that much was plain.

Every time the guard, who was a little German, opened the door to call a station the big darky would mimic him, and then the other two darkies would laugh admiringly. The pestered guard finally protested, whereupon the big darky threatened him.

"Go on, you Dutchman!" he said. "Ef you sasses me I'll hit you jest oncet, an' knock you so high in the air you'll starve to death comin' down!"

"He'll do it, too," said one of the little negroes.

"He will 'at!" assented the other. "Ef he say he'll do it, he shore will!"

Just then the door flew open and in came the German, accompanied by another guard, nearly seven feet high. The German pointed out the disturber, and the giant, without a word, grabbed him by the collar, jerked him out of his place like a tooth out of a socket, cuffed him on one side of the head and then on the other, dragged him on the platform and pitched him bodily over the gate upon the platform of a station from which the train was just moving. Then he reopened the door and gave the friends of the late departed a hard threatening look. But they were staring straight ahead of them, their eyes blinking and their faces indicative of a great mental concentration.

For a long minute there was silence. Then, as if moved by the same set of strings, the heads of the two little darkies turned gently, inch by inch, until each looked into the other's face across the gap where their friend had been sitting. One of them sighed musingly.

"Dat suttinly was a strong man!" was all he said.

Totem Poles Disappearing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—The totem poles of southeastern Alaska, among the most remarkable records of a vanishing race, are rapidly disappearing through neglect, decay, fires, and even outright destruction, and those which might be preserved are likely to go the same way because the native Indians will not allow anything to be done with these sacred relics.

Efforts by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington to preserve at least one typical group of these poles and one typical Indian house in its natural state have so far been thwarted by a combination of natural and native acts, and the village originally selected for this plan of preservation no longer is in shape for such treatment.

The village in question is old Kassan, which was abandoned about 1900. It stands on Prince of Wales Island, and today is overgrown with weeds and shrubs, its houses rotting and its fine collection of totems partly burned and partly in a state of decay beyond hope of saving. Also it is now entirely off the route of steamships, and while the site has been designated as a National Monument and is theoretically under the jurisdiction of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Smithsonian scientists who have visited it this year do not believe much good would be done in preserving its historical and ethnological records, since the public would have no access to it.

The Smithsonian and other great museums have a number of excellent specimens of totem poles, but most of these have come from the Haida tribes of Queen Charlotte Island, British Columbia. The Tlingit and Tsimsian tribes of Alaska are the other principal totem-owning groups, and few of their totems have been saved or are likely to be.

These Indians are great rovers. Their villages have been repeatedly abandoned as they have moved in search of better fishing grounds, or to avoid the attacks of enemies. Since no totems have been carved for more than half a century, and the wood does not last well unless kept painted or otherwise protected, the famous poles are usually practically ruined by rot by the time a village is abandoned or soon thereafter.

Totems Held As Sacred.

Where the Indians still occupy villages dating back to the totem pole era, they object strenuously to the white man's ideas of moving their sacred monuments. The totem poles, magnificently and ornately carved with the emblems of the tribes and the symbols of great events in the lives of chieftains, are either tribal monuments or individual grave markers. In either event they are sacred and the white man's desire for them is regarded by the Indians as commercializing their proudest heritage.

Most of these Indians of southwestern Alaska are very poor, and large cash offers for totem poles have been tempting to them. Even when they desire to sell, however, they are not likely to strike a bargain, because the laws of inheritance among these tribes have been entirely upset in recent generations, and the totems instead of being the individual property of a single heir become very rapidly the property of practically a whole village. Hence any cash offer must be large enough to satisfy everybody, and such negotiations as have been attempted have usually come to an end by the time an increasing list of

NIGHT STICK BRINGS SPEECH TO SHELL SHOCKED WAR VET

LAWRENCE, MASS.—Life is once again worth living to George Hayden Gibbs, World War veteran.

For Gibbs, shell-shocked, deaf and dumb for nine years, has recovered both hearing and speech.

And the manner in which he recovered his lost senses is described by medical men as an almost unprecedented "miracle."

Gibbs at the age of 19, enlisted in the famous Princess Pat Canadian Regiment. He went overseas with his comrades and was wounded in the terrific fighting at Neufchatelle. Removed to a field hospital he was found to be suffering from shell-shock and ten body wounds. He was unable to hear or speak. Physicians worked in vain to restore his lost senses.

A few days ago Gibbs appeared in Lawrence and secured a position as a watchman for Herrick Aiken, guarding a building that was being moved from Pine Street to Chestnut street.

But life in the building was lonely and early one morning the war veteran fell into a sound sleep.

Patrolman Henry Roche, making his rounds, discovered him there.

In belief that Gibbs was just a "tramp", the officer entered the building, played a flashlight on the sleeping veteran, and tapped the soles of his shoes with a night-stick.

Gibbs leaped to his feet, startled. He identified himself to the patrolman and the latter walked to the door, opened it and went out. As the patrolman passed through the door it slammed shut. Gibbs heard the noise. He sat down for a minute and said, referring to the officer, "Damn him."

Discovery that he could both hear and speak was too much for the shattered nerves of the veteran and he cried himself to sleep with joy.

Four brothers and a sister of Gibbs were killed during the fighting at Armentiers.

Angora will have a wireless station.

Czech Army Suicides Increase Since Close Of World Conflict

PRAGUE.—Suicide among soldiers and officers of the Czech army have shown a slight increase in the last four years according to a report of the Minister of War. In the year 1922 the percentage was 6.7 for each 10,000 soldiers in the army of about 75,000 men. Next year it reached 8.04 and in 1924 it was 7.32. Last year it was 9.91 which is unaccountable since the army has been inactive.

The suicides in the army are thirty percent greater than for the civil population. Officers represented about twenty percent of the suicides although they are proportionately only about three per cent of the army.

Alliance Ladies Defeated in Golf Play for Trophy

The ladies of the East Liverpool Country club, who entertained the ladies of the Alliance Country club yesterday in a return golf tournament, were awarded the Mrs. Homer J. Taylor cup which was won last year by the Alliance golfers. The Alliance team included Mesdames Pittenger, Hasner, Kealey, Sebring, Mayer, Aubaugh and Roat. East Liverpool representatives were: Misses Mary Irwin and Mayme Simms and Mesdames H. S. Russell, Christian Metsch, Samuel Groglode, Herbert A. Smith and C. A. Smith. Mrs. Richard Mayer of Alliance was awarded the trophy presented by Mrs. John B. McDonald for the visitor's lowest score. Mrs. Mayer received the trophy presented by Mrs. C. A. Bough for the afternoon's bridge party.

Luncheon was served at noon, covers being arranged for 55 guests at the attractively decorated tables. The afternoon was spent with progressive bridge, thirteen tables being in play.

The visitors included Mesdames Ray Cliff, Henry Morgan, Fred Zang, Lester Ruth, C. W. Pittenger, Carl Hafner, Kembel Kealey, Charles Sebring, Robert Roat, C. Aubaugh and Richard Mayer of Alliance; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Maynard of Los Angeles, Cal.; and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Outerbridge of New York City.

The championship cup donated by Mrs. Edwin M. Knowles will be given in the finals to be played in September.

Miss Elsie Rigot Becomes Bride of Walter M. Nichols

Miss Elsie K. Rigot, of Minerva street, and Walter M. Nichols, of Chester, were married last night in the St. Aloysius rectory, West Fifth street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James H. Smith, assistant pastor.

The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rigot. Mr. Nichols, who is a son of Charles Nichols, is employed as a stationary fireman.

Mr. and Mrs. Nichols left following the ceremony for a honeymoon trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Canadian points. Upon their return they will reside in Minerva street.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 29.—A brilliant advance in prices of the lead-motor and industrial stocks was the first response of the stock market today to the enormous demand which awaited the resumption of trading on the stock exchange.

General Motors continued to occupy the limelight. Starting with an overnight gain of 2 points, the stock mounted swiftly to 183 in the first half-hour for a new gain of 4 points.

The moderate improvement in the oil stocks continued, with Marland and Mid-Continent leading the advance. Rails were lifeless, as also were the coppers and equipments. Stocks of the mercantile companies were well bought, and utility stocks spurted under the lead of Consolidated Gas.

Commodity markets were steady with wheat and corn inclined to fractionally higher prices.

at the jail about 10 o'clock and immediately went to Mrs. Hall's room. It was generally believed that McCarter would represent Mrs. Hall in the event of a trial. He is one of the most noted criminal lawyers in New Jersey.

Following a lengthy conference with Mrs. Hall, Attorneys McCarter and Augustus Studder emerged from the jail in search of Prosecutor Bergen. They found him on the street and at his invitation accompanied him to his office.

The three lawyers immediately went into a conference.

It was learned that McCarter and Studder were to discuss two phases of the situation with Bergen, to wit:

1—The possibility of an application for a writ of habeas corpus to release Mrs. Hall from custody until the grand jury had acted on the case.

2—An effort on behalf of Mrs. Hall to preclude any possibility of "third-degree" questioning.

Mrs. Hall was arrested and locked in a cell today.

Bodies Found Under Tree.

Since September, 1922, when the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found beneath a crabapple tree on the Phillips farm in New Brunswick, hundreds of officials and private investigators have worked on the case. The arrest early today came as an emphatic official declaration that the new investigation has solved what has been described as "the most baffling crime of the century."

The arrest was made in Mrs. Hall's home at New Brunswick, N. J., on two warrants, each signed by Francis Bergen, prosecutor of Somerset county and countersigned by Justice of the peace William R. Stuphinat, New Brunswick.

At 1:30 this morning commitments were signed for her immediate imprisonment in the Somerville jail. At 2:30 o'clock she was in a cell. Mrs. Carpenter, her cousin, spent the early morning with her.

"Ridiculous," Says Accused.

Mrs. Hall, it was said, was trying to engage Max D. Steuer, the well-known New York lawyer, to defend her at the coming proceedings.

Captain John L. Lamb, of New Jersey state police, accompanied by two Jersey City detectives, rang the bell of the Hall home shortly before midnight last night. Mrs. Hall was asleep but appeared in a few minutes.

"I suspect that you gentlemen want to question me again," Mrs. Hall said.

Captain Lamb explained that he held a warrant calling for her arrest.

"May I be permitted to read this warrant?" Mrs. Hall asked quite calmly.

"This is ridiculous," she said at length. "What are you going to do with me?"

Captain Lamb informed her that he had served the warrant and she was under arrest.

Telephones Her Attorney.

Mrs. Hall then requested permission to telephone her attorney, Russell E. Watson, of New Brunswick. Watson arrived at the Hall residence within a few minutes after receiving the call. Mrs. Hall then packed a small bag and left with the detectives.

The street was dark and no one was abroad. No crowd gathered for this, the most dramatic moment in New Jersey's greatest murder mystery.

Mrs. Hall climbed into the rear seat of one of two waiting automobiles and the cars started for Somerville.

Indications today were that a new grand jury would be called and that the case would be presented to it for action.

Victim Shot Through Head.

Almost four years have elapsed since the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found. Both had been shot through the head. The minister had been shot twice through the back of the head and one bullet had been sent through Mrs. Mills' forehead.

No weapon was found near the bodies and the course of the bullets proved conclusively that it was a case of double murder and not one of murder and suicide. Near the bodies was found a scattered heap of papers, including three notes in the choir-singers' handwriting which indicated that she had ben in love with the minister.

The bodies were found on September 16, 1922, and both had been missing since September 14. Physicians who examined the bodies said that they had been dead at least 36 hours.

Investigators found evidence to indicate that the couple had been murdered elsewhere and had been dragged to the crabapple tree.

Prisoner is Wealthy.

The Rev. Mr. Hall occupied the pulpit of one of the wealthiest and most fashionable churches of New Brunswick, and his wife had considerable money in her own right and was said to have inherited $1,700,000 a few years before her husband was murdered.

Mrs. Mills' husband, James Mills, was in poor circumstances, having been employed to tend the furnace and do other jobs around the church property. Mrs. Mills was a young woman and considered quite pretty. She had lived in New Brunswick all her life and had been in the habit of accompanying Dr. Hall on his visits to the poor and sick.

Later, letters were found in the Mills' home in Dr. Hall's handwriting, couched in endearing terms, indicating that the couple were in the habit of meeting regularly at a place not far from the farm on which their murdered bodies were found. These letters also spoke of a proposed elopement.

KIWANIS NAMES TWO DELEGATES

State Senator Carpenter Speaker at Noon Luncheon.

Secretary Carl E. Gruber and Prof H. F. Laughlin were unanimously elected delegates to the state Kiwanis meeting to be held in Columbus, September 20, 21 and 22, at the weekly luncheon meeting held in Larkins' annex, Market street, at noon today.

Speaker at the meeting was State Senator Harry C. Carpenter, Steubenville. Mr. Carpenter, whose subject was "State Affairs," was introduced by Municipal Judge Jesse C. Hanley.

Proposed visit of the local club to the Clarkson grange next Wednesday evening will be deferred until September, members decided. The meeting was attended by about 55 members and their guests.

Special guests included State Representative Ralph W. Emmons, East Rochester, and County Auditor Elmer Walker, Damascus.

Mr. Carpenter told the history of the state seal, which he declared, was first adopted shortly after Ohio was admitted to the union in 1803. He then cited a few old laws enacted by the legislature. In the list were legislation which exempted churches and distilleries from taxation, another requiring a state bill to obtain a divorce and a third prohibited the racing of horses down hill.

Mr. Carpenter, who was chairman of the senate finance committee at the last session of the legislature, gave a brief report of how the state gets its money and how it is spent. Revenue each year amounts to about $40,000,000 while the expenditures are about the same. Insane asylums, institutions for the feeble minded, reformatories, penitentiaries and other penal institutions, half dozen state colleges and educational institutions, orphanages and homes are maintained from state funds, he said.

anything about this Ritz evidence and testimony."

"George, the Greek" in Jail.

Psialias' action in asking police last night to lock him up to protect him from being "kidnaped" by private detectives wishing to take him to Canton, was "simply a move to escape a grilling on the Mellett murder," Connors said.

"Psialias knows we're closing in on him with evidence this time," Connors declared. "He couldn't flee from Pittsburgh and he was afraid I would arrest him and put him through a grilling.

"He had to plan a way to keep away from me. That's why he and his attorney and his bondsman got together and decided to lift his bond on the old charge of cutting to wound. In that way Psialias went back to jail on the old charge and in the county jail I can't get at him."

Contos In Youngstown.

CANTON, O., July 29.—Upon receiving information that Mike Contos, wanted for questioning in connection with the Don R. Mellett murder was being held in Youngstown, Ora Slater left for that city this afternoon with a "mystery witness."

The witness claimed that Contos resembled a man thought to be linked with the murder.

CANTON, O., July 29.—While father time tolled the remaining hours of liberty left to the slayers of Don R. Mellett, martyred Canton publisher, a representative group of citizens today prepared to demand the "official heads" of certain leaders of investigating agencies.

Among other things the group is expected to demand the permanent resignation of S. A. Lengel, chief of police now under 30 days' suspension, who was the target for editorial bombshells hurled by Mellett into the police department.

The citizens are also expected to demand the resignation of Earl Hexamer, safety director, now acting chief of police. Hexamer, some of the group stated early today, "has not kept all of the promises he made before being named acting chief."

Sleuths in Steubenville.

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 29.—The trial of the Don R. Mellett slayers led investigators into "Bloody Jefferson" county today.

An automobile load of Canton and Pittsburgh detectives is here working on an important clue it was said.

The Mellett investigators have not taken local authorities into their confidence and nothing is known as to their real purpose here. The visitors merely notified local officials they were here and kept their plans to themselves.

Youth Admits Robbery

bery of the Brunya garage, Lisbon-Salem road, last Friday night, but the suspect denied any knowledge of the crime. He said that he had served 90 days in the Mahoning county jail at Youngstown last fall upon a charge of suspicion, following his arrest in connection with an alleged hold-up job of which he was not guilty.

The Auto Underwriters' Club of Ohio, Columbus, has offered a "suitable reward" for the recovery of the machine Haas was driving. Police found the card carrying a description of the machine sent out by the insurance agency in their files following the man's arrest.

Haas told police that he makes his home with his parents in Youngstown. He said that he has had no steady job for about a year, his last position having been with the Ohio Leather company of Youngstown. The prisoner was remanded to jail and will be taken to Lisbon this afternoon.

TODAY

VISITING the sandy ruins of Thebes, Volney writes:

"There a people now forgotten discovered, while others were yet barbarians, the elements of the arts and sciences. A race of men now rejected from society for their sable skin and frizzled hair founded on the study of the laws of nature those civil and religious systems which still govern the universe."

You will perhaps reject the conclusions of Volney as to the importance of the early negro intellect. His view is strongly supported. Lucian says of the negroes:

"The Etheopians were the first who invented the science of the stars, and gave names to the planets, not at random and without meaning, but descriptive of the qualities which they conceived them to possess; and it was from them that this art passed, still in an imperfect state, to the Egyptians."

DIODORUS declares that the negroes rightfully believe themselves to be the oldest of nations. He says:

"It is probable that born under the sun's path, its warmth may have ripened them earlier than other men."

The man fit to teach his fellows is far ahead of them in intellect, and it is possible for him in the realness of science and of social questions to play the part assigned to inspired prophets in the religious world, Lamarck, Plato, Aristotle, Goethe, and, above all, the great genius, Charles Fourier, made predictions absolutely accurate, and verifying events have proved their right to respect and veneration as prophets of civilization.

"Man's obstacle is his ignorance which misleads him in the means and deceives him in causes and effects. He will enlighten himself by experience; he will become right by dint of errors; he will grow wise and good because it is his interest so to be.

"Individuals will feel that private happiness is allied to public good. The weak that, instead of dividing them, because equality constitutes their force; the rich that the measure of enjoyment is bounded by the constitution of the organs, and that lassitude follows satiety; the poor that the employment of time and the peace of the heart compose the highest happiness of man. And public opinion, reaching kings on their thrones, will force them to confine themselves to the limits of regular authority."

T. A. Maley Grocery Store is Sold to Samuel Manlovitz

As a result of a deal negotiated yesterday, T. A. Maley, Dresden avenue grocer, sold his business to Samuel Manlovitz, St. Clair avenue fruit dealer.

Manlovitz, who will operate both stores, assumed possession of the Maley business yesterday, but will not open the establishment until August 7.

Maley has been owner of the Dresden avenue store for 14 years. Prior to that he was associated for many years with Geon Brothers' grocery in Sixth street. He has not announced his plans for the future.

THREE JUDGMENTS IN CITY COURT

The Beers-Hanks Motor company was awarded judgment in three civil suits heard by Municipal Judge Hanley today.

Judgment for $85, alleged to be due on a note, was returned against Bradley Burns, 1175 Erie street; $36.84 against Francis Crawford, 129 West Third street, and $32 against B. L. Wright, 503 Railroad street.

The suit against Daniel and Viola Jones, 397 West Eighth street, also brought by the Beers-Hanks Motor company, was settled out of court.

COPPER ON JOB

White House Police Keep Check on "Respects."

WASHINGTON.—Shake, brother! (Or sister). How many times has Calvin Coolidge been forced to say this at least figuratively since his first began to hold down his White House job?

Official figures, as read off the automatic counter in the hand of the copper at the exit to the Executive offices, coupled with conservative estimates of out-of-town receptions, place the total in round numbers at 150,000 in the thirty-four months up to June 1, 1926, that Mr. Coolidge has been president.

Keep Careful Check.

The White House police keep a careful check on the number of "respects" that pass through the Executive Office daily. (A "respect" is a person who comes to the White House armed with a written request from his senator or congressman asking an audience with the president.)

From August 3, 1923 to June 1, 1926, there have been of those—coupled with the annual New Year's diplomatic, cabinet, judicial, congressional and army and navy receptions—exactly 128,009.

In addition, there have been three garden parties for disabled soldiers in the vicinity of Washington, each averaging about 1,500.

Then, the president has an average of at least ten visitors a day who come by appointment and do not have to leave by the door where the policeman and his counter stand. Thus, most conservatively, another 10,000 are added.

Out of Town.

While out of town on speaking engagements, Mr. Coolidge has shaken at least 5,000 hands. Above this figure, on Vermont Day, 1924, while visiting Plymouth, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge received over 2,000 natives of the state.

And thus, with these figures, the mean total of 150,000 is reached.

Taking the White House "respects" figure of 128,009 alone, the president receives an average of 3,765 of his constituents every month, or 125 a day. But taking into consideration the fact that, on vacations and speaking engagements, he has ben out of Washington for about four months of the thirty four, the average runs still higher.

Visitors Watched.

The effect of receiving any considerable number of persons is most apparent when Mrs. Coolidge also is in the receiving line. She will start wearing elbow-length white kid gloves When the last person has passed by, her right glove will be black with grime and several seams will be split.

Neither the president nor Mrs. Coolidge use a single expression of greeting. Rather, they have a number—such as "How are you?," "Glad to see you," "A pleasure, I'm sure, etc,"—which they rotate mechanically.

Every visitor must run a gauntlet of watchful secret service men. No packages may be carried, no hand may be bandaged or concealed in pocket, for McKinley was assassinated with a gun wrapped in what apparently was a bandage.

FAMILY PEW, LIKE HORSE CAR, IS OUT OF DATE, SAYS MINISTER

BOSTON—Like the horse-car, dragging skirts and side-whiskers, the family pew in the average church is all out of date today, according to the Rev. Dr. Phillips E. Osgood, rector of St. Mark's church at Minneapolis.

And family worship has become virtually impossible under traditional forms of arrangement of Sunday services, Rev. Osgood told the clergy attending the Episcopal conference for church work here.

Failure to adapt the service of the church to the needs of a modern congregation, he declared, is one of the great mistakes made today in houses of worship, especially in those parishes whose constituents come from widely scattered districts.

"Under such circumstances, it is quite impossible with the old system of holding church either in the morning or afternoon, to develop the old idea of family worship in church," he said. "The family pew has gone quite out of date."

His views created considerable discussion among the assembled clergy, some approving, others disapproving.

Miss Ethel Langton, the 15-year-old daughter of the keeper of a lighthouse on the Isle of Wight, has been awarded a bronze medal for her courage in keeping the lights working for three days during a gale. Her father and mother had gone ashore for supplies and the storm prevented them from getting back. The girl kept everything in order, although she had nothing to eat but half a loaf of bread, thereby saving many ships and men from disaster.

Actually Reduces the Swelling — Soft Corns Dry Right Up and Can Be Picked Off.

Mathews Med. Store and J. D. Holloway Say Emerald Oil Must Give Complete Satisfaction or Money Cheerfully Refunded.

Get a two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) today. Every well stocked drug store has this, with the distinct understanding that your money will be cheerfully returned if it does not reduce the inflammation, soreness and pain much quicker than any remedy you ever used.

Your bunions may be so swollen and inflamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture and pray for quick relief. What's to be done?

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes all the pain and soreness disappear. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And as for Soft Corns a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with pads, shields, or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn. Something that will end your foot troubles forever.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

Mathews' Medicine Store and J. D. Holloway and every good druggist guarantees Moone's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.

CHICAGO'S LAKE FRONT FISHERMAN, CALLED WORLD'S STRANGEST HERMIT

CHICAGO.—The world's strangest hermit has been found, in the heart of Chicago!

In a little rock-sheltered cave on the shore of Lake Michigan, within a stone's throw of the Field Museum, Otto the minnow fisher, dwells in peace, comfort and happiness.

Otto, 54, a native of Germany, hasn't any relatives, and few friends, he says. For eight years his only home has been the little nook on the lake front, and he doesn't encourage more than a casual acquaintanceship from any one.

Fishing tackle forms his interior decorative scheme. A frying pan and a coffee pot; a gasoline stove and a few pots and dishes are all he has and "all I need."

"I've seen a couple of picture shows," Otto admitted. "But I like scenery, and,"—his arm swept significantly,— "where is there any better scenery than that? A wide circle, including the lake, Grant park, Field Museum, and the ever-changing Michigan boulevard skyline.

"That," and he pointed to the busy boulevard, streaming with life "that's the blamedest, nicest view there is anywhere. During the week nights, with the lights on, I crawl into my cave and go to sleep.

"When the sun comes up, I'm awake. I make enough money to live on selling minnows to fishermen. And what could be better than that for me?"

Dancing in bathing suits is being frowned upon, perhaps because they they are too warm for such strenuous exercise.—Canton News.

Once, a "party" was where children went and acted like grown-ups. Now, it's where grown-ups go and act like children.—Zanesville Signal.

When the eye does not see, the heart does not grieve.

President's Son Calls on Daughter of Conn. Governor

Romance loving tongues have been set awag by the frequent visits of John Coolidge, son of the President, to the home of Jean Trumbull, daughter of the Governor of Connecticut. Miss Trumbull, above.

Activity in building in Denmark this summer has reduced the number of unemployed there.

SIGNS OF BYGONE DAYS ARE SEEN AS ST. LOUIS DISCARDS BEER VATS

ST. LOUIS — Reminiscences of bygone days can be seen along the shores of the Mississippi river, where stretching out for considerable distance on the water-front are stored 165 large beer tanks, glass-enameled inside and 10 feet in diameter.

The tanks bear mute evidence of the extent to which the advent of prohibition has injured the brewery business. Thirsty mathematicians, who occasionally wander down by the river to look with longing eyes on the once valuable vessels have figured out that the tanks were capable of holding and did contain at one time 3,950,000 gallons or 31,600,000 drinks of beer.

The equipment, which once was a vital part of the Anheuser-Busch, Inc., breweries, represented an original investment of $500,000. Due, however, to the slump in their popularity and legality, they were sold recently as junk for a price that is said to have been less than 10 per cent of what they cost.

When the Volstead spirit first cast its shadows over the brewery properties, the owners tried vainly to sell them to oil companies, dairies and numerous other concerns using tanks. Finally, when a purchaser could not readily be found, the equipment was sold for junk at only a small fraction of their worth and stored along the river when the brewery's stock house was rented out to a furniture company.

The German commission houses' practice of buying toys in other countries, stamping them "Made in Germany" and reselling them in foreign lands, is causing a protest from competing toy-producing countries.

Because of the great economic development of the Sudan that territory is becoming a separate business field from that of Egypt, according to recent announcements by the Sudan Chamber of Commerce.

German Court Blames Republic for Inflation In Course of Trial

MANNHEIM.—That the Republic was responsible for the inflation has been publicly established by a civil court here in a trial against the national socialist leader Ferdinand Orth.

Orth had to face trial on the charge of offence against the Republic which he allegedly had given in a speech denouncing the Republic as a "profiteers' republic, which deserves to be hanged at the lamp post, for she has robbed widows and orphans of their money.

The court acquitted Orth following the argument of the counsel for defense. In his speech the counsel asserted that the government, in cooperation with the Reichsbank, wilfully brought about inflation.

CLEAR VISION AND COMFORT
GLASSES ARE IMPORTANT

Do you remember Theodore Roosevelt's story of how he discovered when he was thirteen years old that he could not see well?

He complained to his father, who provided glasses.

In his "Autobiography," published by Macmillan, he wrote:

"I had no idea how beautiful the world was until I got those spectacles.

"I had been a clumsy and awkward little boy, and while much of my clumsiness and awkwardness was doubtless due to general characteristics, a good deal of it was due to the fact that I could not see and yet was wholly ignorant that I was not seeing.

"The recollection of this experience gives me a keen sympathy with those who are trying in our public schools and elsewhere to remove the physical causes of deficiency in children, who are often unjustly blamed for being obstinate or unambitious, or mentally stupid."

T. R. was not unique in his defects. Examinations by the American Red Cross nurses in Pennsylvania schools showed that one child in every six or seven was suffering from a physical defect serious enough to retard normal growth and development.

Watch your own child and let your eye sight specialist examine his eyes. Even so small a thing as a pair of glasses may open a new world for the youngster.

NIGHT STICK BRINGS SPEECH TO SHELL SHOCKED WAR VET

LAWRENCE, MASS.—Life is once again worth living to George Hayden Gibbs, World War veteran.

For Gibbs, shell-shocked, deaf and dumb for nine years, has recovered both hearing and speech.

And the manner in which he recovered his lost senses is described by medical men as an almost unprecedented "miracle."

Gibbs at the age of 19, enlisted in the famous Princess Pat Canadian Regiment. He went overseas with his comrades and was wounded in the terrific fighting at Neufchatelle. Removed to a field hospital he was found to be suffering from shell-shock and ten body wounds. He was unable to hear or speak. Physicians worked in vain to restore his lost senses.

A few days ago Gibbs appeared in Lawrence and secured a position as a watchman for Herrick Aiken, guarding a building that was being moved from Pine Street to Chestnut street.

But life in the building was lonely and early one morning the war veteran fell into a sound sleep.

Patrolman Henry Roche, making his rounds, discovered him there.

In belief that Gibbs was just a "tramp", the officer entered the building, played a flashlight on the sleeping veteran, and tapped the soles of his shoes with a night-stick.

Gibbs leaped to his feet, startled. He identified himself to the patrolman and the latter walked to the door, opened it and went out. As the patrolman passed through the door it slammed shut. Gibbs heard the noise. He sat down for a minute and said, referring to the officer, "Damn him."

Discovery that he could both hear and speak was too much for the shattered nerves of the veteran and he cried himself to sleep with joy.

Four brothers and a sister of Gibbs were killed during the fighting at Armentiers.

Angora will have a wireless station.

PRAGUE.—Suicide among soldiers and officers of the Czech army have shown a slight increase in the last four years according to a report of the Minister of War. In the year 1922 the percentage was 6.7 for each 10,000 soldiers in the army of about 75,000 men. Next year it reached 8.04 and in 1924 it was 7.32. Last year it was 9.91 which is unaccountable since the army has been inactive.

The suicides in the army are thirty percent greater than for the civil population. Officers represented about twenty percent of the suicides although they are proportionately only about three per cent of the army.

REPORT FILED ON LIVESTOCK

Knox Township Leads in Largest Number of Horses.

There are 6,781 horses in Columbiana county, a record that has surprised not only farmers, who are now in the habit of using tractors and automobiles, but assessors as well. This character of live stock as has been placed on the tax duplicate is valued at $411,980. Knox township holds the high record, there being 673 horses in that township, with Butler township second, there being 556 horses in that district. There are but 86 horses in Liverpool township, the lowest of all township records.

There are 62 of the 89 horses owned in East Liverpool, the high record for corporations, while Rogers corporation holds the low record, with only five horses.

The record shows there to be 19,718 head of cattle in the county, Knox township holding the record with 2,225 head and Butler township in second place with 2,224 head. The valuation of the cattle, taking the figures placed on the stock by the owners has a total valuation of $789,639.

A feature in the report is the fact that there are 256 mules in the county, the valuation being placed at $12,960. Washington township holds the record with 52 mules, while there are only two mules reported in East Liverpool and one each in Salem and Wellsville.

With 10,323 head of sheep in the county, valued at $82,210, Fairfield ownship holds the record with 1,172 head and Hanover township in second place with 1,149 head.

The 5,786 hogs in the county have been valued at $75,370, with Fairfield township leading with 675 head and Knox township in second place with 674 head.

Records show 152,371 head of poultry in the county, valued at $126,400, with Fairfield township leading with 19,806 head, and Rogers corporation in last place with only 20 head of poultry reported.

The complete live stock record of the county is as follows:

Divorce Granted.

A decree of divorce has been granted Harry R. Seibert against his wife, Blanche M. Seibert, by Judge W. H. Spence on the grounds of gross neglect of duty.

The court awarded the custody of the children to the defendant. The award of children is effective when the defendant obtains a suitable home in which to care for them, and in addition Seibert is to pay his wife $10 per week for the support of the children.

Seeks Restraining Order.

A restraining order is sought in a petition filed in common pleas court by Attorney George L. Lafferty, of Lisbon, representing Luke Wainwright against Normal Nichols, Lillie Nichols and the Peoples Savings & Loan company of Lisbon. The petition relates that the plaintiff is the owner of a strip of land in Lisbon upon which are growing fruit and that unless restrained by an order of court the defendants threaten to destroy the fruit.

Judgment Rendered.

Judgment by default for $1,400 has been rendered by Judge Spence in the case of Jane A. DeVeny against Joseph R. DeVeny and others. The court has ordered one of the defendants, H. H. Kirk, as administrator of the estate of Grace P. DeVeny to pay the plaintiff from the interest or distribution share of Joseph R. DeVeny the amount of the judgment.

Alimony Order.

In the case of George B. Wolfgang against Ella Jane Wolfgang, the court has allowed counsel fees for the defendant, which the plaintiff has been ordered to pay within 10 days. Temporary alimony has also been set by the court at $6 per week, this payment to be made by the plaintiff to the defendant beginning August 4.

Woman Given Divorce.

On the grounds of gross neglect of duty, a decree of divorce has been given Marie Kennedy in her action against her husband, Lester Kennedy. Mrs. Kennedy has been restored to her maiden name, Marie Patterson.

Sale Confirmed.

A sale has been confirmed and a deed and distribution ordered by Judge W. H. Spence in the case of the East Palestine Building and Loan Association against Robert Heads and others.

MRS. VERA MORRIS SEEKS DIVORCE

Leroy E. Morris, a painter, residing at 41 Rose street, Salem, has been sued for divorce by his wife, Vera G. Morris, the petition having been filed in common pleas court by Attorney K. L. Cobourn.

The petition relates that the couple were married at Salem August 24, 1922.

Morris is charged with extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty for the last three years. Mrs. Morris declares that she has been compelled to leave her home and return to the home of her father, George Stewart. In addition to seeking a divorce, the plaintiff also asks the court for custody of her children and alimony, and also a temporary restraining order against Morris from interfering with her or her children.

Marriage License.

Joseph P. Nolan, formerly of Kokomo, Ind., but now residing at East Palestine, and Helen Vanyo, of East Palestine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vanyo, obtained a marriage license from Probate Judge Lodge Riddle and were married at Lisbon by Justice M. K. Zimerman.

Restraining Order Issued.

A temporary restraining order has been issued in common pleas court in the case of Vera G. Morris against LeRoy Morris, the order being granted as prayed for in the petition, and without bond.

Sebring

Several Sebring people expect to attend the Pomona grange picnic at the Mahoning county fair grounds at Canfield, Saturday, July 31. In the morning an indoor baseball game between the married and single men will be staged. At noon a basket picnic will be served. A short literary program will be presented, followed by an address by Hon. John T. Brown, member of the house of representatives.

Class No. 3 of the United Presbyterian church met with their teacher, Mrs. L. H. Glass in Beloit recently. The afternoon was spent in playing games. A picnic lunch was served.

But one report on the program of the Salvation Army drive for $500 in Sebring is available. The Saxon China company reports raising $104. According to Ray Cliff, campaign manager, reports from the other shops will be turned in shortly. The drive for funds which began July 15, will close when the quota has been raised.

With an attendance of more than 5,000, the Sebring camp grounds closed its last session Sunday after 10 days of religious meetings in which close to 20,000 people attended. Last Sunday the grounds were so well-filled that it was necessary to park cars out on Johnson's road. Leaders at the camp believe that this is the most successful year the association has enjoyed.

An order for steel helmets for the firemen was placed Friday evening at a meeting in their room in City hall. Money to make the purchase had been donated by the Sebring potteries and business men.

Eastern Star lodge will hold their annual picnic at the Sebring Country club at North Benton Wednesday afternoon and evening. Husbands of the members were guests.

Clarence Hall, Mrs. Agnes Hall, Mrs. Alice Israel and son Donald, left for a motor trip to Michigan, Niagara Falls, New York state and Philadelphia, Pa. They will visit at different places along the way. They expect to be gone a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lincke of Sebring, have left for a visit at Butler, Pa., Mr. Lincke is assistant postmaster.

Miss Ada Clapsaddle, West Ohio avenue, was taken to Alliance City hospital Saturday morning to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. H. A. Ebinger of Wooster has returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank Herman. West Ohio avenue.

Mrs. Edward Heacock of Akron spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs John Carman. Johnson's road.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hazen spent Monday in Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. James Trott announced the birth of a daughter, Sunday, July 25.

Mrs. Anna Hindall has returned home from Cleveland where she visited relatives.

Wilbur Hennon and family spent Sunday visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Mills of Hanoverton.

Mr. and Mrs. E .D. Goodyear of Ravenna, spent Sunday visiting Mrs. E. M. Shaw of Sebring.

Do Thin Folks Know These Facts?

Regardless of age, sex or family history—subnormal weight is dangerous!

Excessive Thinness means Low Vitality—Low Vitality means poor resistance—poor resistance means weakness and inability to fight or ward off sickness and disease. Ask your Doctor.

In addition to these well known truths, is this further fact! Life Insurance Companies refuse to sell Insurance to folks who are "too thin." All the Big Companies are very strict in regard to this ruling. Ask your Doctor why.

If you are five or more pounds under weight, you should start at once to correct your condition. Eat plenty of nourishing food, get as much sleep as possible and take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets every day for at least a month!

McCoy's tablets — containing the world known, body building, flesh producing power of old fashioned, stomach turning Cod Liver Oil—are as easy and pleasant to take as after dinner mints, and you can get them from Mathews Medicine Stores and all good druggists (60 tablets 60c) on an absolute guarantee of money back if regular use for 30 days does not increase your weight at least 5 pounds!

Nearly twenty million McCoy's tablets used last month. Ask your Doctor or Druggist why—then, start their use at once!

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 29.—A brilliant advance in prices of the lead-motor and industrial stocks was the first response of the stock market today to the enormous demand which awaited the resumption of trading on the stock exchange.

General Motors continued to occupy the limelight. Starting with an overnight gain of 2 points, the stock mounted swiftly to 183 in the first half-hour for a new gain of 4 points.

The moderate improvement in the oil stocks continued, with Marland and Mid-Continent leading the advance. Rails were lifeless, as also were the coppers and equipments. Stocks of the mercantile companies were well bought, and utility stocks spurted under the lead of Consolidated Gas.

Commodity markets were steady with wheat and corn inclined to fractionally higher prices.

at the jail about 10 o'clock and immediately went to Mrs. Hall's room. It was generally believed that McCarter would represent Mrs. Hall in the event of a trial. He is one of the most noted criminal lawyers in New Jersey.

Following a lengthy conference with Mrs. Hall, Attorneys McCarter and Augustus Studder emerged from the jail in search of Prosecutor Bergen. They found him on the street and at his invitation accompanied him to his office.

The three lawyers immediately went into a conference.

It was learned that McCarter and Studder were to discuss two phases of the situation with Bergen, to wit:

1—The possibility of an application for a writ of habeas corpus to release Mrs. Hall from custody until the grand jury had acted on the case.

2—An effort on behalf of Mrs. Hall to preclude any possibility of "third-degree" questioning.

Mrs. Hall was arrested and locked in a cell today.

Bodies Found Under Tree.

Since September, 1922, when the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found beneath a crabapple tree on the Phillips farm in New Brunswick, hundreds of officials and private investigators have worked on the case. The arrest early today came as an emphatic official declaration that the new investigation has solved what has been described as "the most baffling crime of the century."

The arrest was made in Mrs. Hall's home at New Brunswick, N. J., on two warrants, each signed by Francis Bergen, prosecutor of Somerset county and countersigned by Justice of the peace William R. Stuphinat, New Brunswick.

At 1:30 this morning commitments were signed for her immediate imprisonment in the Somerville jail. At 2:30 o'clock she was in a cell. Mrs. Carpenter, her cousin, spent the early morning with her.

"Ridiculous," Says Accused.

Mrs. Hall, it was said, was trying to engage Max D. Steuer, the well-known New York lawyer, to defend her at the coming proceedings.

Captain John L. Lamb, of New Jersey state police, accompanied by two Jersey City detectives, rang the bell of the Hall home shortly before midnight last night. Mrs. Hall was asleep but appeared in a few minutes.

"I suspect that you gentlemen want to question me again," Mrs. Hall said.

Captain Lamb explained that he held a warrant calling for her arrest.

"May I be permitted to read this warrant?" Mrs. Hall asked quite calmly.

"This is ridiculous," she said at length. "What are you going to do with me?"

Captain Lamb informed her that he had served the warrant and she was under arrest.

Telephones Her Attorney.

Mrs. Hall then requested permission to telephone her attorney, Russell E. Watson, of New Brunswick. Watson arrived at the Hall residence within a few minutes after receiving the call. Mrs. Hall then packed a small bag and left with the detectives.

The street was dark and no one was abroad. No crowd gathered for this, the most dramatic moment in New Jersey's greatest murder mystery.

Mrs. Hall climbed into the rear seat of one of two waiting automobiles and the cars started for Somerville.

Indications today were that a new grand jury would be called and that the case would be presented to it for action.

Victim Shot Through Head.

Almost four years have elapsed since the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found. Both had been shot through the head. The minister had been shot twice through the back of the head and one bullet had been sent through Mrs. Mills' forehead.

No weapon was found near the bodies and the course of the bullets proved conclusively that it was a case of double murder and not one of murder and suicide. Near the bodies was found a scattered heap of papers, including three notes in the choir-singers' handwriting which indicated that she had ben in love with the minister.

The bodies were found on September 16, 1922, and both had been missing since September 14. Physicians who examined the bodies said that they had been dead at least 36 hours.

Investigators found evidence to indicate that the couple had been murdered elsewhere and had been dragged to the crabapple tree.

Prisoner is Wealthy.

The Rev. Mr. Hall occupied the pulpit of one of the wealthiest and most fashionable churches of New Brunswick, and his wife had considerable money in her own right and was said to have inherited $1,700,000 a few years before her husband was murdered.

Mrs. Mills' husband, James Mills, was in poor circumstances, having been employed to tend the furnace and do other jobs around the church property. Mrs. Mills was a young woman and considered quite pretty. She had lived in New Brunswick all her life and had been in the habit of accompanying Dr. Hall on his visits to the poor and sick.

Later, letters were found in the Mills' home in Dr. Hall's handwriting, couched in endearing terms, indicating that the couple were in the habit of meeting regularly at a place not far from the farm on which their murdered bodies were found. These letters also spoke of a proposed elopement.

KIWANIS NAMES TWO DELEGATES

State Senator Carpenter Speaker at Noon Luncheon.

Secretary Carl E. Gruber and Prof H. F. Laughlin were unanimously elected delegates to the state Kiwanis meeting to be held in Columbus, September 20, 21 and 22, at the weekly luncheon meeting held in Larkins' annex, Market street, at noon today.

Speaker at the meeting was State Senator Harry C. Carpenter, Steubenville. Mr. Carpenter, whose subject was "State Affairs," was introduced by Municipal Judge Jesse C. Hanley.

Proposed visit of the local club to the Clarkson grange next Wednesday evening will be deferred until September, members decided. The meeting was attended by about 55 members and their guests.

Special guests included State Representative Ralph W. Emmons, East Rochester, and County Auditor Elmer Walker, Damascus.

Mr. Carpenter told the history of the state seal, which he declared, was first adopted shortly after Ohio was admitted to the union in 1803. He then cited a few old laws enacted by the legislature. In the list were legislation which exempted churches and distilleries from taxation, another requiring a state bill to obtain a divorce and a third prohibited the racing of horses down hill.

Mr. Carpenter, who was chairman of the senate finance committee at the last session of the legislature, gave a brief report of how the state gets its money and how it is spent. Revenue each year amounts to about $40,000,000 while the expenditures are about the same. Insane asylums, institutions for the feeble minded, reformatories, penitentiaries and other penal institutions, half dozen state colleges and educational institutions, orphanages and homes are maintained from state funds, he said.

anything about this Ritz evidence and testimony."

"George, the Greek" in Jail.

Psialias' action in asking police last night to lock him up to protect him from being "kidnaped" by private detectives wishing to take him to Canton, was "simply a move to escape a grilling on the Mellett murder," Connors said.

"Psialias knows we're closing in on him with evidence this time," Connors declared. "He couldn't flee from Pittsburgh and he was afraid I would arrest him and put him through a grilling.

"He had to plan a way to keep away from me. That's why he and his attorney and his bondsman got together and decided to lift his bond on the old charge of cutting to wound. In that way Psialias went back to jail on the old charge and in the county jail I can't get at him."

Contos In Youngstown.

CANTON, O., July 29.—Upon receiving information that Mike Contos, wanted for questioning in connection with the Don R. Mellett murder was being held in Youngstown, Ora Slater left for that city this afternoon with a "mystery witness."

The witness claimed that Contos resembled a man thought to be linked with the murder.

CANTON, O., July 29.—While father time tolled the remaining hours of liberty left to the slayers of Don R. Mellett, martyred Canton publisher, a representative group of citizens today prepared to demand the "official heads" of certain leaders of investigating agencies.

Among other things the group is expected to demand the permanent resignation of S. A. Lengel, chief of police now under 30 days' suspension, who was the target for editorial bombshells hurled by Mellett into the police department.

The citizens are also expected to demand the resignation of Earl Hexamer, safety director, now acting chief of police. Hexamer, some of the group stated early today, "has not kept all of the promises he made before being named acting chief."

Sleuths in Steubenville.

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 29.—The trial of the Don R. Mellett slayers led investigators into "Bloody Jefferson" county today.

An automobile load of Canton and Pittsburgh detectives is here working on an important clue it was said.

The Mellett investigators have not taken local authorities into their confidence and nothing is known as to their real purpose here. The visitors merely notified local officials they were here and kept their plans to themselves.

bery of the Brunya garage, Lisbon-Salem road, last Friday night, but the suspect denied any knowledge of the crime. He said that he had served 90 days in the Mahoning county jail at Youngstown last fall upon a charge of suspicion, following his arrest in connection with an alleged hold-up job of which he was not guilty.

The Auto Underwriters' Club of Ohio, Columbus, has offered a "suitable reward" for the recovery of the machine Haas was driving. Police found the card carrying a description of the machine sent out by the insurance agency in their files following the man's arrest.

Haas told police that he makes his home with his parents in Youngstown. He said that he has had no steady job for about a year, his last position having been with the Ohio Leather company of Youngstown. The prisoner was remanded to jail and will be taken to Lisbon this afternoon.

VISITING the sandy ruins of Thebes, Volney writes:

"There a people now forgotten discovered, while others were yet barbarians, the elements of the arts and sciences. A race of men now rejected from society for their sable skin and frizzled hair founded on the study of the laws of nature those civil and religious systems which still govern the universe."

You will perhaps reject the conclusions of Volney as to the importance of the early negro intellect. His view is strongly supported. Lucian says of the negroes:

"The Etheopians were the first who invented the science of the stars, and gave names to the planets, not at random and without meaning, but descriptive of the qualities which they conceived them to possess; and it was from them that this art passed, still in an imperfect state, to the Egyptians."

DIODORUS declares that the negroes rightfully believe themselves to be the oldest of nations. He says:

"It is probable that born under the sun's path, its warmth may have ripened them earlier than other men."

The man fit to teach his fellows is far ahead of them in intellect, and it is possible for him in the realness of science and of social questions to play the part assigned to inspired prophets in the religious world, Lamarck, Plato, Aristotle, Goethe, and, above all, the great genius, Charles Fourier, made predictions absolutely accurate, and verifying events have proved their right to respect and veneration as prophets of civilization.

"Man's obstacle is his ignorance which misleads him in the means and deceives him in causes and effects. He will enlighten himself by experience; he will become right by dint of errors; he will grow wise and good because it is his interest so to be.

"Individuals will feel that private happiness is allied to public good. The weak that, instead of dividing them, because equality constitutes their force; the rich that the measure of enjoyment is bounded by the constitution of the organs, and that lassitude follows satiety; the poor that the employment of time and the peace of the heart compose the highest happiness of man. And public opinion, reaching kings on their thrones, will force them to confine themselves to the limits of regular authority."

T. A. Maley Grocery Store is Sold to Samuel Manlovitz

As a result of a deal negotiated yesterday, T. A. Maley, Dresden avenue grocer, sold his business to Samuel Manlovitz, St. Clair avenue fruit dealer.

Manlovitz, who will operate both stores, assumed possession of the Maley business yesterday, but will not open the establishment until August 7.

Maley has been owner of the Dresden avenue store for 14 years. Prior to that he was associated for many years with Geon Brothers' grocery in Sixth street. He has not announced his plans for the future.

THREE JUDGMENTS IN CITY COURT

The Beers-Hanks Motor company was awarded judgment in three civil suits heard by Municipal Judge Hanley today.

Judgment for $85, alleged to be due on a note, was returned against Bradley Burns, 1175 Erie street; $36.84 against Francis Crawford, 129 West Third street, and $32 against B. L. Wright, 503 Railroad street.

The suit against Daniel and Viola Jones, 397 West Eighth street, also brought by the Beers-Hanks Motor company, was settled out of court.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN.

During the latter half of April, Bee's spirit revived, and she drove herself with extraordinary enthusiasm. Day after day she went her job-hunting rounds. Every evening she worked briskly and brightly at the restaurant. To put to use the later nights, she set herself the new task of learning certain Shakespearean roles. Portia was her favorite. She often voiced a pet theory that the long-established custom of using "The Merchant of Venice" as a stellar vehicle for the actor who played Shylock was a monstrosity. "It's Portias play," she would say, "and some day a producer is going to discover that little fact.' She conveyed a measure of her enthusiasm to a studious young actor who had played bits in some of the Village productions, and with him worked earnestly on the casket scene, and also on the balcony scene from "Rome and Juliet."

Louise watched her with interest, even with admiration. The girl was making a fight of it. She wouldn't be beaten. And while it was a question among her friends whether she could ever make real headway, handicapped by her rather small voice and by the lack of a boldly outlined personality—even by her education, many would say, for the stage is a place for the exhibition, in the main, of primitive emotions, to which work the naturally unrestrained sort of nature seems best, or at least most adapted. Still, her fighting spirit inspired confidence. She was the gamest little person, Lou decided, with an affectionate glow, that ever walked on two feet. She knew what she wanted, and went after it with conviction and fervor.

But a blow fell, a small blow. In May business dropped off so sharply at the Peacock Feather that Bee was let go. There would be no more free dinners, and an income of exactly nothing at all. The next morning Louise, over her coffee cup, observed that Bee was dressing for the day, flapperlike, in next to nothing at all—bloomers, a dainty slip, rolled stockings of thin silk in flesh-color, and a scanty, simple little dres. Next appeared the familiar tin make-up box, which had been purchased in considerable girlish excitement on the occasion of her first little role in a Village play, and Bee rather grimly but with a deft hand touched her cheeks withk rouge, strengthened her eyebrows and applied a seldom-used lipstick.

At this, Lou, who had grown preoccupied of late, asked: "What on earth are you up to?"

Bee didn't reply at once, but moved across the room, tried a dance step, pirouetted, and then looked down at herself, smoothing her dress. She knew that her slim little body was prettily made, and hadn't the slightest self-consciousness about it. Without an attractive body a girl couldn't hope to get far in the theater.

"I've got to get something," she finally remarked, "and pretty darn quick."

"Are you out to vamp the managers, child?"

"Not exactly. I figure there's nothing left but the summer revues nad I'm going to get into one of them if I can.'

"Chorus?"

"If it comes to that. Though they often have small speaking parts. I'll take anything. I may not be a Pavlowa, but I could pick up ordinary chorus steps without any trouble."

"You'd look well in tights," mused Lou.

"I'd have to," Bee answered, "if any! Tights, I understand, have rather gone out." She was still in grim mood. "And those hard-boiled gentlemen have got to know that the minute they set eyes on me, or they won't talk business at all." She made a deep courtesy, prettily. "Hence the costume.'

"Well, I don't know why you shouldn't," said Lou, still very thoughful.

"There's a living in it, as a stopgap."

"And a good many different sorts of people turn up in those choruses—though it won't be the same as our Village crowds."

"Certainly not. It'll be Broadway. But look here.' Bee turned on her with more than a touch of heat: 'Do you know how many of our biggoat people have begun in the chorus, women and men both? I could name you twenty. More!"

"I don't doubt it.' Lou rose and put on her hat. "Time to go up to the factory. By the way, I forgot to tell you I ran into Delia yesterday. At noon, uptown. She didn't look well. Rather wan, I thought."

Bee dropped down on the couch, curling her feet under her. "I'd almost forgotten her," she remarked, sobering. "What did she have to say?"

"Well—I got the impression that she did and didn't want to talk. I didn't have much time. Was on my way back from lunch. She did finally ask if I knew where Arthur was."

"You don't mean to say he never even told her before he went?"

"He hasn't gone.'

"But—that's funny!"

"There's been some delay about the expedition. Seems to me they're sailing this week, though. Within the next few days. There was something in the paper a day or so ago."

"But didn't she see that?"

"Arthur's name hasn't appeared. And I doubt if that girl knows much about what's going on in the world. By the way, shes lost her job."

"No." Bee was distressed. "I really should have kept in touch with her. Been pretty much occupied with my own problems. Still, I don't know what I could have done."

"Not a thing. She WOULD go her own way."

"Didn't she say any more? How did she come to lose her job, anyway?"

"She only said—what was it?. . . . Oh, yes—that they cleaned out all Fred's crowd when he left the concern."

"Fred out too? My word!" Bee looked more closely at Louise. It wasn't like that exact mind to forget so striking a bit of news.

"And that's all I know."

"You haven't see Fred again?"

"No." Louise moved to the door, then paused to ask: "Where shall we eat tonight?"

"We may as well go over to the Feather. Everything's friendly enough there."

"All right." The door opened. "I'll be down there about six."

"I must say I'd like to know how —" But the door closed.

MONTE CARLO IN SCREEN HIT

When several members of the studio technical staff and research department had visited the resort, memory alone was not relied upon. More than three hundred photographs, drawings and sketches were obtained from libraries and book-stores the country over, so that every detail of the famous continental rendezvous be constructed as it actually exists.

Featured players in the cast of "The Lucky Lady," which is the first production to be directed by Raoul Walsh since "The Wanderer," are William Collier Jr., Greta Nissen, Lionel Barrymore and Marc MacDermott. The picture is from an original story by Robert E. Sherwood, noted magazine editor and motion picture critic, and Bertram Bloch. It was scenarized by James T. O'Donohue and comes to the Ceramic the last three days of this week.

CHICAGO'S LAKE FRONT FISHERMAN, CALLED WORLD'S STRANGEST HERMIT

CHICAGO.—The world's strangest hermit has been found, in the heart of Chicago!

In a little rock-sheltered cave on the shore of Lake Michigan, within a stone's throw of the Field Museum, Otto the minnow fisher, dwells in peace, comfort and happiness.

Otto, 54, a native of Germany, hasn't any relatives, and few friends, he says. For eight years his only home has been the little nook on the lake front, and he doesn't encourage more than a casual acquaintanceship from any one.

Fishing tackle forms his interior decorative scheme. A frying pan and a coffee pot; a gasoline stove and a few pots and dishes are all he has and "all I need."

"I've seen a couple of picture shows," Otto admitted. "But I like scenery, and,"—his arm swept significantly,— "where is there any better scenery than that? A wide circle, including the lake, Grant park, Field Museum, and the ever-changing Michigan boulevard skyline.

"That," and he pointed to the busy boulevard, streaming with life "that's the blamedest, nicest view there is anywhere. During the week nights, with the lights on, I crawl into my cave and go to sleep.

"When the sun comes up, I'm awake. I make enough money to live on selling minnows to fishermen. And what could be better than that for me?"

Dancing in bathing suits is being frowned upon, perhaps because they they are too warm for such strenuous exercise.—Canton News.

SIGNS OF BYGONE DAYS ARE SEEN AS ST. LOUIS DISCARDS BEER VATS

ST. LOUIS — Reminiscences of bygone days can be seen along the shores of the Mississippi river, where stretching out for considerable distance on the water-front are stored 165 large beer tanks, glass-enameled inside and 10 feet in diameter.

The tanks bear mute evidence of the extent to which the advent of prohibition has injured the brewery business. Thirsty mathematicians, who occasionally wander down by the river to look with longing eyes on the once valuable vessels have figured out that the tanks were capable of holding and did contain at one time 3,950,000 gallons or 31,600,000 drinks of beer.

The equipment, which once was a vital part of the Anheuser-Busch, Inc., breweries, represented an original investment of $500,000. Due, however, to the slump in their popularity and legality, they were sold recently as junk for a price that is said to have been less than 10 per cent of what they cost.

When the Volstead spirit first cast its shadows over the brewery properties, the owners tried vainly to sell them to oil companies, dairies and numerous other concerns using tanks. Finally, when a purchaser could not readily be found, the equipment was sold for junk at only a small fraction of their worth and stored along the river when the brewery's stock house was rented out to a furniture company.

MANNHEIM.—That the Republic was responsible for the inflation has been publicly established by a civil court here in a trial against the national socialist leader Ferdinand Orth.

Orth had to face trial on the charge of offence against the Republic which he allegedly had given in a speech denouncing the Republic as a "profiteers' republic, which deserves to be hanged at the lamp post, for she has robbed widows and orphans of their money.

The court acquitted Orth following the argument of the counsel for defense. In his speech the counsel asserted that the government, in cooperation with the Reichsbank, wilfully brought about inflation.

CLEAR VISION AND COMFORT

GLASSES ARE IMPORTANT

Do you remember Theodore Roosevelt's story of how he discovered when he was thirteen years old that he could not see well?

He complained to his father, who provided glasses.

In his "Autobiography," published by Macmillan, he wrote:

"I had no idea how beautiful the world was until I got those spectacles.

"I had been a clumsy and awkward little boy, and while much of my clumsiness and awkwardness was doubtless due to general characteristics, a good deal of it was due to the fact that I could not see and yet was wholly ignorant that I was not seeing.

"The recollection of this experience gives me a keen sympathy with those who are trying in our public schools and elsewhere to remove the physical causes of deficiency in children, who are often unjustly blamed for being obstinate or unambitious, or mentally stupid."

T. R. was not unique in his defects. Examinations by the American Red Cross nurses in Pennsylvania schools showed that one child in every six or seven was suffering from a physical defect serious enough to retard normal growth and development.

Watch your own child and let your eye sight specialist examine his eyes. Even so small a thing as a pair of glasses may open a new world for the youngster.

DOG WONDER AT AMERICAN

"A Hero of the Big Snows," the new Rin-Tin-Tin picture directed by Herman Raymaker, will open tomorrow at the American theatre. Rinty's mate, Nanette, makes her appearance in this new Warner production, and the cast of humans includes Alice Calhoun, Don Aivarado, Leo Willis and Mary Jane Milliken.

The story, by Ewart Adamson, has the Canadian woods as its locale, and deals with a young wastrel, Ed Nolan, who saves Rin-Tin-Tin from the brutality of a trapper. Rinty strikes up a friendship with a dog belonging to Mary Mallory, a pretty and plucky Canadian girl, and Ed finds the girl a good influence in his unhappy existence.

When Mary's baby sister falls ill and she starts out in a severe snowstorm for the doctor, Rinty aids her, and, in a thrilling fight with a wolf pack, brings the girl safely to her destination.

Rinty had been suspected of injuring the child, but in reality had rescued her from the attack of a wolf. His loyalty and bravery vindicates him of the suspicion, he saves the child, and brings together the two young lovers, after a series of thrilling incidents and encounters.

This is said to be the most exciting as well as most beautiful of Rin-Tin-Tin's pictures, and those who saw him in "Below the Line," "The Clash of the Wolves" and "The Night Cry," his recent Warner production, will realize that he has a high standard of entertainment to surpass.

Knox Township Leads in Largest Number of Horses.

There are 6,781 horses in Columbiana county, a record that has surprised not only farmers, who are now in the habit of using tractors and automobiles, but assessors as well. This character of live stock as has been placed on the tax duplicate is valued at $411,980. Knox township holds the high record, there being 673 horses in that township, with Butler township second, there being 556 horses in that district. There are but 86 horses in Liverpool township, the lowest of all township records.

There are 62 of the 89 horses owned in East Liverpool, the high record for corporations, while Rogers corporation holds the low record, with only five horses.

The record shows there to be 19,710 head of cattle in the county, Knox township holding the record with 2,225 head and Butler township in second place with 2,224 head. The valuation of the cattle, taking the figures placed on the stock by the owners has a total valuation of $789,639.

A feature in the report is the fact that there are 256 mules in the county, the valuation being placed at $12,960. Washington townsnip holds the record with 52 mules, while there are only two mules reported in East Liverpool and one each in Salem and Wellsville.

With 10,323 head of sheep in the county, valued at $82,210, Fairfield ownship holds the record with 1,172 head and Hanover township in second place with 1,149 head.

The 5,786 hogs in the county have been valued at $75,370, with Fairfield township leading with 675 head and Knox township in second place with 674 head.

Records show 152,371 head of poultry in the county, valued at $126,400, with Fairfield township leading with 19,806 head, and Rogers corporation in last place with only 20 head of poultry reported.

The complete live stock record of the county is as follows:

Divorce Granted.

A decree of divorce has been granted Harry R. Seibert against his wife, Blanche M. Seibert, by Judge W. H. Spence on the grounds of gross neglect of duty.

The court awarded the custody of the children to the defendant. The award of children is effective when the defendant obtains a suitable home in which to care for them, and in addition Seibert is to pay his wife $10 per week for the support of the children.

Seeks Restraining Order.

A restraining order is sought in a petition filed in common pleas court by Attorney George L. Lafferty, of Lisbon, representing Luke Wainwright against Normal Nichols, Lillie Nichols and the Peoples Savings & Loan company of Lisbon. The petition relates that the plaintiff is the owner of a strip of land in Lisbon upon which are growing fruit and that unless restrained by an order of court the defendants threaten to destroy the fruit.

Judgment Rendered.

Judgment by default for $1,400 has been rendered by Judge Spence in the case of Jane A. DeVeny against Joseph R. DeVeny and others. The court has ordered one of the defendants, H. H. Kirk, as administrator of the estate of Grace P. DeVeny to pay the plaintiff from the interest or distribution share of Joseph R. DeVeny the amount of the judgment.

Alimony Order.

In the case of George B. Wolfgang against Ella Jane Wolfgang, the court has allowed counsel fees for the defendant, which the plaintiff has been ordered to pay within 10 days. Temporary alimony has also been set by the court at $6 per week, this payment to be made by the plaintiff to the defendant beginning August 4.

Woman Given Divorce.

On the grounds of gross neglect of duty, a decree of divorce has been given Marie Kennedy in her action against her husband, Lester Kennedy. Mrs. Kennedy has been restored to her maiden name, Marie Patterson.

Sale Confirmed.

A sale has been confirmed and a deed and distribution ordered by Judge W. H. Spence in the case of the East Palestine Building and Loan Association against Robert Heads and others.

MRS. VERA MORRIS SEEKS DIVORCE

Leroy E. Morris, a painter, residing at 41 Rose street, Salem, has been sued for divorce by his wife, Vera G. Morris, the petition having been filed in common pleas court by Attorney K. L. Cobourn.

The petition relates that the couple were married at Salem August 24, 1922.

Morris is charged with extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty for the last three years. Mrs. Morris declares that she has been compelled to leave her home and return to the home of her father, George Stewart. In addition to seeking a divorce, the plaintiff also asks the court for custody of her children and alimony, and also a temporary restraining order against Morris from interfering with her or her children.

Marriage License.

Joseph P. Nolan, formerly of Kokomo, Ind., but now residing at East Palestine, and Helen Vanyo, of East Palestine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vanyo, obtained a marriage license from Probate Judge Lodge Riddle and were married at Lisbon by Justice M. K. Zimerman.

Restraining Order Issued.

A temporary restraining order has been issued in common pleas court in the case of Vera G. Morris against LeRoy Morris, the order being granted as prayed for in the petition, and without bond.

Sebring

Several Sebring people expect to attend the Pomona grange picnic at the Mahoning county fair grounds at Canfield, Saturday, July 31. In the morning an indoor baseball game between the married and single men will be staged. At noon a basket picnic will be served. A short literary program will be presented, followed by an address by Hon. John T. Brown, member of the house of representatives.

Class No. 3 of the United Presbyterian church met with their teacher, Mrs. L. H. Glass in Beloit recently. The afternoon was spent in playing games. A picnic lunch was served.

But one report on the program of the Salvation Army drive for $500 in Sebring is available. The Saxon China company reports raising $104. According to Ray Cliff, campaign manager, reports from the other shops will be turned in shortly. The drive for funds which began July 15, will close when the quota has been raised.

With an attendance of more than 5,000, the Sebring camp grounds closed its last session Sunday after 10 days of religious meetings in which close to 20,000 people attended. Last Sunday the grounds were so well-filled that it was necessary to park cars out on Johnson's road. Leaders at the camp believe that this is the most successful year the association has enjoyed.

An order for steel helmets for the firemen was placed Friday evening at a meeting in their room in City hall. Money to make the purchase had been donated by the Sebring potteries and business men.

Eastern Star lodge will hold their annual picnic at the Sebring Country club at North Benton Wednesday afternoon and evening. Husbands of the members were guests.

Clarence Hall, Mrs. Agnes Hall, Mrs. Alice Israel and son Donald, left for a motor trip to Michigan, Niagara Falls, New York state and Philadelphia, Pa. They will visit at different places along the way. They expect to be gone a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lincke of Sebring, have left for a visit at Butler, Pa., Mr. Lincke is assistant postmaster.

Miss Ada Clapsaddle, West Ohio avenue, was taken to Alliance City hospital Saturday morning to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. H. A. Ebinger of Wooster has returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank Herman, West Ohio avenue.

Mrs. Edward Heacock of Akron spent Sunday with her daughter, Mrs John Carman, Johnson's road.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hazen spent Monday in Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. James Trott announced the birth of a daughter, Sunday, July 25.

Mrs. Anna Hindall has returned home from Cleveland where she visited relatives.

Wilbur Hennon and family spent Sunday visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Mills of Hanoverton.

Mr. and Mrs. E .D. Goodyear of Ravenna, spent Sunday visiting Mrs. E. M. Shaw of Sebring.

Columbiana

At the Monday evening meeting of the Columbiana Rotary club, Mr. Schwartz, of the U. S. department of agriculture, gave an interesting talk on his work, which is the eradication of the common barberry. For the past week Mr. Schwartz, with three assistants, has been covering Fairfield township and has found many of these bushes, which have been destroyed. He described the bush and compared it with the Japanese barberry, which is the kind now used generally for shrubbery. Mr. Schwartz and his men left for East Palestine, from which center they will cover Unity and Middleton townships. Chairman Charles McKean, of the committee on arrangements, announced that Lake Placentia had been secured for August 11 for the Rotary picnic.

The annual reunion of the Holloway and Seacrist families will be held Saturday, August 14, at Stafford's grove, North Lima. Do Thin Folks Know These Facts?

Regardless of age, sex or family history—subnormal weight is dangerous!

Excessive Thinness means Low Vitality—Low Vitality means poor resistance—poor resistance means weakness and inability to fight or ward off sickness and disease. Ask your Doctor.

In addition to these well known truths, is this further fact! Life Insurance Companies refuse to sell Insurance to folks who are "too thin." All the Big Companies are very strict in regard to this ruling. Ask your Doctor why.

If you are five or more pounds under weight, you should start at once to correct your condition. Eat plenty of nourishing food, get as much sleep as possible and take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets every day for at least a month!

McCoy's tablets — containing the world known, body building, flesh producing power of old fashioned, stomach turning Cod Liver Oil—are as easy and pleasant to take as after dinner mints, and you can get them from Mathews Medicine Stores and all good druggists (60 tablets 60c) on an absolute guarantee of money back if regular use for 30 days does not increase your weight at least 5 pounds!

Nearly twenty million McCoy's tablets used last month. Ask your Doctor or Druggist why —then, start their use at once!

"CHANGED MIND—WOMAN'S PRIVILEGE NOT MARRYING ANYONE," SAYS PEGGY

Peggy Hopkins Joyce, above, is not going to marry Stanford Comstock, inset, latest of the amiable and distinguished line of Peggy Hopkins Joyce husbands and fiances. In a wireless from the ship on which she is now en route to Europe, Miss Joyce says, "Changed my mind—woman's privilege —not marrying anyone.' . . . That's that, until next time.

FISHING LAWS BEING ENFORCED

Deputy state fish and game wardens have been busy during the past month rounding up violators of the state fishing laws. Number of arrests have been made in the lower counties in which the accused were handed fines.

Several deputies working out of Charleston make regular visits to the Panhandle district, including Hancock county. Receipts for hunting and fishing licenses will probably set a new high record this year, according to reports made by the commission.

Teaching Quotas Filled.

Hancock county school districts will begin the term in September with full quotas of teachers. Majority of the teachers of last year were re-engaged prior to leaving for their homes.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

LAUGHLIN WILL PLAY LEAGUERS

Annual outing of the employes and officials of the Homer Laughlin China company will be featured by a baseball game between the Laughlin team of the Industrial league and the fast Youngstown club of the O. & P. league.

This contest was arranged by the committee after negotiations with Manager Reisinger, of the Youngstown tossers. It has not been determined as yet whether or not the contest will be staged in the morning or afternoon.

Face Hard Games.

Homer Laughlin China team is scheduled to meet Victory Motors tonight at Klondyke, while tomorrow evening Sol McCoy's squad will tackle Turk-Nash at Patterson field.

Plan to Attend Dance.

Number of local young people plan to attend the dance tomorrow night at Mineral Springs. These affairs are attracting large crowds from various sections of the county.

COUNTY VOTING LISTS APPROVED

Hancock county voting lists were passed on and approved at a meeting of the county court held today at New Cumberland. During the past 10 days a number of additional names from the various districts have been placed on the books.

Grant district, with the heaviest registration in the county, is expected to poll a heavy vote at the primaries next Tuesday.

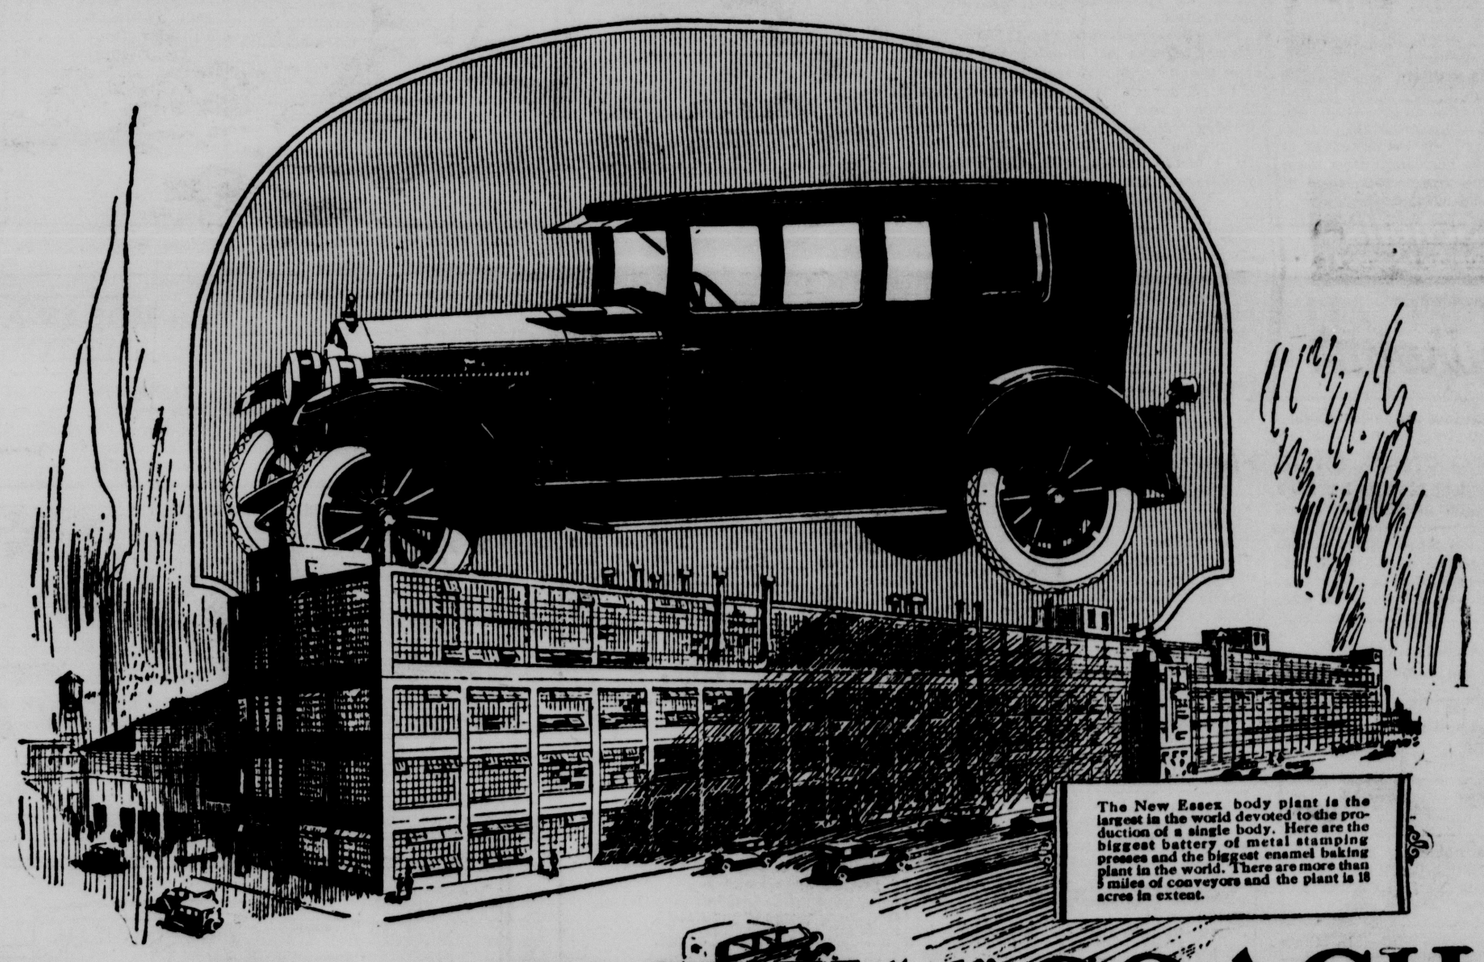
We Built a $10,000,000 Body Plant to Make This New Essex Possible



The New Essex body plant is the largest in the world devoted to the production of a single body. Here are the biggest battery of metal stamping presses and the biggest enamel baking plant in the world. There are more than 5 miles of conveyors and the plant is 18 acres in extent.

The New ESSEX "6" COACH

With All-Steel, Bolted and Riveted Clear Vision Body

$795

F. O. B. Detroit, Plus War Excise Tax

$858

"At Your Door"

Standard equipment includes: Automatic Windshield Cleaner, Rear View Mirror, Transmission Lock (built-in), Radiator Shutters, Moto-Meter, Combination Stop and Tail Light.

Many of these advantages you will recognize at a glance. But you will have a higher appreciation of their meaning when you know that a plant of 18 acres which, with equipment, approximated a cost of $10,000,000, was first built and that special machinery had to be designed, to make possible this New Coach now on display.

Again Essex "6" offers in the design and construction of the New Coach as radical an improvement as was the original Coach itself.

It is all steel, bolted and riveted, and so rigid that squeaks, rattles and distortions, are as unlikely as in a steel building. Doors are so hung that a man may hang on an open door while the car is being driven over rough roads, without springing it out of true.

And it is so designed and constructed as to permit the use in a totally new manner of a high baked enamel, most lustrous and lasting finish. This has made possible new combinations in finish that will please your eye.

There has been constant improvement in the chassis from the first Essex shipped. Every week has seen some betterment. But only by the accumulation of the resources, the information, experience, and the skill that have resulted from the purchase of 350,000 Essex "Sixes" in a short period of time, was it possible to erect the plants, to perfect the machinery, to create the designs that have resulted in this car which we ask you to inspect and to drive as the best looking, best value, best Essex ever built.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN.

During the latter half of April, Bee's spirit revived, and she drove herself with extraordinary enthusiasm. Day after day she went her job-hunting rounds. Every evening she worked briskly and brightly at the restaurant. To put to use the later nights, she set herself the new task of learning certain Shakespearean roles. Portia was her favorite. She often voiced a pet theory that the long-established custom of using "The Merchant of Venice" as a stellar vehicle for the actor who played Shylock was a monstrosity. "It's Portias play," she would say, "and some day a producer is going to discover that little fact.' She conveyed a measure of her enthusiasm to a studious young actor who had played bits in some of the Village productions, and with him worked earnestly on the casket scene, and also on the balcony scene from "Rome and Juliet."

Louise watched her with interest, even with admiration. The girl was making a fight of it. She wouldn't be beaten. And while it was a question among her friends whether she could ever make real headway, handicapped by her rather small voice and by the lack of a boldly outlined personality—even by her education, many would say, for the stage is a place for the exhibition, in the main, of primitive emotions, to which work the naturally unrestrained sort of nature seems best, or at least most adapted. Still, her fighting spirit inspired confidence. She was the gamest little person, Lou decided, with an affectionate glow, that ever walked on two feet. She knew what she wanted, and went after it with conviction and fervor.

But a blow fell, a small blow. In May business dropped off so sharply at the Peacock Feather that Bee was let go. There would be no more free dinners, and an income of exactly nothing at all. The next morning Louise, over her coffee cup, observed that Bee was dressing for the day, flapperlike, in next to nothing at all—bloomers, a dainty slip, rolled stockings of thin silk in flesh-color, and a scanty, simple little dres. Next appeared the familiar tin make-up box, which had been purchased in considerable girlish excitement on the occasion of her first little role in a Village play, and Bee rather grimly but with a deft hand touched her cheeks withk rouge, strengthened her eyebrows and applied a seldom-used lipstick.

At this, Lou, who had grown preoccupied of late, asked: "What on earth are you up to?"

Bee didn't reply at once, but moved across the room, tried a dance step, pirouetted, and then looked down at herself, smoothing her dress. She knew that her slim little body was prettily made, and hadn't the slightest self-consciousness about it. Without an attractive body a girl couldn't hope to get far in the theater.

"Are you out to vamp the managers, child?"

"Chorus?"

"If it comes to that. Though they often have small speaking parts. I'll take anything. I may not be a Pavlowa, but I could pick up ordinary chorus steps without any trouble."

"You'd look well in tights," mused Lou.

"I'd have to," Bee answered, "if any! Tights, I understand, have rather gone out." She was still in grim mood. "And those hard-boiled gentlemen have got to know that the minute they set eyes on me, or they won't talk business at all." She made a deep courtesy, prettily. "Hence the costume.'

"Well, I don't know why you shouldn't," said Lou, still very thoughful.

"There's a living in it, as a stopgap."

"And a good many different sorts of people turn up in those choruses—though it won't be the same as our Village crowds."

"Certainly not. It'll be Broadway. But look here.' Bee turned on her with more than a touch of heat: 'Do you know how many of our biggest people have begun in the chorus, women and men both? I could name you twenty. More!"

"I don't doubt it.' Lou rose and put on her hat. "Time to go up to the factory. By the way, I forgot to tell you I ran into Delia yesterday. At noon, uptown. She didn't look well. Rather wan, I thought."

Bee dropped down on the couch, curling her feet under her. "I'd almost forgotten her," she remarked, sobering. "What did she have to say?"

"Well—I got the impression that she did and didn't want to talk. I didn't have much time. Was on my way back from lunch. She did finally ask if I knew where Arthur was."

"You don't mean to say he never even told her before he went?"

"He hasn't gone.'

"But—that's funny!"

"There's been some delay about the expedition. Seems to me they're sailing this week, though. Within the next few days. There was something in the paper a day or so ago."

"But didn't she see that?"

"Arthur's name hasn't appeared. And I doubt if that girl knows much about what's going on in the world. By the way, shes lost her job."

"No." Bee was distressed. "I really should have kept in touch with her. Been pretty much occupied with my own problems. Still, I don't know what I could have done."

"Not a thing. She WOULD go her own way."

"Didn't she say any more? How did she come to lose her job, anyway?"

"She only said—what was it?. . . . Oh, yes—that they cleaned out all Fred's crowd when he left the concern."

"Fred out too? My word!" Bee looked more closely at Louise. It wasn't like that exact mind to forget so striking a bit of news.

"And that's all I know."

"You haven't see Fred again?"

"No." Louise moved to the door, then paused to ask: "Where shall we eat tonight?"

"We may as well go over to the Feather. Everything's friendly enough there."

"All right." The door opened. "I'll be down there about six."

"I must say I'd like to know how —" But the door closed.

MONTE CARLO IN SCREEN HIT

When several members of the studio technical staff and research department had visited the resort, memory alone was not relied upon. More than three hundred photographs, drawings and sketches were obtained from libraries and book-stores the country over, so that every detail of the famous continental rendezvous be constructed as it actually exists.

Featured players in the cast of "The Lucky Lady," which is the first production to be directed by Raoul Walsh since "The Wanderer," are William Collier Jr., Greta Nissen, Lionel Barrymore and Marc MacDermott. The picture is from an original story by Robert E. Sherwood, noted magazine editor and motion picture critic, and Bertram Bloch. It was scenarized by James T. O'Donohue and comes to the Ceramic the last three days of this week.

Sonny Deshler Leads League Hurlers In First Half Season

Hits Peak Form in Pitching Auto Outfit to Place Among Leaders on Opening Lap; Mike Cebula, Chester, Sets Pace in Strikeouts.

"SONNY" Deshler led City Industrial league pitchers during the first half of the season with an average of .833, according to figures announced by T. T. Jones, official statistician of the loop.

The southpaw hurler of the Turk-Nash club shot them over in great style for the auto outfit during the entire initial half and results of games thus far in the final period indicate he has gotten away to a good start on the concluding lap.

Digman, of Laughlin, who severed connections with the city loop after the play-off contest with Chester, was close on Deshler's heels for slab honors. He figured in more games than "Sonny" did and wound up with an average of .800.

Wilde, Chester high school athletic coach and one of Pilot Riley's big finds of the present season, although pitching in but six games, ranked third with a .750 mark.

Mike Cebula, of Chester, statistics show, was the hardest worked slabber in the loop. Mike shoved the horsehide in 61 and 2-3 innings of 13 games. He also pitched the game of June 15 with K. T. K., and won it, but lost the victory when the contest was officially thrown out and ordered replayed.

Had it been permitted to count Cebula would have finished the half with a record of .700 instead of the .667 which he has.

Mike, however, contributed to the record making feats of the half by turning in the leading strike-out mark. He fanned 63 batters and allowed but 41 hits.

CHANNEL BEATS SWIMMING COP

CAPE GRIS NEZ, July 29.—Olav Farstad, the swimming cop, of Oslo, lost in his attempt to swim the English channel, only after he had been battered by high seas for hours.

Farstad gave up his attempt at 3 o'clock this morning, after having been in the water slightly more than 16 hours.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

The fast-traveling Yankees made it seven straight by nosing out the Browns again, 3 to 2. Shocker outpitched Wingard and the Browns lost all save honor when Bennett fell asleep and was nipped off second base.

Another winning spurt was stretched to five straight when the Braves beat the Cubs in the thirteenth inning, 3 to 2, on a single by Burrus. Bancroft got four hits.

Connie Mack almost collapsed of heart failure as the Indians scalped the A's twice, 5 to 2 and 2 to 0. Uhle and Levsen were the winning pitchers.

Red Faber won a 5 to 2 decision from Reuther, of the Senators, and the White Sox regained fifth place.

The Tigers got only four hits off Ruffing and lost to the Red Sox again, 5 to 4. A balk by Rip Collins let in the winning run.

With the moth holes in their bats still unrepaired, the Giants were whitewashed by the Pirates, 6 to 0. Lee Meadows allowed five hits and six fouls.

Adolf Luque tamed the Robins so thoroughly that the Red outfielders did not have to make a single putout. McWeeny pitched grade A ball but lost, 4 to 3.

GREYS-HEIMIES PLAY TO 5-5 TIE

The Laughlin Greys and the Heimie All Stars played to a 5-5 deadlock last evening at Newell.

Riser, Laughlin hurler, permitted eight hits and fanned seven. English was touched for 11 bingles and breezed five batters.

Wyant, Heimies' center fielder, contributed the sensations in the outgarden. F. Williams, of the Greys, added a few thrills when he stole home in the seventh with the run that tied the count.

The two clubs will play again on Monday night.

BULGERS BOW TO RESERVES

Chester Club Cops 2-0 Decision at Smith Field.

The Chester Reserves won their fifth straight game last night, beating Bulger Drugs, 2 to 0, at Smith Field, Chester.

The contest developed into a pitchers' battle between Zorzie, of Chester, and "Doc" Kinsey of the Drugs. Each had 10 strikeouts to his credit. The West Virginians, however, punched out three hits while Zorzie gave the Drugs one.

Wobbly support accorded Kinsey put the game on ice for the Reserves, no fewer than six errors being made by the pill rollers' infield.

Chester scored one in the first when Moore reached first on Wurzel's error and went to third on Hendrick's slow grounder to Ferguson and scored when Vorndran dropped Maley's Texas leaguer back of first. Ewing was hit and stole second. He went to third on Langley's roller to Vorndran and scored when Wurzel dropped Hannen's fly.

The Drugs threatened in the third when White got the Ohioans' first and only hit of the game. He was nipped on an attempted steal, however.

The Reserves and Drugs will play later in the season on the Drugs' back yard.

The Reserves will tangle with the Newell Grays at Chester Friday in the second game of a three-tilt series. The Reserves won at Newell last Monday and if Newell should win Friday the play-off will be staged at West End. The Reserves would like to arrange series with the Potters Supply and the K. of C. teams. Morry at 2366-J, is booking manager.

YANKEES PULLING FOR ST. LOUIS TO WIN

'Tell The World,' Says Dempsey, 'I'm Going to Fight-Someone, Somewhere, In September'

"Somebody," Declares Champ, "is Going to Get the Benefit of All My Hard Work."

CAMP VIGIL, near Colorado Springs, Col., July 29.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, gave International News Service the following statement today:

I want the world to know today that I am going to fight somebody, somewhere, sometime in September.

I have been doing all I possibly could in training, knowing I am certain to box again in a few weeks and I am in superb shape.

For the past eight months I have been in almost constant training and someone is going to get the benefit of all my hard work and worry.

I don't know just where I will defend my title, but I hope it is in New York. I wouldn't care about fighting in Chicago, as the law provides for only 10 rounds and I prefer the longer route, affording a chance for a more decisive affair.

I want to go the route with somebody and I am just as sure I can win over a long distance as a shorter one.

This mountain camp is a splendid one and I have done a lot of work here. Three weeks to go, with boxing mostly, will top me off in fine style.

My wind is in fine shape from the drill over the mountain roads and my legs are better than they were five years ago. Yes, and my nose is good and strong, too.

But I want the world to know this—I want to fight. It has been said I don't, but I tell you I do.

I will fight and I can. It's my business and I make my living at it.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON, Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

To launch the back swing by initiating the action with body power is a simple enough matter, but one which might easily be confusing to some players, especially when they first tried it. To do so, all that is required is that in moving the clubhead back from the ball you begin the entire action by starting through the hips and moving the body over until you feel you are directly on top of your right leg. Meantime the club has rather dragged along the ground, about even with the hands. This initial movement of the body will call the shoulders immediately into action and, following them, will be the arms. This brings about a thoroughly co-ordinated movement of the club into the back swing. The body, having started things, will remain anchored on the right leg, which stiffens to hold it.

J. M.-A. A. WELLS REACH FINALS

Will Fight it Out for Hall Memorial Trophy.

NOTHING short of a miracle or catastrophe can keep the Hall Memorial trophy from going where a lot of other good trophies have gone —into the hands of Joe M. Wells, former state champ and the best bet in the annual tourney which comes to a close Saturday at the Country club.

Joe will fight it out for the trophy with A. A. Wells, a brother, and a worthy opponent, in the final match in the first division.

Joe Wells defeated Edwin Wells, Jr., 2 up in the semi-finals and Arthur won from R. T. Hall, 3 and 2.

The opponent for T. E. Lewis, finalist in the second flight, has not been selected. Lewis reached the last rung by conquering W. J. Weaver, 2 up, and will face either Ross or C. H. Walker, who have not yet played their semi-final match, for the honors in the division.

In the first flight consolations C. C. Ashbaugh won from C. A. Bough by default and E. H. Hall won from G. R. Thomas, 3 and 2.

In the consolation second flight C. C. Pusey finished ahead of Larry Smith, 3 and 2, and Walter Durkee triumphed over T. S. Brush in a battle that went one extra hole for a decision.

But What'll Cards Do With World's Series?

By Ford C. Frick.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 29.—With less than two months to go to the end of the season and their nine and a half game lead showing every sign of perfect health and nourishment, your Yankees finally have allowed themselves the pleasure of a bit of world series conversation.

Which may be a bit premature—but then, as the poets have remarked on previous occasions:

"'Tis better if you love and lose,
"Than if you never love at all."

The thing which brought up the world series talk with the Hugmen was not base hits or opposing strategy or even the Yankee success thus far. It was the St. Louis ball park. A park, incidentally which would drive a deaf mute to eloquent oratory under the circumstances. For the Yankees, be it know, are pulling for the Cardinals to win—or would pull for them if they had some place other thau the present concrete hatbox in which to play their games.

Playing a world series in St. Louis under existing conditions would resemble nothing else in the world so much as a seven handed poker game with a stripped deck and four jokers. Anything could happen and probably would.

Cards Think They'll Win.

The Cardinals believe they will win; all St. Louis is determined they shall win, the majority of fans around the country would like to see them win. But supposing they should win. Can you imagine the consternation when the lord high commissioner of baseball's destiny swings into town, calls upon the mayor, and declares:

"Sir, here's your world series. Now what are you going to do about it."

Probably you've already heard the story of the Irishman who bet ten dollars that he could hold a bull by the horn for five minutes. He did it too, and won the money. But it cost him twenty dollars a moment later to hire three men to help him let go.

However, this is a story of the Yankees and their worries, not a recital of the worries attendant upon Sam Breadon when, and if, the Cardinals win the pennant.

While a considerable western trip still lies ahead of them, the Hugmen are not particularly worried. The first game of the series here proved that the boys have regained the batting eyes which carried them to such heights earlier in the season. And once they start hitting they are a tough outfit to head. Hitting is their sole and only strategy but it works—so long as they hit.

The Phils squelched the Cardinals, 6 to 3, but lost the nightcap, 5 to 4, and flopped back into the cellar.

Hospitals are filled with drivers who didn't care

Every day you read of motor accidents due to faulty, inadequate brakes.

Why? Because the drivers were careless about the brakes—the most important parts of the car. Human life, dollars, time, trouble all depend on those brakes of yours.

Are they in good condition? Will they stop your car quickly, instantly? If not you'd better drive around and let us look them over. They may need a simple adjustment or relining. We'll put on Silver Edge Raybestos and apply it by the Raybestos Method. Then you can feel safe and sure and confident. Better do it today. Tomorrow may be too late!

Beatrice Lillie

Lady Peel

ON the stage Beatrice Lillie is the delightfully talented star of Charlot's Revue, which for two years has so successfully invaded America. In private life she is Lady Peel, wife of Sir Robert Peel, descendant of the great English statesman of the same name in the first half of the nineteenth century.

This is what Lady Peel says about one of her experiences in America:

"When I came to this country I did not know what the popular drink was. Soon after my arrival I was offered a glass of Clicquot Club Pale Dry Ginger Ale. I liked it immediately. It has such a delicate taste and such a jolly sparkle. Between the acts and after the theatre I find it particularly welcome. Clicquot Club is indeed one more thing I like about America."

Two flavors to choose from

YOU can now get Clicquot Club Ginger Ale in two flavors. The new Pale Dry Clicquot is very delicate and subtle in taste. The Golden Clicquot is more gingery, a particularly invigorating drink—for a generation the most popular of all bottled beverages, the nation over. Clicquot Club Ginger Ale, noted for its high quality, also gives more generous quantity and at a very reasonable price. The Clicquot Club Company, Millis, Massachusetts.

DOG WONDER AT AMERICAN

"A Hero of the Big Snows," the new Rin-Tin-Tin picture directed by Herman Raymaker, will open tomorrow at the American theatre. Rinty's mate, Nanette, makes her appearance in this new Warner production, and the cast of humans includes Alice Calhoun, Don Alvarado, Leo Willis and Mary Jane Milliken.

The story, by Ewart Adamson, has the Canadian woods as its locale, and deals with a young wastrel, Ed Nolan, who saves Rin-Tin-Tin from the brutality of a trapper. Rinty strikes up a friendship with a dog belonging to Mary Mallory, a pretty and plucky Canadian girl, and Ed finds the girl a good influence in his unhappy existence.

When Mary's baby sister falls ill and she starts out in a severe snowstorm for the doctor, Rinty aids her, and, in a thrilling fight with a wolf pack, brings the girl safely to her destination.

Rinty had been suspected of injuring the child, but in reality had rescued her from the attack of a wolf. His loyalty and bravery vindicates him of the suspicion, he saves the child, and brings together the two young lovers, after a series of thrilling incidents and encounters.

This is said to be the most exciting as well as most beautiful of Rin-Tin-Tin's pictures, and those who saw him in "Below the Line," "The Clash of the Wolves" and "The Night Cry," his recent Warner production, will realize that he has a high standard of entertainment to surpass.

PRESBYTERIANS TO HOLD MEET

Annual Synod Will be Held in Moundsville October 19-21.

Hancock county clergymen and ministers plan to attend the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of West Virginia and the Synodical society to be held in the First Presbyterian church of Moundsville, October 19-21.

Prominent of the eminent clergy and laymen who will attend is Dr. W. L. Thompson, former president of Ohio State University, Columbus, and moderator of the General Assembly. Dr. Thompson will address the joint meeting of the two bodies on Wednesday, October 20.

Rev. James P. Leyenberger, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, Wheeling as stated, clerk of the West Virginia Synod, is the highest officer in the organization and will address one of the meetings, as will also Dr. Samuel Martin Gibson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who is moderator of the synod.

Miss Anne T. Reid, representing the Foreign Missions, will address the state meeting on that subject. Miss Reid has just returned from the Orient.

The tentative program provides for joint conference of the Synod and the women's organizations, the Synodical society, in the morning with separate sessions of the two organizations in the afternoons. A young people's banquet will likely be featured one of the evenings.

PRIMARY FIGHT NEARING CLOSE

Chief interest in the county primary contest next Tuesday centers in the fight for county clerk and county commissioner on the Republican tickets where both incumbents have opposition.

R. R. Hobbs, of Chester, present clerk, is being opposed for the nomination by James A. Gracie, of Pughtown, while N. W. Ballantyne, seeking renomination for county commissioner, is opposed by M. N. Price. Both are from New Cumberland.

Corporate Communion.

Corporate communion of St. Matthew's parish will be held in the church at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. All communicants are urged to attend.

NOTICE.

The annual meeting of lot owners of Locust Hill cemetery will be held in the First National Bank Bldg., Saturday, July 31st, at 2 p. m. Election of officers will be held.

EXCURSION RATES TO STATE FAIR

Excursion rates on all railroads leading to Wheeling have been granted for the West Virginia state fair, September 4-11, according to information received from C. A. Fox, chairman of the Central Passenger association, Chicago, and C. M. Burt, chairman of the Trunk Line association, New York. The rate will be one and one-half fare for the round trip (minimum fare 25 cents), round trip tickets to be sold from all points outlined, on September 4 to 11, inclusive, with return limit Monday, September 13. The following points are included in the special rate:

Baltimore and Ohio railroad—Buckhannon and all line stations to Tygart Junction and Grafton, Weston and intermediate stations to New Martinsville, via Clarksburg, Fairmont, Morgantown, Pennsboro, Ravenswood, Pittsburgh, St. Clairsville, New Philadelphia, Newark and intermediate stations.

Pennsylvania—From points within a radius of 75 miles of Wheeling and Bridgeport. This including also points from the Ohio River and Western division.

Deaths of Weirton Men Investigated by G. A. Arner.

Coroner George A. Arner, of Chester, conducted inquests yesterday into the deaths of two Weirton men, George Thomas, 37, who was killed Tuesday by a fall of tin while working in the plant of the Weirton Steel company, and Stanley Coskey, 27, who died suddenly Monday night while visiting with friends in New Cumberland.

The former met his death while operating a crane which struck a heavy mass of tin, causing it to topple, burying him under the debris. Verdict of "accidental death" was returned.

Coskey, who recently recovered from an attack of pneumonia, was stricken while dancing. The coroner returned a verdict that death was caused by heart disease.

Thomas leaves a wife and large family in Greece.

Union Services Arranged.

Union services of the congregations of the First Presbyterian, United Presbyterian and First Methodist Episcopal churches will be held Sunday evening in the latter church. Special music will be featured.

Farewell Sermon.

Rev. C. L. McCoy, who recently accepted a call to the Sligo Presbyterian church, Clarion county, will preach his final sermon at 2:30 Sunday afternoon in the Mill Creek Presbyterian church. He will leave for his new charge next week.

Lot Holders to Meet.

Lot holders of Locust Hill cemetery will hold their annual meeting in the First National bank building Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Officers will be elected at this session.

Chester Booked Tonight.

Chester team is booked to meet Knowles, Taylor & Knowles in an Industrial league contest tonight at Columbian park, East Liverpool. Manager Riley will probably pitch Wilde.

Council To Meet.

Council will meet in regular session next Monday evening in the municipal building. Number of matters will be considered at this session.

Many Attend Outing.

More than 600 persons attended the outing yesterday at Rock Springs park under the auspices of a colored organization of Wheeling. Sport program was featured.

Work is Progressing.

Work is steadily progressing on the erection of the new Sacred Heart Catholic church, Fourth street and Indiana avenue. Dedication of the edifice will probably take place next month.

Attending Campmeeting.

Number of Chester residents plan to attend the annual campmeeting which opened today at Hollow Rock. Several families have taken cottages for the period of the meetings.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

What do you need to know? Is there some point about your business or personal life that puzzles you? Is there something you want to know without delay? Submit your question to Frederic J. Haskin, director of our Washington Information Bureau. He is employed to help you. Address your inquiry to the East Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C., and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

Q. What was the first long photoplay? B. B. N.

A. The first long moving picture film was the Great Train Robbery, 800 feet long. Two other early long feature pictures were Cabiria and the Birth of a Nation.

Q. Do the policemen of London carry pistols? T. A. C.

A. The police of London do not carry pistols under ordinary circumstances. The police regulations, 20th of August, 1920, amended 1922 and 1923, mention among the equipment of the metropolitan police handcuffs, a truncheon, whistle and chain. During the recent strike in London, it was suggested that the policemen be armed, but the policy was not adopted.

Q. Do any animals hibernate in the summer time? C. T. A.

A. Such a torpor or stupor in the summer time is called estivation. Some animals do approach this state in summer time, when their food is still plentiful. In dry countries, when moisture and herbage become scarce, many animals estivate.

Q. What instrument is used to furnish music for the Highland Fling in Scotland? M. G.

A. Bagpipes usually play strathspeys for this dance.

Q. What is a herbicide? H. F.

A. This is a general name applied to any substance used to destroy weeds.

Q. What kind of bugs are the largest? L. B. T.

A. Fish killers are the largest of existing bugs, sometimes reaching a length of four inches. They breed and develop in water, but live at least part of the time on land. They swarm about electric lights in such numbers that they are often known as electric light bugs.

owners have piled up demands running into thousands of dollars.

The Indians have made this community ownership stand a court test, and some 20 years ago when a group of tourists from Seattle sallied ashore one night and stole a great 60-foot totem pole which was taken home and erected in Pioneer Square in their home city, the Indians raised a loud protest and finally collected a big bill of damages, which was paid through the Chamber of Commerce of Seattle. This episode dampened the enthusiasm of private collectors.

It seems that a few generations ago the inheritance laws of these tribes worked through the female line, from a chief to his sister's eldest son. It is believed this scheme was originally devised to remove the temptation for sons to murder their fathers, or for some other purpose of avoiding intra-tribal strife. Whatever the purpose, about the time the first white settlements this law began to break down in favor of a complete distribution of property among all direct and collateral heirs, and the chieftains having already in mind the potlatch system of holding great feasts and giving away their wealth during their lifetime, have ceased to leave any great amount of goods to anybody. Thus the totem poles have become practically community property.

H. W. Kieger, ethnologist from the Smithsonian and the National Museum, visited southeastern Alaska this year and toured much of the old totem region. He found old Kassan quite hopeless for any purposes of preservation. On the west coast of Prince of Wales Island is the village of Kowkan, with 50 good totems intact, but it is far from the course of white man's travel and is inhabited and its totems not for sale.

Captain Cook Represented.

Tongas village has some of the unique totems. Three of these have a carved emblem declared by natives to represent Captain Cook, the first white man seen by their ancestors. One pole has a very fair likeness of Abraham Lincoln carved among its bears and eagles and ravens. The natives think probably that the chief who made it had seen a white man, an event worthy of preservation in native history, and had acquired a picture of Lincoln which he copied on his totem. It is also possible that the carver sought to record the purchase of Alaska by the United States, since one earlier totem has been found with what was probably a portrait of the Czar of Russia.

Totem carving stopped soon after the earlier white settlements, and most of the poles date before that time. The events they record are the events in the life of their makers. The tribal emblem of the carver appears at the top, usually an eagle or a bear, then the personal emblem of the owner. His wife's emblem is at the bottom. Members of the family may be commemorated, or events. One chief who gave a great potlatch to a neighboring tribe was disappointed because the neighboring chief was a dissipated wretch who could not afford to respond with a proper feast and gifts. The potlatch donor commemorated this on his totem pole with his symbol, a bear biting the symbol of his neighbor, a whale.

So much history had to be crowded on to one pole that many conventional designs were used for abbreviation. The Indians considered themselves as more or less literally identified with their symbol, a bear, a whale, an eagle, or what not. Thus a bear might be carved on a pole merely as a man's face with the tongue hanging out, or a shark as a face with three slashes on the cheek, symbolizing gill slits.

In a few places, notable in Sitka, which has 16 poles, totem poles have been treated with creosote and paint to preserve them. Otherwise they are probably doomed to early destruction by the elements. The scientists have recorded all that the totems can tell of history and ethnology, and these emblems have helped trace the connection of the coast tribes back to the interior rivers and northward to the Yukon valley, and investigations now under way may lead to evidence that they sprang from the same source as the Eskimo, and that this source goes back into Asia.

The totem poles have told their story, and had they been carved in stone might have rivalled the earlier records of many other races in permanent value and interest. Wood, however, was the natural medium of these coastal tribes, and where desert tribes left records almost for eternity, the coastal peoples carved for but a few generations to read. In a land where it rains almost two days out of three, this writing of primitive history was not destined to last long.

FISHING LAWS BEING ENFORCED

Deputy state fish and game wardens have been busy during the past month rounding up violators of the state fishing laws. Number of arrests have been made in the lower counties in which the accused were handed fines.

Several deputies working out of Charleston make regular visits to the Panhandle district, including Hancock county. Receipts for hunting and fishing licenses will probably set a new high record this year, according to reports made by the commission.

Teaching Quotas Filled.

Hancock county school districts will begin the term in September with full quotas of teachers. Majority of the teachers of last year were re-engaged prior to leaving for their homes.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

LAUGHLIN WILL PLAY LEAGUERS

Annual outing of the employes and officials of the Homer Laughlin China company will be featured by a baseball game between the Laughlin team of the Industrial league and the fast Youngstown club of the O. & P. league.

This contest was arranged by the committee after negotiations with Manager Reisinger, of the Youngstown tossers. It has not been determined as yet whether or not the contest will be staged in the morning or afternoon.

Face Hard Games.

Homer Laughlin China team is scheduled to meet Victory Motors tonight at Klondyke, while tomorrow evening Sol McCoy's squad will tackle Turk-Nash at Patterson field.

Plan to Attend Dance.

Number of local young people plan to attend the dance tomorrow night at Mineral Springs. These affairs are attracting large crowds from various sections of the county.

COUNTY VOTING LISTS APPROVED

Hancock county voting lists were passed on and approved at a meeting of the county court held today at New Cumberland. During the past 10 days a number of additional names from the various districts have been placed on the books.

Grant district, with the heaviest registration in the county, is expected to poll a heavy vote at the primaries next Tuesday.

New Discovery Dissolves Freckles

Gone in 4 Days

Here's a new and inexpensive cream called Flyte that is easy to apply—will not stain—yet after you've used it for four days your freckles are all gone—simply melted away.

Women have waited long for a real freckle remover and now they can obtain it at Carnahan's Drug Stores, C. G. Anderson, J. D. Holloway or any live up-to-date druggist anywhere with the distinct understanding that if it fails your money will be returned.

And after your freckles are gone you'll find that your skin has improved—it will be cleaner, clearer and more youthful looking. Ask for a jar of Flyte.

The New Essex body plant is the largest in the world devoted to the production of a single body. Here are the biggest battery of metal stamping presses and the biggest enamel baking plant in the world. There are more than 5 miles of conveyors and the plant is 18 acres in extent.

"At Your Door"

Standard equipment includes: Automatic Windshield Cleaner, Rear View Mirror, Transmission Lock (built-in), Radiator Shutters, Moto-Meter, Combination Stop and Tail Light.

Many of these advantages you will recognize at a glance. But you will have a higher appreciation of their meaning when you know that a plant of 18 acres which, with equipment, approximated a cost of $10,000,000, was first built and that special machinery had to be designed, to make possible this New Coach now on display.

Again Essex "6" offers in the design and construction of the New Coach as radical an improvement as was the original Coach itself.

It is all steel, bolted and riveted, and so rigid that squeaks, rattles and distortions, are as unlikely as in a steel building. Doors are so hung that a man may hang on an open door while the car is being driven over rough roads, without springing it out of true.

And it is so designed and constructed as to permit the use in a totally new manner of a high baked enamel, most lustrous and lasting finish. This has made possible new combinations in finish that will please your eye.

There has been constant improvement in the chassis from the first Essex shipped. Every week has seen some betterment. But only by the accumulation of the resources, the information, experience, and the skill that have resulted from the purchase of 350,000 Essex "Sixes" in a short period of time, was it possible to erect the plants, to perfect the machinery, to create the designs that have resulted in this car which we ask you to inspect and to drive as the best looking, best value, best Essex ever buil..

Sonny Deshler Leads League Hurlers In First Half Season

Hits Peak Form in Pitching Auto Outfit to Place Among Leaders on Opening Lap; Mike Cebula, Chester, Sets Pace in Strikeouts.

"SONNY" Deshler led City Industrial league pitchers during the first half of the season with an average of .833, according to figures announced by T. T. Jones, official statistician of the loop.

The southpaw hurler of the Turk-Nash club shot them over in great style for the auto outfit during the entire initial half and results of games thus far in the final period indicate he has gotten away to a good start on the concluding lap.

Digman, of Laughlin, who severed connections with the city loop after the play-off contest with Chester, was close on Deshler's heels for slab honors. He figured in more games than "Sonny" did and wound up with an average of .800.

Wilde, Chester high school athletic coach and one of Pilot Riley's big finds of the present season, although pitching in but six games, ranked third with a .750 mark.

Mike Cebula, of Chester, statistics show, was the hardest worked slabber in the loop. Mike shoved the horsehide in 61 and 2-3 innings of 13 games. He also pitched the game of June 15 with K. T. K., and won it, but lost the victory when the contest was officially thrown out and ordered replayed.

Had it been permitted to count Cebula would have finished the half with a record of .700 instead of the .667 which he has.

Mike, however, contributed to the record making feats of the half by turning in the leading strike-out mark. He fanned 63 batters and allowed but 41 hits.

CHANNEL BEATS SWIMMING COP

CAPE GRIS NEZ, July 29.—Olav Farstad, the swimming cop, of Oslo, lost in his attempt to swim the English channel, only after he had been battered by high seas for hours.

Farstad gave up his attempt at 3 o'clock this morning, after having been in the water slightly more than 16 hours.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

The fast-traveling Yankees made it seven straight by nosing out the Browns again, 3 to 2. Shocker outpitched Wingard and the Browns lost all save honor when Bennett fell asleep and was nipped off second base.

Another winning spurt was stretched to five straight when the Braves beat the Cubs in the thirteenth inning, 3 to 2, on a single by Burrus. Bancroft got four hits.

Connie Mack almost collapsed of heart failure as the Indians scalped the A's twice, 5 to 2 and 2 to 0. Uhle and Levsen were the winning pitchers.

Red Faber won a 5 to 2 decision from Reuther, of the Senators, and the White Sox regained fifth place.

The Tigers got only four hits off Ruffing and lost to the Red Sox again, 5 to 4. A balk by Rip Collins let in the winning run.

With the moth holes in their bats still unrepaired, the Giants were whitewashed by the Pirates, 6 to 0. Lee Meadows allowed five hits and six fouls.

Adolf Luque tamed the Robins so thoroughly that the Red outfielders did not have to make a single putout. McWeeny pitched grade A ball but lost, 4 to 3.

GREYS-HEIMIES PLAY TO 5-5 TIE

The Laughlin Greys and the Heimie All Stars played to a 5-5 deadlock last evening at Newell.

Riser, Laughlin hurler, permitted eight hits and fanned seven. English was touched for 11 bingles and breezed five batters.

Wyant, Heimies' center fielder, contributed the sensations in the outgarden. F. Williams, of the Greys, added a few thrills when he stole home in the seventh with the run that tied the count.

The two clubs will play again on Monday night.

BULGERS BOW TO RESERVES

Chester Club Cops 2-0 Decision at Smith Field.

The contest developed into a pitchers' battle between Zorzie, of Chester, and "Doc" Kinsey of the Drugs. Each had 10 strikeouts to his credit. The West Virginians, however, punched out three hits while Zorzie gave the Drugs one.

Wobbly support accorded Kinsey put the game on ice for the Reserves, no fewer than six errors being made by the pill rollers' infield.

Chester scored one in the first when Moore reached first on Wurzel's error and went to third on Hendrick's slow grounder to Ferguson and scored when Vorndran dropped Maley's Texas leaguer back of first. Ewing was hit and stole second. He went to third on Langley's roller to Vorndran and scored when Wurzel dropped Hannen's fly.

The Drugs threatened in the third when White got the Ohioans' first and only hit of the game. He was nipped on an attempted steal, however.

The Reserves and Drugs will play later in the season on the Drugs' back yard.

The Reserves will tangle with the Newell Grays at Chester Friday in the second game of a three-tilt series. The Reserves won at Newell last Monday and if Newell should win Friday the play-off will be staged at West End. The Reserves would like to arrange series with the Potters Supply and the K. of C. teams. Morry at 2366-J, is booking manager.

YANKEES PULLING FOR ST. LOUIS TO WIN

'Tell The World,' Says Dempsey, 'I'm Going to Fight-Someone, Somewhere, In September'

"Somebody," Declares Champ, "is Going to Get the Benefit of All My Hard Work."

CAMP VIGIL, near Colorado Springs, Col., July 29.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, gave International News Service the following statement today:

I want the world to know today that I am going to fight somebody, somewhere, sometime in September.

I have been doing all I possibly could in training, knowing I am certain to box again in a few weeks and I am in superb shape.

For the past eight months I have been in almost constant training and someone is going to get the benefit of all my hard work and worry.

I don't know just where I will defend my title, but I hope it is in New York. I wouldn't care about fighting in Chicago, as the law provides for only 10 rounds and I prefer the longer route, affording a chance for a more decisive affair.

I want to go the route with somebody and I am just as sure I can win over a long distance as a shorter one.

This mountain camp is a splendid one and I have done a lot of work here. Three weeks to go, with boxing mostly, will top me off in fine style.

My wind is in fine shape from the drill over the mountain roads and my legs are better than they were five years ago. Yes, and my nose is good and strong, too.

But I want the world to know this—I want to fight. It has been said I don't, but I tell you I do.

I will fight and I can. It's my business and I make my living at it.

INSIDE Ggolf

By CHESTER HORTON.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

To launch the back swing by initiating the action with body power is a simple enough matter, but one which might easily be confusing to some players, especially when they first tried it. To do so, all that is required is that in moving the clubhead back from the ball you begin the entire action by starting through the hips and moving the body over until you feel you are directly on top of your right leg. Meantime the club has rather dragged along the ground, about even with the hands. This initial movement of the body will call the shoulders immediately into action and, following them, will be the arms. This brings about a thoroughly co-ordinated movement of the club into the back swing. The body, having started things, will remain anchored on the right leg, which stiffens to hold it.

J. M.-A. A. WELLS REACH FINALS

Will Fight it Out for Hall Memorial Trophy.

NOTHING short of a miracle or catastrophe can keep the Hall Memorial trophy from going where a lot of other good trophies have gone—into the hands of Joe M. Wells, former state champ and the best bet in the annual tourney which comes to a close Saturday at the Country club.

Joe will fight it out for the trophy with A. A. Wells, a brother, and a worthy opponent, in the final match in the first division.

Joe Wells defeated Edwin Wells, Jr., 2 up in the semi-finals and Arthur won from R. T. Hall, 3 and 2.

The opponent for T. E. Lewis, finalist in the second flight, has not been selected. Lewis reached the last rung by conquering W. J. Weaver, 2 up, and will face either Ross or C. H. Walker, who have not yet played their semi-final match, for the honors in the division.

In the first flight consolations C. C. Ashbaugh won from C. A. Bough by default and E. H. Hall won from G. R. Thomas, 3 and 2.

In the consolation second flight C. C. Pusey finished ahead of Larry Smith, 3 and 2, and Walter Durkee triumphed over T. S. Brush in a battle that went one extra hole for a decision.

But What'll Cards Do With World's Series?

By Ford C. Frick.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 29.—With less than two months to go to the end of the season and their nine and a half game lead showing every sign of perfect health and nourishment, your Yankees finally have allowed themselves the pleasure of a bit of world series conversation.

Which may be a bit premature—but then, as the poets have remarked on previous occasions:

"'Tis better if you love and lose,
"Than if you never love at all."

The thing which brought up the world series talk with the Hugmen was not base hits or opposing strategy or even the Yankee success thus far. It was the St. Louis ball park. A park, incidentally which would drive a deaf mute to eloquent oratory under the circumstances. For the Yankees, be it know, are pulling for the Cardinals to win—or would pull for them if they had some place other than the present concrete hatbox in which to play their games.

Playing a world series in St. Louis under existing conditions would resemble nothing else in the world so much as a seven handed poker game with a stripped deck and four jokers. Anything could happen and probably would.

Cards Think They'll Win.

The Cardinals believe they will win; all St. Louis is determined they shall win, the majority of fans around the country would like to see them win. But supposing they should win. Can you imagine the consternation when the lord high commissioner of baseball's destiny swings into town, calls upon the mayor, and declares:

"Sir, here's your world series. Now what are you going to do about it."

Probably you've already heard the story of the Irishman who bet ten dollars that he could hold a bull by the horn for five minutes. He did it too, and won the money. But it cost him twenty dollars a moment later to hire three men to help him let go.

However, this is a story of the Yankees and their worries, not a recital of the worries attendant upon Sam Breadon when, and if, the Cardinals win the pennant.

While a considerable western trip still lies ahead of them, the Hugmen are not particularly worried. The first game of the series here proved that the boys have regained the batting eyes which carried them to such heights earlier in the season. And once they start hitting they are a tough outfit to head. Hitting is their sole and only strategy but it works—so long as they hit.

The Phils squelched the Cardinals, 6 to 3, but lost the nightcap, 5 to 4, and flopped back into the cellar.

Hospitals are filled with drivers who didn't care

Every day you read of motor accidents due to faulty, inadequate brakes.

Why? Because the drivers were careless about the brakes—the most important parts of the car. Human life, dollars, time, trouble all depend on those brakes of yours.

Are they in good condition? Will they stop your car quickly, instantly? If not you'd better drive around and let us look them over. They may need a simple adjustment or relining. We'll put on Silver Edge Raybestos and apply it by the Raybestos Method. Then you can feel safe and sure and confident. Better do it today. Tomorrow may be too late!

Beatrice Lillie
Lady Peel

ON the stage Beatrice Lillie is the delightfully talented star of Charlot's Revue, which for two years has so successfully invaded America. In private life she is Lady Peel, wife of Sir Robert Peel, descendant of the great English statesman of the same name in the first half of the nineteenth century.

This is what Lady Peel says about one of her experiences in America:

"When I came to this country I did not know what the popular drink was. Soon after my arrival I was offered a glass of Clicquot Club Pale Dry Ginger Ale. I liked it immediately. It has such a delicate taste and such a jolly sparkle. Between the acts and after the theatre I find it particularly welcome. Clicquot Club is indeed one more thing I like about America."

Two flavors to choose from

YOU can now get Clicquot Club Ginger Ale in two flavors. The new Pale Dry Clicquot is very delicate and subtle in taste. The Golden Clicquot is more gingery, a particularly invigorating drink—for a generation the most popular of all bottled beverages, the nation over. Clicquot Club Ginger Ale, noted for its high quality, also gives more generous quantity and at a very reasonable price. The Clicquot Club Company, Millis, Massachusetts.

PRESBYTERIANS TO HOLD MEET

Annual Synod Will be Held in Moundsville October 19-21.

Hancock county clergymen and ministers plan to attend the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of West Virginia and the Synodical society to be held in the First Presbyterian church of Moundsville, October 19-21.

Prominent of the eminent clergy and laymen who will attend is Dr. W. L. Thompson, former president of Ohio State University, Columbus, and moderator of the General Assembly. Dr. Thompson will address the joint meeting of the two bodies on Wednesday, October 20.

Rev. James P. Leyenberger, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, Wheeling as stated, clerk of the West Virginia Synod, is the highest officer in the organization and will address one of the meetings, as will also Dr. Samuel Martin Gibson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who is moderator of the synod.

Miss Anne T. Reid, representing the Foreign Missions, will address the state meeting on that subject. Miss Reid has just returned from the Orient.

The tentative program provides for joint conference of the Synod and the women's organizations, the Synodical society, in the morning with separate sessions of the two organizations in the afternoons. A young people's banquet will likely be featured one of the evenings.

PRIMARY FIGHT NEARING CLOSE

Chief interest in the county primary contest next Tuesday centers in the fight for county clerk and county commissioner on the Republican tickets where both incumbents have opposition.

R. R. Hobbs, of Chester, present clerk, is being opposed for the nomination by James A. Gracie, of Pughtown, while N. W. Ballantyne, seeking renomination for county commissioner, is opposed by M. N. Price. Both are from New Cumberland.

Corporate Communion.

Corporate communion of St. Matthew's parish will be held in the church at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. All communicants are urged to attend.

NOTICE.

The annual meeting of lot owners of Locust Hill cemetery will be held in the First National Bank Bldg., Saturday, July 31st, at 2 p. m. Election of officers will be held.

SECRETARY.

EXCURSION RATES TO STATE FAIR

Excursion rates on all railroads leading to Wheeling have been granted for the West Virginia state fair, September 4-11, according to information received from C. A. Fox, chairman of the Central Passenger association, Chicago, and C. M. Burt, chairman of the Trunk Line association, New York. The rate will be one and one-half fare for the round trip (minimum fare 25 cents), round trip tickets to be sold from all points outlined, on September 4 to 11, inclusive, with return limit Monday, September 13. The following points are included in the special rate:

Baltimore and Ohio railroad—Buckhannon and all line stations to Tygart Junction and Grafton, Weston and intermediate stations to New Martinsville, via Clarksburg, Fairmont, Morgantown, Pennsboro, Ravenswood, Pittsburgh, St. Clairsville, New Philadelphia, Newark and intermediate stations.

Pennsylvania—From points within a radius of 75 miles of Wheeling and Bridgeport. This including also points from the Ohio River and Western division.

Deaths of Weirton Men Investigated by G. A. Arner.

Coroner George A. Arner, of Chester, conducted inquests yesterday into the deaths of two Weirton men, George Thomas, 37, who was killed Tuesday by a fall of tin while working in the plant of the Weirton Steel company, and Stanley Coskey, 27, who died suddenly Monday night while visiting with friends in New Cumberland.

The former met his death while operating a crane which struck a heavy mass of tin, causing it to topple, burying him under the debris. Verdict of "accidental death" was returned.

Coskey, who recently recovered from an attack of pneumonia, was stricken while dancing. The coroner returned a verdict that death was caused by heart disease.

Thomas leaves a wife and large family in Greece.

Union Services Arranged.

Union services of the congregations of the First Presbyterian, United Presbyterian and First Methodist Episcopal churches will be held Sunday evening in the latter church. Special music will be featured.

Farewell Sermon.

Rev. C. L. McCoy, who recently accepted a call to the Sligo Presbyterian church, Clarion county, will preach his final sermon at 2:30 Sunday afternoon in the Mill Creek Presbyterian church. He will leave for his new charge next week.

Lot Holders to Meet.

Lot holders of Locust Hill cemetery will hold their annual meeting in the First National bank building Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Officers will be elected at this session.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

What do you need to know? Is there some point about your business or personal life that puzzles you? Is there something you want to know without delay? Submit your question to Frederic J. Haskin, director of our Washington Information Bureau. He is employed to help you. Address your inquiry to the East Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C., and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

Q. What was the first long photoplay? B. B. N.

A. The first long moving picture film was the Great Train Robbery, 800 feet long. Two other early long feature pictures were Cabiria and the Birth of a Nation.

Q. Do the policemen of London carry pistols? T. A. C.

A. The police of London do not carry pistols under ordinary circumstances. The police regulations, 20th of August, 1920, amended 1922 and 1923, mention among the equipment of the metropolitan police handcuffs, a truncheon, whistle and chain. During the recent strike in London, it was suggested that the policemen be armed, but the policy was not adopted.

Q. Do any animals hibernate in the summer time? C. T. A.

A. Such a torpor or stupor in the summer time is called estivation. Some animals do approach this state in summer time, when their food is still plentiful. In dry countries, when moisture and herbage become scarce, many animals estivate.

Q. What instrument is used to furnish music for the Highland Fling in Scotland? M. G.

A. Bagpipes usually play stathspeys for this dance.

Q. What is a herbicide? H. F.

A. This is a general name applied to any substance used to destroy weeds.

Q. What kind of bugs are the largest? L. B. T.

A. Fish killers are the largest of existing bugs, sometimes reaching a length of four inches. They breed and develop in water, but live at least part of the time on land. They swarm about electric lights in such numbers that they are often known as electric light bugs.

Chester Booked Tonight.

Chester team is booked to meet Knowles, Taylor & Knowles in an Industrial league contest tonight at Columbian park, East Liverpool. Manager Riley will probably pitch Wilde.

Council To Meet.

Council will meet in regular session next Monday evening in the municipal building. Number of matters will be considered at this session.

Many Attend Outing.

More than 600 persons attended the outing yesterday at Rock Springs park under the auspices of a colored organization of Wheeling. Sport program was featured.

Work is Progressing.

Work is steadily progressing on the erection of the new Sacred Heart Catholic church, Fourth street and Indiana avenue. Dedication of the edifice will probably take place next month.

Attending Campmeeting.

Number of Chester residents plan to attend the annual campmeeting which opened today at Hollow Rock. Several families have taken cottages for the period of the meetings.

Haskin's Letter

owners have piled up demands running into thousands of dollars.

The Indians have made this community ownership stand a court test, and some 20 years ago when a group of tourists from Seattle sallied ashore one night and stole a great 60-foot totem pole which was taken home and erected in Pioneer Square in their home city, the Indians raised a loud protest and finally collected a big bill of damages, which was paid through the Chamber of Commerce of Seattle. This episode dampened the enthusiasm of private collectors.

It seems that a few generations ago the inheritance laws of these tribes worked through the female line, from a chief to his sister's eldest son. It is believed this scheme was originally devised to remove the temptation for sons to murder their fathers, or for some other purpose of avoiding intra-tribal strife. Whatever the purpose, about the time the first white settlements this law began to break down in favor of a complete distribution of property among all direct and collateral heirs, and the chieftains having already in mind the potlatch system of holding great feasts and giving away their wealth during their lifetime, have ceased to leave any great amount of goods to anybody. Thus the totem poles have become practically community property.

H. W. Kieger, ethnologist from the Smithsonian and the National Museum, visited southeastern Alaska this year and toured much of the old totem region. He found old Kassan quite hopeless for any purposes of preservation. On the west coast of Prince of Wales Island is the village of Kowkan, with 50 good totems intact, but it is far from the course of white man's travel and is inhabited and its totems not for sale.

Captain Cook Represented.

Tongas village has some of the unique totems. Three of these have a carved emblem declared by natives to represent Captain Cook, the first white man seen by their ancestors. One pole has a very fair likeness of Abraham Lincoln carved among its bears and eagles and ravens. The natives think probably that the chief who made it had seen a white man, an event worthy of preservation in native history, and had acquired a picture of Lincoln which he copied on his totem. It is also possible that the carver sought to record the purchase of Alaska by the United States, since one earlier totem has been found with what was probably a portrait of the Czar of Russia.

Totem carving stopped soon after the earlier white settlements, and most of the poles date before that time. The events they record are the events in the life of their makers. The tribal emblem of the carver appears at the top, usually an eagle or a bear, then the personal emblem of the owner. His wife's emblem is at the bottom. Members of the family may be commemorated, or events. One chief who gave a great potlatch to a neighboring tribe was disappointed because the neighboring chief was a dissipated wretch who could not afford to respond with a proper feast and gifts. The potlatch donor commemorated this on his totem pole with his symbol, a bear biting the symbol of his neighbor, a whale.

So much history had to be crowded on to one pole that many conventional designs were used for abbreviation. The Indians considered themselves as more or less literally identified with their symbol, a bear, a whale, an eagle, or what not. Thus a bear might be carved on a pole merely as a man's face with the tongue hanging out, or a shark as a face with three slashes on the cheek, symbolizing gill slits.

In a few places, notable in Sitka, which has 16 poles, totem poles have been treated with creosote and paint to preserve them. Otherwise they are probably doomed to early destruction by the elements. The scientists have recorded all that the totems can tell of history and ethnology, and these emblems have helped trace the connection of the coast tribes back to the interior rivers and northward to the Yukon valley, and investigations now under way may lead to evidence that they sprang from the same source as the Eskimo, and that this source goes back into Asia.

The totem poles have told their story, and had they been carved in stone might have rivalled the earlier records of many other races in permanent value and interest. Wood, however, was the natural medium of these coastal tribes, and where desert tribes left records almost for eternity, the coastal peoples carved for but a few generations to read. In a land where it rains almost two days out of three, this writing of primitive history was not destined to last long.

The Book of a Prophet.
"Volney's Ruins of Empires"
It is Sound Philosophy.
Ruins of Thebes.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

WE advise you to read "Volney's Ruins of Empires."

Volney was born in France in 1757. He devoted himself to the study of truth. A small inheritance was devoted to travel, to historical investigation. He was a profound student, an earnest, simple man, a true philosopher. His arguments were sound. The proof of this may be found in the conduct of that distinguished gentleman, Napoleon Bonaparte. Napoleon asked Volney for his frank opinion and got it so truthfully that he kicked the distinguished writer in the stomach, being able to make no other adequate reply. Volney's splendid work, the foundation of much that now passes for original thought, is based upon an earnest desire to fathom the causes of men's success and failure. He says of himself in his famous letter to Dr. Priestley:

"The part which belongs to me is that of a traveler, resting upon the ruins and meditating on the causes of misfortunes of the human race."

THE essence of Volney's l... may be found in two lines at the end of his pamphlet on "The Law of Nature."

"Preserve thyself, instruct thyself, moderate thyself, live for thy fellow-citizens, that they may live for thee."

Could there be more admirable combination of Christianity and sound, benevolent philosophy? It combines the importance of education with the moral beauty of the golden rule.

"Education, moderation, combined with unselfish interests in other men, will indeed accomplish the true work of civilization. For causes of evil, there are two; Ignorance and Cupidity. These are the twin sources of all the torments of man."

THE invocation with which he opens his splendid study of men's minds begins thus:

"Hail, solitary ruins, holy sepulchres and silent walls. You I invoke, to you I address my power. While your aspect averts with secret terror the vulgar regard, it excites in my heart the charm of delicious sentiments, sublime contemplations. What useful lessons, what affecting and profound reflections you suggest to him who knows how to consult you."

"When the whole earth, in chains and silence, bowed the neck before its tyrants, you had already proclaimed the truths which they abhor; and confounding the dust of the king with that of the meanest slave, did announce to man the sacred dogma of equality. Within your pale, in solitary adoration of liberty, I saw her genius arise from the mansion of the dead; not such as she is painted by the impassioned multitude, armed with fire and sword, but under the august aspect of justice, poising in her hand the sacred balance wherein are weighed the actions of men at the gates of eternity."

PITTSBURGH DETECTIVE NAMES TWO GREEKS AS ALLEGED ACCESSORIES

Probe Into Assassination Reveals Weaknesses That May "Nip in Bud" Several Political Careers.

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—Evidence and sworn testimony that should, he said, result in accessory charges against George Psialias and Mike Contos, prominent Greek characters, in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton, O., publisher, were forwarded by Detective Peter Connors here today to Prosecutor McClintock of Stark county, O.

Turns Over Evidence.

The evidence and sworn testimony Connors turned over to the Ohio authorities stated that on June 10, John Ritz, a Somerset county coal miner, was standing before the Hanna employment agency in Second avenue when a large auto bearing an Ohio license drove up and stopped.

Two men were in the car and Ritz has positively identified Psialias as the driver and Mike Contos as the man in the back seat, Connors declared.

Connors said Ritz will swear on the stand that Contos, said to be well known in Youngstown and Canton, offered Ritz and another man $1,500 to go to Canton and "do a job."

"Contos wouldn't tell me what the job would be but said that if I decided to go in on it to go to the Grand hotel in Canton and ask to be directed to 'Jumbo' Crowley who would give me further instructions," Ritz said, according to Connors.

Sleuth Ridicules "Kidnaping" Fear.

Statements attributed to Attorneys for Psialias that private officers were planning to "frame" him and "kidnap" him to Canton were ridiculed by Connors.

"That's all a smoke screen to keep George from getting into my hands," Connors declared. "He's scored, and knows he can't stand up under a real questioning.

"George knows I can produce a witness who will testify under oath that George was driving the car on June 10 when Mike Contos, in the rear seat of the car, offered two men $1,500 to go to Canton and report to 'Jumbo' Crowley for further instructions on a 'job.'"

Ritz became suspicious because of the large remuneration offered for what Contos was said to have described as an "easy job' and never reported to Crowley, Connors declared.

Connors said he had investigated Rit's reputation and was told by everyone that Ritz was truthful and reliable.

"I've done all I can on the case here," Connors said. "Psialias is in jail where the Canton officials can get him anytime they want to.

"Contos was last seen in Youngstown. It's up to the others to get him. I'm wiring Prosecutor McClintock to find out if he intends doing

Drops Dead as He Awaits Hearing on Compensation Claim

COLUMBUS, O., July 29.—While waiting in the offices of the state industrial commission, which was to hear his claim that he had suffered an injury while working for the city of Columbus, resulting in a permanent heart ailment, Howard Viney, colored, 33, dropped dead today. Death was pronounced due to heart disease.

Viney filed a clai mwith the commission which was denied July 15. A hearing was set for today. He collapsed as the commission gathered to hear his petition.

HEALTH BOARD URGES WILLITE ON TWO ALLEYS

Cite Unsanitary Conditions in Diamond and Crook Ways.

COMPLAINT HEARD

Fifty-four Births and 24 Deaths in One Month.

Alleged unsanitary conditions existing in Diamond alley between Market and Washington streets and in Crook alley between Fifth and Sixth streets were condemned by the board of health at a meeting in the clinic rooms, Diamond, last night.

T. V. Milligan, property owner, complained about the condition of the two alleys. He said that a movement had been launched by the property holders to have the two alleys resurfaced with Willite, the city to pay engineering and advertising costs and the remainder of the expense to be borne by the abutting property.

The board decided to urge council to take steps to resurface the alleys.

Complaint against alleged poisonous fumes arising from the F. Q. Mason Chemical plant on lower Broadway filed by residents of the neighborhood with the health board recently, were dismissed last night.

Mason and several others were questioned by the board members said that nothing was manufactured or mixed at the plant serving to kill vegetation as had been charged.

Monthly report of Mrs. Alice Davidson, registrar of vital statistics, showed 54 births—34 males and 20 females—and 24 deaths—seven males and 17 females. In the clinic, seven new cases were admitted, while 153 treatments were given. The only contagious disease was one case of scarlet fever, according to Health Commissioner Fraser's report.

THREE AUTOS STOLEN HERE

Three machines, one of which was recovered, were stolen from their parking places on the down town streets, last night, according to reports to police.

A Chevrolet roadster, belonging to Glenn Gaston, Clarkson, taken from a parking place on Fourth and Washington streets, was found near the Hobbs farm on the Washington school house road, four miles back of Chester, this morning. It had been stripped of tires, battery, tools, lights and other equipment.

YOUTH ADMITS GAS STATION ROBBERY WHEN ARRESTED HERE

Carson Haas Held for Jay Crawford Place Looting.

PLEADS GUILTY

Caught in Stolen Auto by Patrolman Smith.

Pleading guilty to a charge of breaking and entering in connection with the robbery of the Jay Crawford's Lincoln highway filling station, one mile south of West Point, last Sunday night, Carson Haas, 28, Belmont street, Youngstown, was held for action by the Columbiana county grand jury in $2,000 bond by Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today.

Haas was arrested by Patrolman Chester Smith, while sleeping in an automobile parked near the upper end of the old Columbian park race track, East End, at 7:30 o'clock this morning. The car, property of the Risher Car Rental System, of Warren, had been missing since the morning of July 13.

Haas, who admitted having served two years in the reformatory for a box car robbery at Columbiana four years ago, told the police that he came to East Liverpool during the latter part of last week. Last Sunday night, while intoxicated, he said, he removed the bars from one of the windows of the Crawford gas station, smashed the window and made his escape with two tires, about a dozen tubes and other motor accessories, chewing gum, candy, tobacco and cigarettes.

Find Stolen Property.

The tires, five tubes, two Ford timers, three boxes of chocolates, one box of mixed candy, about two dozen packages of chewing gum, a sack of other candy, a box of cigars and part of a carton of cigarettes were found in the car when Haas was arrested.

The prisoner said that he had been sleeping in his car since coming to East Liverpool. When he arrived, according to his story, he had about $10 in cash earned on a road construction job out of Youngstown.

Patrolman Smith was on his way home when he noticed the automobile parked in the field. Haas offered no resistance when the officer placed him under arrest.

Sheriff Questions Suspect.

Miss Mary Rhodes, 62, Resident Here For 52 Years, Dies

Miss Mary E. Rhodes, 62, West Fourth street, died yesterday in the City hospital, after a six weeks' illness of a complication of diseases.

Miss Rhodes, who was born in Australia, was a resident of East Liverpool for 52 years. She was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church and Crystal chapter, No. 18, Order of Eastern Star.

She is survived by one brother, Will A. Rhodes, of Alliance.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Miller funeral home, West Sixth street. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Beauty experts agree that in this lovely face resides something of the charm, the undefinable quality of Mona Lisa—wistful, mysterious, and utterly feminine. All that's very well, but the beauty happens to be Ramon Hinds, a Davenport, Iowa, high school boy, whose feminine impersonations on the amateur stage have won him much gleeful fame.

Eight Bandits Seize Pouch of Mail Without Using Guns

SALISBURY, Mass., July 29.—A "wild west" $65,000 mail train robbery was staged today by eight armed bandits but a motor car was used in stead of fast horses. Not a shot was fired.

Meanwhile, two armed passengers walked into the baggage room from the smoking compartment of the passenger train, held up Baggagemaster Jordan, snatched up the pouch containing the $65,000 registered mail, and, at the cross road, tossed it in the direction of the waiting automobile.

Pocketing their pistols, the robbers swung off the train, and, making their way to the motor car, escaped.

The mail was from a Boston bank to the Powow River National bank at Amesbury and part of it was the payroll of the Biddle and Smart automobile company of Amesbury.

FIRE DAMAGES RAIL TRESTLE

Wooden railroad trestle at the T. A. McNicol pottery, on the River road, was slightly damaged by fire at 3 o'clock this morning.

The blaze, which started in the ties, was extinguished with chemicals. Fire trucks from the Central and East End stations answered the alarm.

Sparks from a passing locomotive are believed to have been responsible for the blaze.

Two Motorists Will Face Charges of Reckless Driving

F. W. Laughlin, Seventh street, was arrested at the W. T. Anderson coal yards, where he is employed, by Special Officer Leslie Curran, yesterday, upon a charge of fast and reckless driving as an aftermath of an automobile collision on Pennsylvania avenue last week in which a car driven by William H. Finley, Bradshaw avenue, is alleged to have been damaged. The affidavit was signed by Finley.

McLaughlin will be given a hearing before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Abraham Polinsky, Market house fish dealer, was arrested today, charged with reckless driving filed by Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore. He was to appear before Judge Hanley for trial at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Judge J. C. Hanley Will Rule on Auto Accident Saturday

Decision in the reckless driving case against Frank Crawford, Fredericktown potter, arrested as a result of an accident at Fredericktown 10 days ago, in which 5-year-old Virginia Lee Shaw was injured, will be announced by Municipal Judge Hanley at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Evidence in the case was submitted last Saturday, but the court withheld his decision until he could visit the scene of the accident. Attorneys in the case—S. W. Crawford, for the defense, and Solicitor Hoover and Attorney Ben L. Bennett, for the prosecution—will deliver their closing arguments Saturday morning.

WIFE OF SLAIN PASTOR JAILED FOR BAFFLING DOUBLE MURDER

Mrs. Frances Hall Arrested at New Jersey Home.

AWAITS GRILLING

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 29.—Protesting her innocence and maintaining that "some day I will make those who are responsible for this suffer as I am suffering," Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, held on charges of murdering her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and a chorister, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, today awaited the result of her attorneys' efforts to obtain her release on bail or on a writ of habeas corpus.

The accused woman spent practically the entire night in conference with Attorney Russell E. Watson, New Brunswick, a woman companion and another man presumed to be a lawyer.

No Signs of Emotion.

At 7:30 this morning Mrs. Hall was taken by Mrs. James Major, jail matron, to the room she will occupy on the second floor of the jail. Mrs. Hall remained there but a short time, returning to the conference room where she continued discussion of her case.

E. M. McCarter, her chief attorney, said that although bail was unusual in such a case, he still hoped it might be allowed.

Prosecutor Bergen said:

"After going over the evidence, I have concluded that it is of sufficient importance to be taken before the grand jury."

It was reported this afternoon that two men, both related to Mrs. Hall, probably would be taken into custody. Both men figured prominently in the investigation four years ago.

Bergen refused to confirm a report that Willie Stevens, brother of Mrs. Hall, would be brought in for questioning.

McCarter endeavored in vain to learn something of the new evidence from Bergen.

Contrary to some reports, the accused woman retained her self-possession to the last degree. Far from being in a state of collapse, Mrs. Hall evinced no visible signs of emotion but with the remarkable stoicism prepared herself for the ordeal or cross-examination.

Woman Sleeps in Chair.

It was reported that Mrs. Hall did not go to bed during the night. Her only rest being short naps in a chair.

The woman spent two hours at state police headquarters before she was taken to the jail. She was arraigned before Justice of the Peace William R. Sutphen, Somerville, but did not plead.

As Mrs. Hall reached the jail entrance, flash lights boomed and the woman was admonished by Attorney Watson to keep her head down.

Later in the day, when Mrs. Hall had ended the discussion for the time being, breakfast was served to her in the conference room.

One of the investigators in the famous case said that the names of the new witnesses would not be made public in order to preclude any possible recurrence of the charges which arose during the previous investigation that some of the most valuable witnesses had been approached.

Policy of Silence.

Despite the dramatic denouncement of the recent investigation into the Hall-Mills murders, residents of this town here inclined to accept the arrest of Mrs. Hall in a matter-of-fact manner. There was no outward sign of excitement.

The policy of silence adopted by all Somerville officials had its effect upon newspapermen in their quest of news. Keepers at the jail refused to answer the doorbell.

Clerks, Foremen, Clash in Second Game Tomorrow.

The Clerks and the Foremen of the Pennsylvania railroad shops here will clash tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at Central park in the second game of their three-game series for the shops championship.

In the initial encounter of the series the Clerks trimmed the Foremen to the tune of 8 to 7. The Foremen are determined to avenge their defeat and tie the series, while the Clerks are confident they will repeat their victory and thereby clinch the championship.

The friendly rivalry existing between the two factions presages a good contest and judging from the interest shown at the shops a big crowd of fans, partisans of both teams, is certain to turn out.

The batteries will probably be as follows:

RISLER TELLS STORY OF MURDER

Frank Risler, Toronto tinsmith, on trial for his life in common pleas court in Steubenville for shooting to death Dry Agent John McCoy, at Risler's home in Toronto April 28, when a party of prohibition agents raided the home, today told his own story from the witness stand.

"I am 54 years old," Risler stated after he was sworn in, "and have never been arrested before. On April 28 I came home from Steubenville where I had drawn my pay. A boy came running up to me as I neared the house and told me that my wife wanted me at once as a strange man was in the house. I hurried in.

"When I entered the house I was confronted by a stranger who wore a heavy beard. 'What are you doing here?' I asked. 'None of your d— business,' the man replied.

"I was afraid he might try to rob me so I went upstairs and hid my envelope. The man followed me. I managed to take a revolver unnoticed from a box and slip it into my pocket. I then went downstairs into the kitchen and when the man came in I asked him again what he was doing there. 'None of your d— business,' he answered again. 'I'll make it my business,' I told him. The man drew a gun. I went after mine."

The state succeeded in controverting one statement Risler made on the stand today. He testified that prior to the shooting he had worked four days and four nights consecutively at a Toronto tin mill.

The prosecuting attorney produced records from the mill showing that Risler worked only 10 hours on April 26 and 10 hours on April 27 and was not credited for any overtime.

Mrs. Risler was to be called to the stand this afternoon. She was an eye-witness of the shooting.

It was believed today that the case would go to the jury about tomorrow night.

CHILD CRUSHED BY AUTO WHEEL

Funeral services probably will be held tomorrow for Betty Thomas, aged 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas, of near Empire, who was crushed to death Tuesday night under the wheel of the automobile in which her parents were riding.

The unusual accident occurred a short distance above Stratton when the child fell out of the auto. She had been riding with her parents enroute to Mr. Thomas' store at Stratton, the three sitting in the front seat.

The door of the car suddenly flew open and the child fell out. Striking her head against the concrete curb she was knocked back under the auto and the rear wheel passed over her body.

The parents rushed the girl to the office of Dr. H. A. Talbot at Toronto but the child died enroute.

Five East Liverpool Men on Elks' Nine Roster.

SALEM, July 29.—Two games are on the Salem Elks' schedule for the week-end. The team plays Chester, W. Va., at Chester, Saturday as a return engagement, and on Sunday entertains the Sheibon Cleaners of Youngstown at Kelley's park.

On Saturday, Aug. 7, the Goodyears, of Akron, victors over the Elks last Saturday at Akron, will play here.

Sunday's crowd at Kelley's was the largest of the season, and it was the first game this year in which the Elks broke even, Manager Carroll Bumbaugh said.

A large number of Chester fans swelled the total, but there were also many from Salem. If fans continue to turn out like that, Bumbaugh said, there will be no doubt about the Elks continuing Sunday games at the park.

Salem's club is now composed of a group of county players from all sections, and therefore draws from other towns on Sunday, since East Liverpool, Chester, and several other sport centers have no local Sunday games.

Shorty Borton, Harry Fisher, the Saunders trio, Captain Harry Vincent, now make up the Salem contingent. East Liverpool is represented by Kent McConnell, Eddie Bailey, Finley, Pollock and Deshler. Dutch Johnson, of East Palestine, always has been a member of the team.

Bed-Bugs Killed This Magic Way

Here is the simple and quick way to kill bedbugs, roaches and fleas: Just pour some of the new chemical discovery—P.D.Q., wherever you find these pests. The moment it touches the insects—they die. Can do no damage to your springs or furniture; won't rot or stain clothing. P.D.Q. is used and recommended by leading hotels, hospitals and railroads as the quickest and safest way of getting rid of pesky insects. Instantly it smothers and kills the living creatures; coats their eggs and stops them from hatching and multiplying. A 35c package of this golden chemical will make a quart of mixture—so deadly it will kill a million bed-bugs. P.D.Q. can also be had in double-strength liquid form—ready for use. Free patent spout enables you to reach hard-to-get-at places with ease. Get P.D.Q. at your druggist's today. Your money back, if the bugs are not gone tomorrow.

The Book of a Prophet.
"Volney's Ruins of Empires"
It is Sound Philosophy.
Ruins of Thebes.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

WE advise you to read "Volney's Ruins of Empires."

Volney was born in France in 1757. He devoted himself to the study of truth. A small inheritance was devoted to travel, to historical investigation. He was a profound student, an earnest, simple man, a true philosopher. His arguments were sound. The proof of this may be found in the conduct of that distinguished gentleman, Napoleon Bonaparte. Napoleon asked Volney for his frank opinion and got it so truthfully that he kicked the distinguished writer in the stomach, being able to make no other adequate reply. Volney's splendid work, the foundation of much that now passes for original thought, is based upon an earnest desire to fathom the causes of men's success and failure. He says of himself in his famous letter to Dr. Priestley:

"The part which belongs to me is that of a traveler, resting upon the ruins and meditating on the causes of misfortunes of the human race."

THE essence of Volney's l[illegible] may be found in two lines at the end of his pamphlet on "The Law of Nature."

"Preserve thyself, instruct thyself, moderate thyself, live for thy fellow-citizens, that they may live for thee."

Could there be more admirable combination of Christianity and sound, benevolent philosophy? It combines the importance of education with the moral beauty of the golden rule.

"Education, moderation, combined with unselfish interests in other men, will indeed accomplish the true work of civilization. For causes of evil, there are two; Ignorance and Cupidity. These are the twin sources of all the torments of man."

THE invocation with which he opens his splendid study of men's minds begins thus:

"Hail, solitary ruins, holy sepulchres and silent walls. You I invoke, to you I address my power. While your aspect averts with secret terror the vulgar regard, it excites in my heart the charm of delicious sentiments, sublime contemplations. What useful lessons, what affecting and profound reflections you suggest to him who knows how to consult you."

"When the whole earth, in chains and silence, bowed the neck before its tyrants, you had already proclaimed the truths which they abhor; and confounding the dust of the king with that of the meanest slave, did announce to man the sacred dogma of equality. Within your pale, in solitary adoration of liberty, I saw her genius arise from the mansion of the dead; not such as she is painted by the impassioned multitude, armed with fire and sword, but under the august aspect of justice, poising in her hand the sacred balance wherein are weighed the actions of men at the gates of eternity."

PITTSBURGH DETECTIVE NAMES TWO GREEKS AS ALLEGED ACCESSORIES

Drops Dead as He Awaits Hearing on Compensation Claim

COLUMBUS, O., July 29.—While waiting in the offices of the state industrial commission, which was to hear his claim that he had suffered an injury while working for the city of Columbus, resulting in a permanent heart ailment, Howard Viney, colored, 33, dropped dead today. Death was pronounced due to heart disease.

Viney filed a clai mwith the commission which was denied July 15. A hearing was set for today. He collapsed as the commission gathered to hear his petition.

NET IS CLOSING IN ON KILLERS

Trail Leads Investigators to Steubenville as Postal Inspectors Examine Letters Sent to Suspects.

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—Evidence and sworn testimony that should, he said, result in accessory charges against George Psialias and Mike Contos, prominent Greek characters, in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton, O., publisher, were forwarded by Detective Peter Connors here today to Prosecutor McClintock of Stark county, O.

Turns Over Evidence.

The evidence and sworn testimony Connors turned over to the Ohio authorities stated that on June 10, John Ritz, a Somerset county coal miner, was standing before the Hanna employment agency in Second avenue when a large auto bearing an Ohio license drove up and stopped.

Two men were in the car and Ritz has positively identified Psialias as the driver and Mike Contos as the man in the back seat, Connors declared.

Connors said Ritz will swear on the stand that Contos, said to be well known in Youngstown and Canton, offered Ritz and another man $1,500 to go to Canton and "do a job."

"Contos wouldn't tell me what the job would be but said that if I decided to go in on it to go to the Grand hotel in Canton and ask to be directed to 'Jumbo' Crowley who would give me further instructions," Ritz said, according to Connors.

Sleuth Ridicules "Kidnaping" Fear.

Statements attributed to Attorneys for Psialias that private officers were planning to "frame" him and "kidnap" him to Canton were ridiculed by Connors.

"That's all a smoke screen to keep George from getting into my hands," Connors declared. "He's scored, and knows he can't stand up under a real questioning.

"George knows I can produce a witness who will testify under oath that George was driving the car on June 10 when Mike Contos, in the rear seat of the car, offered two men $1,500 to go to Canton and report to 'Jumbo' Crowley for further instructions on a 'job.'"

Ritz became suspicious because of the large remuneration offered for what Contos was said to have described as an "easy job' and never reported tc Crowley, Connors declared.

Connors said he had investigated Rit's reputation and was told by everyone that Ritz was truthful and reliable.

"I've done all I can on the case here," Connors said. "Psialias is in jail where the Canton officials can get him anytime they want to.

"Contos was last seen in Youngstown. It's up to the others to get him. I'm wiring Prosecutor McClintock to find out if he intends doing

HEALTH BOARD URGES WILLITE ON TWO ALLEYS

Cite Unsanitary Conditions in Diamond and Crook Ways.

COMPLAINT HEARD

Fifty-four Births and 24 Deaths in One Month.

Alleged unsanitary conditions existing in Diamond alley between Market and Washington streets and in Crook alley between Fifth and Sixth streets were condemned by the board of health at a meeting in the clinic rooms, Diamond, last night.

T. V. Milligan, property owner, complained about the condition of the two alleys. He said that a movement had been launched by the property holders to have the two alleys resurfaced with Willite, the city to pay engineering and advertising costs and the remainder of the expense to be borne by the abutting property.

The board decided to urge council to take steps to resurface the alleys.

Complaint against alleged poisonous fumes arising from the F. Q. Mason Chemical plant on lower Broadway filed by residents of the neighborhood with the health board recently, were dismissed last night.

Mason and several others were questioned by the board members said that nothing was manufactured or mixed at the plant serving to kill vegetation as had been charged.

Monthly report of Mrs. Alice Davidson, registrar of vital statistics, showed 54 births—34 males and 20 females—and 24 deaths—seven males and 17 females. In the clinic, seven new cases were admitted, while 153 treatments were given. The only contagious disease was one case of scarlet fever, according to Health Commissioner Fraser's report.

THREE AUTOS STOLEN HERE

Three machines, one of which was recovered, were stolen from their parking places on the down town streets, last night, according to reports to police.

A Chevrolet roadster, belonging to Glenn Gaston, Clarkson, taken from a parking place on Fourth and Washington streets, was found near the Hobbs farm on the Washington school house road, four miles back of Chester, this morning. It had been stripped of tires, battery, tools, lights and other equipment.

A Ford touring car, owned by John Ehlenbach, Oakwood avenue, was stolen from a point on West Fifth street near the Baptist church during the early part of the evening. It carried Ohio license No. 238-346.

YOUTH ADMITS GAS STATION ROBBERY WHEN ARRESTED HERE

Carson Haas Held for Jay Crawford Place Looting.

PLEADS GUILTY

Caught in Stolen Auto by Patrolman Smith.

Pleading guilty to a charge of breaking and entering in connection with the robbery of the Jay Crawford's Lincoln highway filling station, one mile south of West Point, last Sunday night, Carson Haas, 28, Belmont street, Youngstown, was held for action by the Columbiana county grand jury in $2,000 bond by Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today.

Haas was arrested by Patrolman Chester Smith, while sleeping in an automobile parked near the upper end of the old Columbian park race track, East End, at 7:30 o'clock this morning. The car, property of the Risher Car Rental System, of Warren, had been missing since the morning of July 13.

Haas, who admitted having served two years in the reformatory for a box car robbery at Columbiana four years ago, told the police that he came to East Liverpool during the latter part of last week. Last Sunday night, while intoxicated, he said, he removed the bars from one of the windows of the Crawford gas station, smashed the window and made his escape with two tires, about a dozen tubes and other motor accessories, chewing gum, candy, tobacco and cigarettes.

Find Stolen Property.

The tires, five tubes, two Ford timers, three boxes of chocolates, one box of mixed candy, about two dozen packages of chewing gum, a sack of other candy, a box of cigars and part of a carton of cigarettes were found in the car when Haas was arrested.

The prisoner said that he had been sleeping in his car since coming to East Liverpool. When he arrived, according to his story, he had about $10 in cash earned on a road construction job out of Youngstown.

Patrolman Smith was on his way home when he noticed the automobile parked in the field. Haas offered no resistance when the officer placed him under arrest.

Sheriff Questions Suspect.

Miss Mary E. Rhodes, 62, West Fourth street, died yesterday in the City hospital, after a six weeks' illness of a complication of diseases.

Miss Rhodes, who was born in Australia, was a resident of East Liverpool for 52 years. She was a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church and Crystal chapter, No. 18, Order of Eastern Star.

She is survived by one brother, Will A. Rhodes, of Alliance.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Miller funeral home, West Sixth street. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

Beauty experts agree that in this lovely face resides something of the charm, the undefinable quality of Mona Lisa—wistful, mysterious, and utterly feminine. All that's very well, but the beauty happens to be Ramon Hinds, a Davenport, Iowa, high school boy, whose feminine impersonations on the amateur stage have won him much gleeful fame.

Eight Bandits Seize Pouch of Mail Without Using Guns

Payroll and Other Funds Enroute to Boston Bank Taken in Cleverly Staged Train Hold-up.

SALISBURY, Mass., July 29.—A "wild west" $65,000 mail train robbery was staged today by eight armed bandits but a motor car was used in stead of fast horses. Not a shot was fired.

Meanwhile, two armed passengers walked into the baggage room from the smoking compartment of the passenger train, held up Baggagemaster Jordan, snatched up the pouch containing the $65,000 registered mail, and, at the cross road, tossed it in the direction of the waiting automobile.

Pocketing their pistols, the robbers swung off the train, and, making their way to the motor car, escaped.

The mail was from a Boston bank to the Powow River National bank at Amesbury and part of it was the payroll of the Biddle and Smart automobile company of Amesbury.

FIRE DAMAGES RAIL TRESTLE

Wooden railroad trestle at the T. A. McNicol pottery, on the River road, was slightly damaged by fire at 3 o'clock this morning.

The blaze, which started in the ties, was extinguished with chemicals. Fire trucks from the Central and East End stations answered the alarm.

Sparks from a passing locomotive are believed to have been responsible for the blaze.

Two Motorists Will Face Charges of Reckless Driving

F. W. Laughlin, Seventh street, was arrested at the W. T. Anderson coal yards, where he is employed, by Special Officer Leslie Curran, yesterday, upon a charge of fast and reckless driving as an aftermath of an automobile collision on Pennsylvania avenue last week in which a car driven by William H. Finley, Bradshaw avenue, is alleged to have been damaged. The affidavit was signed by Finley.

McLaughlin will be given a hearing before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Abraham Polinsky, Market house fish dealer, was arrested today, charged with reckless driving filed by Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore. He was to appear before Judge Hanley for trial at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Judge J. C. Hanley Will Rule on Auto Accident Saturday

Decision in the reckless driving case against Frank Crawford, Fredericktown potter, arrested as a result of an accident at Fredericktown 10 days ago, in which 5-year-old Virginia Lee Shaw was injured, will be announced by Municipal Judge Hanley at 10 o'clock Saturday morning.

Evidence in the case was submitted last Saturday, but the court withheld his decision until he could visit the scene of the accident. Attorneys in the case—S. W. Crawford, for the defense, and Solicitor Hoover and Attorney Ben L. Bennett, for the prosecution—will deliver their closing arguments Saturday morning.

WIFE OF SLAIN PASTOR JAILED FOR BAFFLING DOUBLE MURDER

Mrs. Frances Hall Arrested at New Jersey Home.

AWAITS GRILLING

By DAVID P. SENTNER.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 29.—Protesting her innocence and maintaining that "some day I will make those who are responsible for this suffer as I am suffering," Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, held on charges of murdering her husband, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and a chorister, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, today awaited the result of her attorneys' efforts to obtain her release on bail or on a writ of habeas corpus.

The accused woman spent practically the entire night in conference with Attorney Russell E. Watson, New Brunswick, a woman companion and another man presumed to be a lawyer.

No Signs of Emotion.

At 7:30 this morning Mrs. Hall was taken by Mrs. James Major, jail matron, to the room she will occupy on the second floor of the jail. Mrs. Hall remained there but a short time, returning to the conference room where she continued discussion of her case.

E. M. McCarter, her chief attorney, said that although bail was unusual in such a case, he still hoped it might be allowed.

Prosecutor Bergen said:

"After going over the evidence, I have concluded that it is of sufficient importance to be taken before the grand jury."

It was reported this afternoon that two men, both related to Mrs. Hall, probably would be taken into custody. Both men figured prominently in the investigation four years ago.

Bergen refused to confirm a report that Willie Stevens, brother of Mrs. Hall, would be brought in for questioning.

McCarter endeavored in vain to learn something of the new evidence from Bergen.

Contrary to some reports, the accused woman retained her self-possession to the last degree. Far from being in a state of collapse, Mrs. Hall evinced no visible signs of emotion but with the remarkable stoicism prepared herself for the ordeal or cross-examination.

Woman Sleeps in Chair.

It was reported that Mrs. Hall did not go to bed during the night. Her only rest being short naps in a chair.

The woman spent two hours at state police headquarters before she was taken to the jail. She was arraigned before Justice of the Peace William R. Sutphen, Somerville, but did not plead.

As Mrs. Hall reached the jail entrance, flash lights boomed and the woman was admonished by Attorney Watson to keep her head down.

Later in the day, when Mrs. Hall had ended the discussion for the time being, breakfast was served to her in the conference room.

One of the investigators in the famous case said that the names of the new witnesses would not be made public in order to preclude any possible recurrence of the charges which arose during the previous investigation that some of the most valuable witnesses had been approached.

Policy of Silence.

Despite the dramatic denouncement of the recent investigation into the Hall-Mills murders, residents of this town here inclined to accept the arrest of Mrs. Hall in a matter-of-fact manner. There was no outward sign of excitement.

The policy of silence adopted by all Somerville officials had its effect upon newspapermen in their quest of news. Keepers at the jail refused to answer the doorbell.

Clerks, Foremen, Clash in Second Game Tomorrow.

The Clerks and the Foremen of the Pennsylvania railroad shops here will clash tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at Central park in the second game of their three-game series for the shops championship.

In the initial encounter of the series the Clerks trimmed the Foremen to the tune of 8 to 7. The Foremen are determined to avenge their defeat and tie the series, while the Clerks are confident they will repeat their victory and thereby clinch the championship.

The friendly rivalry existing between the two factions presages a good contest and judging from the interest shown at the shops a big crowd of fans, partisans of both teams, is certain to turn out.

The batteries will probably be as follows:

RISLER TELLS STORY OF MURDER

Frank Risler, Toronto tinsmith, on trial for his life in common pleas court in Steubenville for shooting to death Dry Agent John McCoy, at Risler's home in Toronto April 28, when a party of prohibition agents raided the home, today told his own story from the witness stand.

"I am 54 years old," Risler stated after he was sworn in, "and have never been arrested before. On April 28 I came home from Steubenville where I had drawn my pay. A boy came running up to me as I neared the house and told me that my wife wanted me at once as a strange man was in the house. I hurried in.

"When I entered the house I was confronted by a stranger who wore a heavy beard. 'What are you doing here?' I asked. 'None of your d— business,' the man replied.

"I was afraid he might try to rob me so I went upstairs and hid my envelope. The man followed me. I managed to take a revolver unnoticed from a box and slip it into my pocket. I then went downstairs into the kitchen and when the man came in I asked him again what he was doing there. 'None of your d— business,' he answered again. 'I'll make it my business,' I told him. The man drew a gun. I went after mine."

The state succeeded in controverting one statement Risler made on the stand today. He testified that prior to the shooting he had worked four days and four nights consecutively at a Toronto tin mill.

The prosecuting attorney produced records from the mill showing that Risler worked only 10 hours on April 26 and 10 hours on April 27 and was not credited for any overtime.

Mrs. Risler was to be called to the stand this afternoon. She was an eyewitness of the shooting.

It was believed today that the case would go to the jury about tomorrow night.

CHILD CRUSHED BY AUTO WHEEL

Funeral services probably will be held tomorrow for Betty Thomas, aged 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas, of near Empire, who was crushed to death Tuesday night under the wheel of the automobile in which her parents were riding.

The unusual accident occurred a short distance above Stratton when the child fell out of the auto. She had been riding with her parents enroute to Mr. Thomas' store at Stratton, the three sitting in the front seat.

The door of the car suddenly flew open and the child fell out. Striking her head against the concrete curb she was knocked back under the auto and the rear wheel passed over her body.

The parents rushed the girl to the office of Dr. H. A. Talbot at Toronto, but the child died enroute.

Five East Liverpool Men on Elks' Nine Roster.

SALEM, July 29.—Two games are on the Salem Elks' schedule for the week-end. The team plays Chester, W. Va., at Chester, Saturday as a return engagement, and on Sunday entertains the Sheibon Cleaners of Youngstown at Kelley's park.

On Saturday, Aug. 7, the Goodyears, of Akron, victors over the Elks last Saturday at Akron, will play here.

Sunday's crowd at Kelley's was the largest of the season, and it was the first game this year in which the Elks broke even, Manager Carroll Bumbaugh said.

A large number of Chester fans swelled the total, but there were also many from Salem. If fans continue to turn out like that, Bumbaugh said, there will be no doubt about the Elks continuing Sunday games at the park.

Salem's club is now composed of a group of county players from all sections, and therefore draws from other towns on Sunday, since East Liverpool, Chester, and several other sport centers have no local Sunday games.

Shorty Borton, Harry Fisher, the Saunders trio, Captain Harry Vincent, now make up the Salem contingent. East Liverpool is represented by Kent McConnell, Eddie Bailey, Finley, Pollock and Deshler. Dutch Johnson, of East Palestine, always has been a member of the team.

Pollock is now at the first sack, replacing Bob Lipe who left the team. McConnell is behind the bat.

Firearms Restriction

The national crime commission has turned its attention to the relation of the sale of small arms to crime. It has long been recognized by thoughtful citizens that this relation is very close. A large section of the public will give immediate approval to the following suggestions of the crime commission:

1. The imposition of a high tax on pistols.
2. A system for registering their sale.
3. The restriction of sale to police, army and navy officers.

The New York city commissioner of police favors those three proposals and adds a fourth—that only the police should be allowed to sell pistols.

It seems absolutely ridiculous that a nation suffering from such a "crime wave" as this country has known for several years, should permit the indiscriminate manufacture and sale of firearms, and that persons in states or communities restricting such sale can easily obtain the weapons they desire through mail order houses in other states.

If we are serious about wanting to check crime, we will be serious about banning guns and pistols and revolvers for illegitimate purposes.

Victory For Debate

When Herriot overthrew the Briand government it was a victory, not for the radical Socialist group which Herriot is supposed to represent, but rather for interminable debate.

Herriot and his followers have been loud in their demands for the preservation of republican principles, insistent in their protests against the adoption of any financial policy with which all the people may not be familiar and on which the nation has not had chance to pass. They offer no constructive policy of their own; they do not know what they want, but they will not be denied the chance to say what they don't want, once they have had a chance to look it over.

Under the circumstances, neither the French people nor those who view their situation sympathetically have reason for too great optimism. It is perfectly true that Poincare and his associates, Millerand, Maginot and the survivors of the old Clemenceau group, seem to have almost all the sound financial brains in France, but they have not the votes, and however excellent may be the proposals which they bring forward, their financial program must still run the gauntlet of the Left with its sentimental attachment for the theory of a capital tax, its fondness for debate, and its comparative indifference to considerations other than those which concern immediate political strategy.

Meanwhile the franc slips, the Parisian populace indulges its flair for rioting and the world wonders.

France is fortunate indeed in that none of the royalist pretenders cares to tackle the financial problems which confront the republic. The government has not been more unstable since the Commune.

London Heat

London has been sweltering lately in a hot wave. Or rather, in what our English friends mistake for a hot wave. The natives droop and melt in a temperature of 79 or 80, while the throngs of American visitors go about as usual, enjoying the weather.

There's something in the state of mind, no doubt. Those Americans are on vacation and the English are working. But there are other reasons.

The English are unaccustomed to heat spells such as Americans take as a matter of course. The British Isles are not only warm in winter, compared with most of the United States, but cool in summer.

Possibly clothing has still more to do with it. Londoners mostly wear heavy clothing through the summer, while Americans dress lightly. Almost any kind of weather is tolerable if one dresses for it. Still, our own cities are full of natives who never seem to have discovered that fact.

Grace For Digestion

There is more than religion in "grace before meals," says Dr. Gilbert Fitzpatrick, president of the American Institute of Homeopathy. It is an excellent aid to digestion. While rendering due thanks to the Creator for His bounty, it composes the mind and thereby helps the body take care of its digestive job.

Incidentally he condemns carrying business problems to the lunch table, as many Americans now do. They retard digestion, he says, and waste time instead of saving it. Better Heaven's blessing on food than trade talk with it.

True religion should have a similar effect on all proper human activities, smoothing out life and releasing its wholesome energies.

Detroit proposes to erect a building 873 feet high, beating everything else on earth. Better remember what happened to the old Mesopotamians when they tried that on the plains of Shinar.

A magazine writer says men fall in love with women who remind them of their mothers. A lot of them must marry without falling in love.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 9.—There is a stretch along Twelfth avenue where novices at motoring are given freedom of the street and the unwritten law is "every pedestrian for himself." It is where Manhattan learns to drive automobiles and is known as "The Farm."

Some learn to drive a motor car in an hour and some never learn. One young lady was a patient scholar for six months before she finally gave up in despair. She could start and guide the machine successfully but never able to stop it. Stopping, it seems, is quite necessary.

Once she interrupted trade in a milk and egg store by crashing into the place via the display window. Huge sandpiles on one side of "The Farm" protect those who may accidently start for the Hudson river shouting a prankish: "Whoops, my dear!"

Oddly enough, there has never been a serious accident on "The Farm." Once a chorus girl testing out a new car from her current boy friend spun around madly and came to a sudden full stop. That is the car did but she sped on over the windshield.

She explained naively, however, that being accustomed to joy riding she always got out of automobiles that way. Aged men are said to be hopeless as students. They are entirely too timid to attune themselves to the rather reckless spirit of the motor age.

Some demonstration cars are equipped with double steering wheels, breaks and clutches so instructors may come to the rescue in sudden emergency. There are on an average of 25 a day who take up the problem of learning to drive.

There is a tantalizing group of urchins who loiter about "The Farm" hurling their jibes and jeers at beginners until they are tossed coins and move away.

In a southeasterly knoll in Central park on rainy days lately is often seen a painter at work at his easel under a huge umbrella. He is a painter of rainy day scenes and is shortly to give a gallery exhibition.

An enterprising directory firm has launched an innovation that is welcomed with loud banzais by young bloods. It contains a directory of every person in town connected with the stage, including telephone numbers and home addresses. Every chorus girl is listed and amateur "cluck books" are being tossed in the ash can. There are at this writing something more than 700 chorines appearing in theatres and cabarets in the greater city. It is also noted most chorus girls live on the west side north of 50th street. Three reside in Park avenue and two in the Fashionable East Fifties. These ladies, of course, are able to maintain rather elaborate establishments by "playing the market." In fact that seems to be the explanation of many New York ladies whose sources of income appear dubious to the curious. It is as good as any.

The vehicular tunnels for those who live in those towns with the wild Jersey names will be opened for motorists around the first of the year. They are twin tubes, the north for westbound and the south for eastbound traffic. The passages are as smooth as glass and the walls are tiled in brown and white. This will obvsate all werrisom traffic waits and one may whisk under the river on "a one way street,' and reach New Jersey as quickly as 72nd street.

A TESTIMONIAL TO STRENGTH.

A man I know told me that one evening he got on an "L" train in Chicago to go to his home in the suburbs. In one of the lengthwise seats near him sat three negroes—a big, wide darky in the center, with a little, slender darky on each side of him. The big negro was looking for trouble; that much was plain.

Every time the guard, who was a little German, opened the door to call a station the big darky would mimic him, and then the other two darkies would laugh admiringly. The pestered guard finally protested, whereupon the big darky threatened him.

"Go on, you Dutchman!" he said. "Ef you sasses me I'll hit you jest oncet, an' knock you so high in the air you'll starve to death comin' down!"

"He'll do it, too," said one of the little negroes.

"He will 'at!" assented the other. "Ef he say he'll do it, he shore will!"

Just then the door flew open and in came the German, accompanied by another guard, nearly seven feet high. The German pointed out the disturber, and the giant, without a word, grabbed him by the collar, jerked him out of his place like a tooth out of a socket, cuffed him on one side of the head and then on the other, dragged him on the platform and pitched him bodily over the gate upon the platform of a station from which the train was just moving. Then he reopened the door and gave the friends of the late departed a hard threatening look. But they were staring straight ahead of them, their eyes blinking and their faces indicative of a great mental concentration.

For a long minute there was silence. Then, as if moved by the same set of strings, the heads of the two little darkies turned gently, inch by inch, until each looked into the other's face across the gap where their friend had been sitting. One of them sighed musingly.

"Dat suttinly was a strong man!" was all he said.

Totem Poles Disappearing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—The totem poles of southeastern Alaska, among the most remarkable records of a vanishing race, are rapidly disappearing through neglect, decay, fires, and even outright destruction, and those which might be preserved are likely to go the same way because the native Indians will not allow anything to be done with these sacred relics.

Efforts by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington to preserve at least one typical group of these poles and one typical Indian house in its natural state have so far been thwarted by a combination of natural and native acts, and the village originally selected for this plan of preservation no longer is in shape for such treatment.

The village in question is old Kassan, which was abandoned about 1900. It stands on Prince of Wales Island, and today is overgrown with weeds and shrubs, its houses rotting and its fine collection of totems partly burned and partly in a state of decay beyond hope of saving. Also it is now entirely off the route of steamships, and while the site has been designated as a National Monument and is theoretically under the jurisdiction of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Smithsonian scientists who have visited it this year do not believe much good would be done in preserving its historical and ethnological records, since the public would have no access to it.

The Smithsonian and other great museums have a number of excellent specimens of totem poles, but most of these have come from the Haida tribes of Queen Charlotte Island, British Columbia. The Tlingit and Tsimsian tribes of Alaska are the other principal totem-owning groups, and few of their totems have been saved or are likely to be.

These Indians are great rovers. Their villages have been repeatedly abandoned as they have moved in search of better fishing grounds, or to avoid the attacks of enemies. Since no totems have been carved for more than half a century, and the wood does not last well unless kept painted or otherwise protected, the famous poles are usually practically ruined by rot by the time a village is abandoned or soon thereafter.

Totems Held As Sacred.

Where the Indians still occupy villages dating back to the totem pole era, they object strenuously to the white man's ideas of moving their sacred monuments. The totem poles, magnificently and ornately carved with the emblems of the tribes and the symbols of great events in the lives of chieftains, are either tribal monuments or individual grave markers. In either event they are sacred and the white man's desire for them is regarded by the Indians as commercializing their proudest heritage.

Most of these Indians of southwestern Alaska are very poor, and large cash offers for totem poles have been tempting to them. Even when they desire to sell, however, they are not likely to strike a bargain, because the laws of inheritance among these tribes have been entirely upset in recent generations, and the totems instead of being the individual property of a single heir become very rapidly the property of practically a whole village. Hence any cash offer must be large enough to satisfy everybody, and such negotiations as have been attempted have usually come to an end by the time an increasing list of

The national crime commission has turned its attention to the relation of the sale of small arms to crime. It has long been recognized by thoughtful citizens that this relation is very close. A large section of the public will give immediate approval to the following suggestions of the crime commission:

1. The imposition of a high tax on pistols.
2. A system for registering their sale.
3. The restriction of sale to police, army and navy officers.

The New York city commissioner of police favors those three proposals and adds a fourth—that only the police should be allowed to sell pistols.

It seems absolutely ridiculous that a nation suffering from such a "crime wave" as this country has known for several years, should permit the indiscriminate manufacture and sale of firearms, and that persons in states or communities restricting such sale can easily obtain the weapons they desire through mail order houses in other states.

If we are serious about wanting to check crime, we will be serious about banning guns and pistols and revolvers for illegitimate purposes.

Victory For Debate

When Herriot overthrew the Briand government it was a victory, not for the radical Socialist group which Herriot is supposed to represent, but rather for interminable debate.

Herriot and his followers have been loud in their demands for the preservation of republican principles, insistent in their protests against the adoption of any financial policy with which all the people may not be familiar and on which the nation has not had chance to pass. They offer no constructive policy of their own; they do not know what they want, but they will not be denied the chance to say what they don't want, once they have had a chance to look it over.

Under the circumstances, neither the French people nor those who view their situation sympathetically have reason for too great optimism. It is perfectly true that Poincare and his associates, Millerand, Maginot and the survivors of the old Clemenceau group, seem to have almost all the sound financial brains in France, but they have not the votes, and however excellent may be the proposals which they bring forward, their financial program must still run the gauntlet of the Left with its sentimental attachment for the theory of a capital tax, its fondness for debate, and its comparative indifference to considerations other than those which concern immediate political strategy.

Meanwhile the franc slips, the Parisian populace indulges its flair for rioting and the world wonders.

France is fortunate indeed in that none of the royalist pretenders cares to tackle the financial problems which confront the republic. The government has not been more unstable since the Commune.

London Heat

London has been sweltering lately in a hot wave. Or rather, in what our English friends mistake for a hot wave. The natives droop and melt in a temperature of 79 or 80, while the throngs of American visitors go about as usual, enjoying the weather.

There's something in the state of mind, no doubt. Those Americans are on vacation and the English are working. But there are other reasons.

The English are unaccustomed to heat spells such as Americans take as a matter of course. The British Isles are not only warm in winter, compared with most of the United States, but cool in summer.

Possibly clothing has still more to do with it. Londoners mostly wear heavy clothing through the summer, while Americans dress lightly. Almost any kind of weather is tolerable if one dresses for it. Still, our own cities are full of natives who never seem to have discovered that fact.

Grace For Digestion

There is more than religion in "grace before meals," says Dr. Gilbert Fitzpatrick, president of the American Institute of Homeopathy. It is an excellent aid to digestion. While rendering due thanks to the Creator for His bounty, it composes the mind and thereby helps the body take care of its digestive job.

Incidentally he condemns carrying business problems to the lunch table, as many Americans now do. They retard digestion, he says, and waste time instead of saving it. Better Heaven's blessing on food than trade talk with it.

True religion should have a similar effect on all proper human activities, smoothing out life and releasing its wholesome energies.

Detroit proposes to erect a building 873 feet high, beating everything else on earth. Better remember what happened to the old Mesopotamians when they tried that on the plains of Shinar.

A magazine writer says men fall in love with women who remind them of their mothers. A lot of them must marry without falling in love.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 9.—There is a stretch along Twelfth avenue where novices at motoring are given freedom of the street and the unwritten law is "every pedestrian for himself." It is where Manhattan learns to drive automobiles and is known as "The Farm."

Some learn to drive a motor car in an hour and some never learn. One young lady was a patient scholar for six months before she finally gave up in despair. She could start and guide the machine successfully but never able to stop it. Stopping, it seems, is quite necessary.

Once she interrupted trade in a milk and egg store by crashing into the place via the display window. Huge sandpiles on one side of "The Farm" protect those who may accidently start for the Hudson river shouting a prankish: "Whoops, my dear!"

Oddly enough, there has never been a serious accident on "The Farm." Once a chorus girl testing out a new car from her current boy friend spun around madly and came to a sudden full stop. That is the car did but she sped on over the windshield.

She explained naively, however, that being accustomed to joy riding she always got out of automobiles that way. Aged men are said to be hopeless as students. They are entirely too timid to attune themselves to the rather reckless spirit of the motor age.

Some demonstration cars are equipped with double steering wheels, breaks and clutches so instructors may come to the rescue in sudden emergency. There are on an average of 25 a day who take up the problem of learning to drive.

There is a tantalizing group of urchins who loiter about "The Farm" hurling their jibes and jeers at beginners until they are tossed coins and move away.

In a southeasternly knoll in Central park on rainy days lately is often seen a painter at work at his easel under a huge umbrella. He is a painter of rainy day scenes and is shortly to give a gallery exhibition.

An enterprising directory firm has launched an innovation that is welcomed with loud banzais by young bloods. It contains a directory of every person in town connected with the stage, including telephone numbers and home addresses. Every chorus girl is listed and amateur "cluck books" are being tossed in the ash can. There are at this writing something more than 700 chorines appearing in theatres and cabarets in the greater city. It is also noted most chorus girls live on the west side north of 50th street. Three reside in Park avenue and two in the Fashionable East Fifties. These ladies, of course, are able to maintain rather elaborate establishments by "playing the market." In fact that seems to be the explanation of many New York ladies whose sources of income appear dubious to the curious. It is as good as any.

The vehicular tunnels for those who live in those towns with the wild Jersey names will be opened for motorists around the first of the year. They are twin tubes, the north for westbound and the south for eastbound traffic. The passages are as smooth as glass and the walls are tiled in brown and white. This will obvsate all werrisom traffic waits and one may whisk under the river on "a one way street,' and reach New Jersey as quickly as 72nd street.

A TESTIMONIAL TO STRENGTH.

A man I know told me that one evening he got on an "L" train in Chicago to go to his home in the suburbs. In one of the lengthwise seats near him sat three negroes—a big, wide darky in the center, with a little, slender darky on each side of him. The big negro was looking for trouble; that much was plain.

Every time the guard, who was a little German, opened the door to call a station the big darky would mimic him, and then the other two darkies would laugh admiringly. The pestered guard finally protested, whereupon the big darky threatened him.

"Go on, you Dutchman!" he said. "Ef you sasses me I'll hit you jest oncet, an' knock you so high in the air you'll starve to death comin' down!"

"He'll do it, too," said one of the little negroes.

"He will 'at!" assented the other. "Ef he say he'll do it, he shore will!"

Just then the door flew open and in came the German, accompanied by another guard, nearly seven feet high. The German pointed out the disturber, and the giant, without a word, grabbed him by the collar, jerked him out of his place like a tooth out of a socket, cuffed him on one side of the head and then on the other, dragged him on the platform and pitched him bodily over the gate upon the platform of a station from which the train was just moving. Then he reopened the door and gave the friends of the late departed a hard threatening look. But they were staring straight ahead of them, their eyes blinking and their faces indicative of a great mental concentration.

For a long minute there was silence. Then, as if moved by the same set of strings, the heads of the two little darkies turned gently, inch by inch, until each looked into the other's face across the gap where their friend had been sitting. One of them sighed musingly.

"Dat suttinly was a strong man!" was all he said.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Totem Poles Disappearing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—The totem poles of southeastern Alaska, among the most remarkable records of a vanishing race, are rapidly disappearing through neglect, decay, fires, and even outright destruction, and those which might be preserved are likely to go the same way because the native Indians will not allow anything to be done with these sacred relics.

Efforts by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington to preserve at least one typical group of these poles and one typical Indian house in its natural state have so far been thwarted by a combination of natural and native acts, and the village originally selected for this plan of preservation no longer is in shape for such treatment.

The village in question is old Kasaan, which was abandoned about 1900. It stands on Prince of Wales Island, and today is overgrown with weeds and shrubs, its houses rotting and its fine collection of totems partly burned and partly in a state of decay beyond hope of saving. Also it is now entirely off the route of steamships, and while the site has been designated as a National Monument and is theoretically under the jurisdiction of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Smithsonian scientists who have visited it this year do not believe much good would be done in preserving its historical and ethnological records, since the public would have no access to it.

The Smithsonian and other great museums have a number of excellent specimens of totem poles, but most of these have come from the Haida tribes of Queen Charlotte Island, British Columbia. The Tlingit and Tsimsian tribes of Alaska are the other principal totem-owning groups, and few of their totems have been saved or are likely to be.

These Indians are great rovers. Their villages have been repeatedly abandoned as they have moved in search of better fishing grounds, or to avoid the attacks of enemies. Since no totems have been carved for more than half a century, and the wood does not last well unless kept painted or otherwise protected, the famous poles are usually practically ruined by rot by the time a village is abandoned or soon thereafter.

Totems Held As Sacred.

Where the Indians still occupy villages dating back to the totem pole era, they object strenuously to the white man's ideas of moving their sacred monuments. The totem poles, magnificently and ornately carved with the emblems of the tribes and the symbols of great events in the lives of chieftains, are either tribal monuments or individual grave markers. In either event they are sacred and the white man's desire for them is regarded by the Indians as commercializing their proudest heritage.

Most of these Indians of southwestern Alaska are very poor, and large cash offers for totem poles have been tempting to them. Even when they desire to sell, however, they are not likely to strike a bargain, because the laws of inheritance among these tribes have been entirely upset in recent generations, and the totems instead of being the individual property of a single heir become very rapidly the property of practically a whole village. Hence any cash offer must be large enough to satisfy everybody, and such negotiations as have been attempted have usually come to an end by the time an increasing list of

In one of the lengthwise seats near him sat three negroes—a big, wide darky in the center, with a little, slender darky on each side of him. The big negro was looking for trouble; that much was plain.

Every time the guard, who was a little German, opened the door to call a station the big darky would mimic him, and then the other two darkies would laugh admiringly. The pestered guard finally protested, whereupon the big darky threatened him.

"Go on, you Dutchman!" he said. "Ef you sasses me I'll hit you jest oncet, an' knock you so high in the air you'll starve to death comin' down!"

"He'll do it, too," said one of the little negroes.

"He will 'at!" assented the other. "Ef he say he'll do it, he shore will!"

Just then the door flew open and in came the German, accompanied by another guard, nearly seven feet high. The German pointed out the disturber, and the giant, without a word, grabbed him by the collar, jerked him out of his place like a tooth out of a socket, cuffed him on one side of the head and then on the other, dragged him on the platform and pitched him bodily over the gate upon the platform of a station from which the train was just moving. Then he reopened the door and gave the friends of the late departed a hard threatening look. But they were staring straight ahead of them, their eyes blinking and their faces indicative of a great mental concentration.

For a long minute there was silence. Then, as if moved by the same set of strings, the heads of the two little darkies turned gently, inch by inch, until each looked into the other's face across the gap where their friend had been sitting. One of them sighed musingly.

"Dat suttinly was a strong man!" was all he said.

HASKIN'S LETTER

Totem Poles Disappearing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—The totem poles of southeastern Alaska, among the most remarkable records of a vanishing race, are rapidly disappearing through neglect, decay, fires, and even outright destruction, and those which might be preserved are likely to go the same way because the native Indians will not allow anything to be done with these sacred relics.

Efforts by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington to preserve at least one typical group of these poles and one typical Indian house in its natural state have so far been thwarted by a combination of natural and native acts, and the village originally selected for this plan of preservation no longer is in shape for such treatment.

The village in question is old Kassan, which was abandoned about 1900. It stands on Prince of Wales Island, and today is overgrown with weeds and shrubs, its houses rotting and its fine collection of totems partly burned and partly in a state of decay beyond hope of saving. Also it is now entirely off the route of steamships, and while the site has been designated as a National Monument and is theoretically under the jurisdiction of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Smithsonian scientists who have visited it this year do not believe much good would be done in preserving its historical and ethnological records, since the public would have no access to it.

The Smithsonian and other great museums have a number of excellent specimens of totem poles, but most of these have come from the Haida tribes of Queen Charlotte Island, British Columbia. The Tlingit and Tsimsian tribes of Alaska are the other principal totem-owning groups, and few of their totems have been saved or are likely to be.

These Indians are great rovers. Their villages have been repeatedly abandoned as they have moved in search of better fishing grounds, or to avoid the attacks of enemies. Since no totems have been carved for more than half a century, and the wood does not last well unless kept painted or otherwise protected, the famous poles are usually practically ruined by rot by the time a village is abandoned or soon thereafter.

Totems Held As Sacred.

Where the Indians still occupy villages dating back to the totem pole era, they object strenuously to the white man's ideas of moving their sacred monuments. The totem poles, magnificently and ornately carved with the emblems of the tribes and the symbols of great events in the lives of chieftains, are either tribal monuments or individual grave markers. In either event they are sacred and the white man's desire for them is regarded by the Indians as commercializing their proudest heritage.

Most of these Indians of southwestern Alaska are very poor, and large cash offers for totem poles have been tempting to them. Even when they desire to sell, however, they are not likely to strike a bargain, because the laws of inheritance among these tribes have been entirely upset in recent generations, and the totems instead of being the individual property of a single heir become very rapidly the property of practically a whole village. Hence any cash offer must be large enough to satisfy everybody, and such negotiations as have been attempted have usually come to an end by the time an increasing list of

Consider Your Ironing

It is hard work. Consumes four to six hours each ironing day. You must push and haul on six pounds of hot metal—tired arms, aches, a haggard face. Not a bit of it is necessary.

With a touch of your finger tips — The motor does all the work

Consider the Rainbow Automatic Ironer

You are comfortably seated while you whisk away the ironing in one-quarter of the time.

Just a touch of the finger-tips on the control-bar, which is set into and runs the entire length of the guide table, operates the Rainbow Ironer.

His shirts are ironed in five minutes, rompers in three to five minutes, your dresses in four minutes, sheets and table linens in almost no time. Everything with a beautiful smoothness and lustre.

Test it in your home on your own ironing.

Firearms Restriction

The national crime commission has turned its attention to the relation of the sale of small arms to crime. It has long been recognized by thoughtful citizens that this relation is very close. A large section of the public will give immediate approval to the following suggestions of the crime commission:

1. The imposition of a high tax on pistols.
2. A system for registering their sale.
3. The restriction of sale to police, army and navy officers.

The New York city commissioner of police favors those three proposals and adds a fourth—that only the police should be allowed to sell pistols.

It seems absolutely ridiculous that a nation suffering from such a "crime wave" as this country has known for several years, should permit the indiscriminate manufacture and sale of firearms, and that persons in states or communities restricting such sale can easily obtain the weapons they desire through mail order houses in other states.

If we are serious about wanting to check crime, we will be serious about banning guns and pistols and revolvers for illegitimate purposes.

Victory For Debate

When Herriot overthrew the Briand government it was a victory, not for the radical Socialist group which Herriot is supposed to represent, but rather for interminable debate.

Herriot and his followers have been loud in their demands for the preservation of republican principles, insistent in their protests against the adoption of any financial policy with which all the people may not be familiar and on which the nation has not had chance to pass. They offer no constructive policy of their own; they do not know what they want, but they will not be denied the chance to say what they don't want, once they have had a chance to look it over.

Under the circumstances, neither the French people nor those who view their situation sympathetically have reason for too great optimism. It is perfectly true that Poincare and his associates, Millerand, Maginot and the survivors of the old Clemenceau group, seem to have almost all the sound financial brains in France, but they have not the votes, and however excellent may be the proposals which they bring forward, their financial program must still run the gauntlet of the Left with its sentimental attachment for the theory of a capital tax, its fondness for debate, and its comparative indifference to considerations other than those which concern immediate political strategy.

Meanwhile the franc slips, the Parisian populace indulges its flair for rioting and the world wonders.

France is fortunate indeed in that none of the royalist pretenders cares to tackle the financial problems which confront the republic. The government has not been more unstable since the Commune.

London Heat

London has been sweltering lately in a hot wave. Or rather, in what our English friends mistake for a hot wave. The natives droop and melt in a temperature of 79 or 80, while the throngs of American visitors go about as usual, enjoying the weather.

There's something in the state of mind, no doubt. Those Americans are on vacation and the English are working. But there are other reasons.

The English are unaccustomed to heat spells such as Americans take as a matter of course. The British Isles are not only warm in winter, compared with most of the United States, but cool in summer.

Possibly clothing has still more to do with it. Londoners mostly wear heavy clothing through the summer, while Americans dress lightly. Almost any kind of weather is tolerable if one dresses for it. Still, our own cities are full of natives who never seem to have discovered that fact.

Grace For Digestion

There is more than religion in "grace before meals," says Dr. Gilbert Fitzpatrick, president of the American Institute of Homeopathy. It is an excellent aid to digestion. While rendering due thanks to the Creator for His bounty, it composes the mind and thereby helps the body take care of its digestive job.

Incidentally he condemns carrying business problems to the lunch table, as many Americans now do. They retard digestion, he says, and waste time instead of saving it. Better Heaven's blessing on food than trade talk with it.

True religion should have a similar effect on all proper human activities, smoothing out life and releasing its wholesome energies.

Detroit proposes to erect a building 873 feet high, beating everything else on earth. Better remember what happened to the old Mesopotamians when they tried that on the plains of Shinar.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 9.—There is a stretch along Twelfth avenue where novices at motoring are given freedom of the street and the unwritten law is "every pedestrian for himself." It is where Manhattan learns to drive automobiles and is known as "The Farm."

Some learn to drive a motor car in an hour and some never learn. One young lady was a patient scholar for six months before she finally gave up in despair. She could start and guide the machine successfully but never able to stop it. Stopping, it seems, is quite necessary.

Once she interrupted trade in a milk and egg store by crashing into the place via the display window. Huge sandpiles on one side of "The Farm" protect those who may accidently start for the Hudson river shouting a prankish: "Whoops, my dear!"

Oddly enough, there has never been a serious accident on "The Farm." Once a chorus girl testing out a new car from her current boy friend spun around madly and came to a sudden full stop. That is the car did but she sped on over the windshield.

She explained naively, however, that being accustomed to joy riding she always got out of automobiles that way. Aged men are said to be hopeless as students. They are entirely too timid to attune themselves to the rather reckless spirit of the motor age.

Some demonstration cars are equipped with double steering wheels, breaks and clutches so instructors may come to the rescue in sudden emergency. There are on an average of 25 a day who take up the problem of learning to drive.

There is a tantalizing group of urchins who loiter about "The Farm" hurling their jibes and jeers at beginners until they are tossed coins and move away.

In a southeasternly knoll in Central park on rainy days lately is often seen a painter at work at his easel under a huge umbrella. He is a painter of rainy day scenes and is shortly to give a gallery exhibition.

An enterprising directory firm has launched an innovation that is welcomed with loud banzais by young bloods. It contains a directory of every person in town connected with the stage, including telephone numbers and home addresses. Every chorus girl is listed and amateur "cluck books" are being tossed in the ash can. There are at this writing something more than 700 chorines appearing in theatres and cabarets in the greater city. It is also noted most chorus girls live on the west side north of 50th street. Three reside in Park avenue and two in the Fashionable East Fifties. These ladies, of course, are able to maintain rather elaborate establishments by "playing the market." In fact that seems to be the explanation of many New York ladies whose sources of income appear dubious to the curious. It is as good as any.

The vehicular tunnels for those who live in those towns with the wild Jersey names will be opened for motorists around the first of the year. They are twin tubes, the north for westbound and the south for eastbound traffic. The passages are as smooth as glass and the walls are tiled in brown and white. This will obvsate all werrisom traffic waits and one may whisk under the river on "a one way street,' and reach New Jersey as quickly as 72nd street.

A TESTIMONIAL TO STRENGTH.

A man I know told me that one evening he got on an "L" train in Chicago to go to his home in the suburbs. In one of the lengthwise seats near him sat three negroes—a big, wide darky in the center, with a little, slender darky on each side of him. The big negro was looking for trouble; that much was plain.

Every time the guard, who was a little German, opened the door to call a station the big darky would mimic him, and then the other two darkies would laugh admiringly. The pestered guard finally protested, whereupon the big darky threatened him.

"Go on, you Dutchman!" he said. "Ef you sasses me I'll hit you jest oncet, an' knock you so high in the air you'll starve to death comin' down!"

"He'll do it, too," said one of the little negroes.

"He will 'at!" assented the other. "Ef he say he'll do it, he shore will!"

Just then the door flew open and in came the German, accompanied by another guard, nearly seven feet high. The German pointed out the disturber, and the giant, without a word, grabbed him by the collar, jerked him out of his place like a tooth out of a socket, cuffed him on one side of the head and then on the other, dragged him on the platform and pitched him bodily over the gate upon the platform of a station from which the train was just moving. Then he reopened the door and gave the friends of the late departed a hard threatening look. But they were staring straight ahead of them, their eyes blinking and their faces indicative of a great mental concentration.

For a long minute there was silence. Then, as if moved by the same set of strings, the heads of the two little darkies turned gently, inch by inch, until each looked into the other's face across the gap where their friend had been sitting. One of them sighed musingly.

"Dat suttinly was a strong man!" was all he said.

HASKIN'S LETTER

Totem Poles Disappearing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—The totem poles of southeastern Alaska, among the most remarkable records of a vanishing race, are rapidly disappearing through neglect, decay, fires, and even outright destruction, and those which might be preserved are likely to go the same way because the native Indians will not allow anything to be done with these sacred relics.

Efforts by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington to preserve at least one typical group of these poles and one typical Indian house in its natural state have so far been thwarted by a combination of natural and native acts, and the village originally selected for this plan of preservation no longer is in shape for such treatment.

The village in question is old Kasaan, which was abandoned about 1900. It stands on Prince of Wales Island, and today is overgrown with weeds and shrubs, its houses rotting and its fine collection of totems partly burned and partly in a state of decay beyond hope of saving. Also it is now entirely off the route of steamships, and while the site has been designated as a National Monument and is theoretically under the jurisdiction of the United States Department of Agriculture, the Smithsonian scientists who have visited it this year do not believe much good would be done in preserving its historical and ethnological records, since the public would have no access to it.

The Smithsonian and other great museums have a number of excellent specimens of totem poles, but most of these have come from the Haida tribes of Queen Charlotte Island, British Columbia. The Tlingit and Tsimsian tribes of Alaska are the other principal totem-owning groups, and few of their totems have been saved or are likely to be.

These Indians are great rovers. Their villages have been repeatedly abandoned as they have moved in search of better fishing grounds, or to avoid the attacks of enemies. Since no totems have been carved for more than half a century, and the wood does not last well unless kept painted or otherwise protected, the famous poles are usually practically ruined by rot by the time a village is abandoned or soon thereafter.

Totems Held As Sacred.

Where the Indians still occupy villages dating back to the totem pole era, they object strenuously to the white man's ideas of moving their sacred monuments. The totem poles, magnificently and ornately carved with the emblems of the tribes and the symbols of great events in the lives of chieftains, are either tribal monuments or individual grave markers. In either event they are sacred and the white man's desire for them is regarded by the Indians as commercializing their proudest heritage.

Most of these Indians of southwestern Alaska are very poor, and large cash offers for totem poles have been tempting to them. Even when they desire to sell, however, they are not likely to strike a bargain, because the laws of inheritance among these tribes have been entirely upset in recent generations, and the totems instead of being the individual property of a single heir become very rapidly the property of practically a whole village. Hence any cash offer must be large enough to satisfy everybody, and such negotiations as have been attempted have usually come to an end by the time an increasing list of

Consider Your Ironing

IT is hard work. Consumes four to six hours each ironing day. You must push and haul on six pounds of hot metal—tired arms, aches, a haggard face. Not a bit of it is necessary.

With a touch of your finger tips

The motor does all the work

Consider the Rainbow Automatic Ironer

You are comfortably seated while you whisk away the ironing in one-quarter of the time.

Just a touch of the finger-tips on the control-bar, which is set into and runs the entire length of the guide table, operates the Rainbow Ironer.

His shirts are ironed in five minutes, rompers in three to five minutes, your dresses in four minutes, sheets and table linens in almost no time. Everything with a beautiful smoothness and lustre.

CLOCK RECORDS COOLIDGE HAND SHAKING SPEED

Counter Shows He Greets 150,000 in 34 Months.

COPPER ON JOB

White House Police Keep Check on "Respects."

WASHINGTON.—Shake, brother! (Or sister). How many times has Calvin Coolidge been forced to say this at least figuratively since his first began to hold down his White House job?

Official figures, as read off the automatic counter in the hand of the copper at the exit to the Executive offices, coupled with conservative estimates of out-of-town receptions, place the total in round numbers at 150,000 in the thirty-four months up to June 1, 1926, that Mr. Coolidge has been president.

And this total is probably thousands short for the Chief Executive is always shaking hands unofficially.

Keep Careful Check.

The White House police keep a careful check on the number of "respects" that pass through the Executive Office daily. (A "respect" is a person who comes to the White House armed with a written request from his senator or congressman asking an audience with the president.)

From August 3, 1923 to June 1, 1926, there have been of these—coupled with the annual New Year's, diplomatic, cabinet, judicial, congressional and army and navy receptions—exactly 128,009.

In addition, there have been three garden parties for disabled soldiers in the vicinity of Washington, each averaging about 1,500.

Then, the president has an average of at least ten visitors a day who come by appointment and do not have to leave by the door where the policeman and his counter stand. Thus, most conservatively, another 10,009 are added.

Out of Town.

While out of town on speaking engagements, Mr. Coolidge has shaken at least 5,000 hands. Above this figure, on Vermont Day, 1924, while visiting Plymouth, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge received over 2,000 natives of the state.

And thus, with these figures, the mean total of 150,000 is reached.

Taking the White House "respects" figure of 128,009 alone, the president receives an average of 3,765 of his constituents every month, or 125 a day. But taking into consideration the fact that, on vacations and speaking engagements, he has ben out of Washington for about four months of the thirty-four, the average runs still higher.

Visitors Watched.

The effect of receiving any considerable number of persons is most apparent when Mrs. Coolidge also is in the receiving line. She will start wearing elbow-length white kid gloves When the last person has passed by, her right glove will be black with grime and several seams will be split.

Neither the president nor Mrs. Coolidge use a single expression of greeting. Rather, they have a number—such as "How are you?," "Glad to see you," "A pleasure, I'm sure, etc,"—which they rotate mechanically.

Every visitor must run a gauntlet of watchful secret service men. No packages may be carried, no hand may be bandaged or concealed in pocket, for McKinley was assassinated with a gun wrapped in what apparently was a bandage.

FAMILY PEW, LIKE HORSE CAR, IS OUT OF DATE, SAYS MINISTER

BOSTON—Like the horse-car, dragging skirts and side-whiskers, the family pew in the average church is all out of date today, according to the Rev. Dr. Phillips E. Osgood, rector of St. Mark's church at Minneapolis.

And family worship has become virtually impossible under traditional forms of arrangement of Sunday services, Rev. Osgood told the clergy attending the Episcopal conference for church work here.

Failure to adapt the service of the church to the needs of a modern congregation, he declared, is one of the great mistakes made today in houses of worship, especially in those parishes whose constituents come from widely scattered districts.

"Under such circumstances, it is quite impossible with the old system of holding church either in the morning or afternoon, to develop the old idea of family worship in church," he said. "The family pew has gone quite out of date."

His views created considerable discussion among the assembled clergy, some approving, others disapproving.

Miss Ethel Langton, the 15-year-old daughter of the keeper of a lighthouse on the Isle of Wight, has been awarded a bronze medal for her courage in keeping the lights working for three days during a gale. Her father and mother had gone ashore for supplies and the storm prevented them from getting back. The girl kept everything in order, although she had nothing to eat but half a loaf of bread, thereby saving many ships and men from disaster.

Here's Instant Relief from Bunions and Soft Corns

Actually Reduces the Swelling — Soft Corns Dry Right Up and Can Be Picked Off.

Mathews Med. Store and J. D. Holloway Say Emerald Oil Must Give Complete Satisfaction or Money Cheerfully Refunded.

Get a two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) today. Every well stocked drug store has this, with the distinct understanding that your money will be cheerfully returned if it does not reduce the inflammation, soreness and pain much quicker than any remedy you ever used.

Your bunions may be so swollen and inflamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture and pray for quick relief. What's to be done?

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes all the pain and soreness disappear. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And as for Soft Corns a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with pads, shields, or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn. Something that will end your foot troubles forever.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

Alliance Ladies Defeated in Golf Play for Trophy

The ladies of the East Liverpool Country club, who entertained the ladies of the Alliance Country club yesterday in a return golf tournament, were awarded the Mrs. Homer J. Taylor cup which was won last year by the Alliance golfers. The Alliance team included Mesdames Pittenger, Hasner, Kealey, Sebring, Mayer, Aubaugh and Roat. East Liverpool representatives were: Misses Mary Irwin and Mayme Simms and Mesdames H. S. Russell, Christian Metsch, Samuel Groglode, Herbert A. Smith and C. A. Smith. Mrs. Richard Mayer of Alliance was awarded the trophy presented by Mrs. John B. McDonald for the visitor's lowest score. Mrs. Mayer received the trophy presented by Mrs. C. A. Bough for the afternoon's bridge party.

Luncheon was served at noon, covers being arranged for 55 guests at the attractively decorated tables. The afternoon was spent with progressive bridge, thirteen tables being in play.

The visitors included Mesdames Ray Cliff, Henry Morgan, Fred Zang, Lester Ruth, C. W. Pittenger, Carl Hafner, Kembel Kealey, Charles Sebring, Robert Roat, C. Aubaugh and Richard Mayer of Alliance; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Maynard of Los Angeles, Cal.; and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Outerbridge of New York City.

The championship cup donated by Mrs. Edwin M. Knowles will be given in the finals to be played in September.

Miss Elsie Rigot Becomes Bride of Walter M. Nichols

Miss Elsie K. Rigot, of Minerva street, and Walter M. Nichols, of Chester, were married last night in the St. Aloysius rectory, West Fifth street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James H. Smith, assistant pastor.

The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rigot. Mr. Nichols, who is a son of Charles Nichols, is employed as a stationary fireman.

Mr. and Mrs. Nichols left following the ceremony for a honeymoon trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Canadian points. Upon their return they will reside in Minerva street.

Bass of Columbus, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanten Poe and family of this city.

Sunday School Outing.

The annual outing of the Sunday school of St. John's Lutheran church was held yesterday afternoon and evening at Thompson park. A program of sports was featured. At 6 o'clock guests were seated for a basket dinner. Following the dinner a baseball game was staged between the married and single men, the score being 15 to 5 in favor of the benedicts. A horseshoe contest was also a diversion.

Hostess to Seattle Club.

Miss Alice Kinsey entertained the members of the Seattle club last evening at her home in Almont street. Nineteen members responded to roll call. Three new members, Miss Jennie Roedell and Mesdames Mary McConville and Nell Aufderheide, were enrolled.

During the social hours, a guessing contest was conducted, trophies being presented Mrs. Agnes Sinclair and Mrs. Mary Hughes.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her sisters, Mesdames Anna Conkle, Agnes Sinclair and Madge Floto, and Miss Mary Buckley.

Special guests were Mrs. Laura Buckley and daughter, Mary. Roses formed the decoration of the home.

The club will meet in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Laura Hughes of Ridgeway avenue.

NIGHT STICK BRINGS SPEECH TO SHELL SHOCKED WAR VET

LAWRENCE, MASS.—Life is once again worth living to George Hayden Gibbs, World War veteran.

For Gibbs, shell-shocked, deaf and dumb for nine years, has recovered both hearing and speech.

And the manner in which he recovered his lost senses is described by medical men as an almost unprecedented "miracle."

Gibbs at the age of 19, enlisted in the famous Princess Pat Canadian Regiment. He went overseas with his comrades and was wounded in the terrific fighting at Neufchatelle. Removed to a field hospital he was found to be suffering from shell-shock and ten body wounds. He was unable to hear or speak. Physicians worked in vain to restore his lost senses.

A few days ago Gibbs appeared in Lawrence and secured a position as a watchman for Herrick Aiken, guarding a building that was being moved from Pine Street to Chestnut street.

But life in the building was lonely and early one morning the war veteran fell into a sound sleep.

Patrolman Henry Roche, making his rounds, discovered him there.

In belief that Gibbs was just a "tramp", the officer entered the building, played a flashlight on the sleeping veteran, and tapped the soles of his shoes with a night-stick.

Gibbs leaped to his feet, startled. He identified himself to the patrolman and the latter walked to the door, opened it and went out. As the patrolman passed through the door it slammed shut. Gibbs heard the noise. He sat down for a minute and said, referring to the officer, "Damn him."

Discovery that he could both hear and speak was too much for the shattered nerves of the veteran and he cried himself to sleep with joy.

Four brothers and a sister of Gibbs were killed during the fighting at Armentiers.

Angora will have a wireless station.

Czech Army Suicides Increase Since Close Of World Conflict

PRAGUE.—Suicide among soldiers and officers of the Czech army have shown a slight increase in the last four years according to a report of the Minister of War. In the year 1922 the percentage was 6.7 for each 10,000 soldiers in the army of about 75,000 men. Next year it reached 8.04 and in 1924 it was 7.32. Last year it was 9.91 which is unaccountable since the army has been inactive.

The suicides in the army are thirty percent greater than for the civil population. Officers represented about twenty percent of the suicides although they are proportionately only about three per cent of the army.

COPPER ON JOB

White House Police Keep Check on "Respects."

WASHINGTON.—Shake, brother! (Or sister). How many times has Calvin Coolidge been forced to say this at least figuratively since his first began to hold down his White House job?

Official figures, as read off the automatic counter in the hand of the copper at the exit to the Executive offices, coupled with conservative estimates of out-of-town receptions, place the total in round numbers at 150,000 in the thirty-four months up to June 1, 1926, that Mr. Coolidge has been president.

And this total is probably thousands short for the Chief Executive is always shaking hands unofficially.

Keep Careful Check.

The White House police keep a careful check on the number of "respects" that pass through the Executive Office daily. (A "respect" is a person who comes to the White House armed with a written request from his senator or congressman asking an audience with the president.)

From August 3, 1923 to June 1, 1926, there have been of those—coupled with the annual New Year's diplomatic, cabinet, judicial, congressional and army and navy receptions—exactly 128,009.

In addition, there have been three garden parties for disabled soldiers in the vicinity of Washington, each averaging about 1,500.

Then, the president has an average of at least ten visitors a day who come by appointment and do not have to leave by the door where the policeman and his counter stand. Thus, most conservatively, another 10,009 are added.

Out of Town.

While out of town on speaking engagements, Mr. Coolidge has shaken at least 5,000 hands. Above this figure, on Vermont Day, 1924, while visiting Plymouth, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge received over 2,000 natives of the state.

And thus, with these figures, the mean total of 150,000 is reached.

Taking the White House "respects" figure of 128,009 alone, the president receives an average of 3.765 of his constituents every month, or 125 a day. But taking into consideration the fact that, on vacations and speaking engagements, he has ben out of Washington for about four months of the thirty-four, the average runs still higher.

Visitors Watched.

The effect of receiving any considerable number of persons is most apparent when Mrs. Coolidge also is in the receiving line. She will start wearing elbow-length white kid gloves When the last person has passed by, her right glove will be black with grime and several seams will be split.

Neither the president nor Mrs. Coolidge use a single expression of greeting. Rather, they have a number—such as "How are you?," "Glad to see you," "A pleasure, I'm sure, etc,"—which they rotate mechanically.

Every visitor must run a gauntlet of watchful secret service men. No packages may be carried, no hand may be bandaged or concealed in pocket, for McKinley was assassinated with a gun wrapped in what apparently was a bandage.

FAMILY PEW, LIKE HORSE CAR, IS OUT OF DATE, SAYS MINISTER

BOSTON—Like the horse-car, dragging skirts and side-whiskers, the family pew in the average church is all out of date today, according to the Rev. Dr. Phillips E. Osgood, rector of St. Mark's church at Minneapolis.

And family worship has become virtually impossible under traditional forms of arrangement of Sunday services, Rev. Osgood told the clergy attending the Episcopal conference for church work here.

Failure to adapt the service of the church to the needs of a modern congregation, he declared, is one of the great mistakes made today in houses of worship, especially in those parishes whose constituents come from widely scattered districts.

"Under such circumstances, it is quite impossible with the old system of holding church either in the morning or afternoon, to develop the old idea of family worship in church," he said. "The family pew has gone quite out of date."

His views created considerable discussion among the assembled clergy, some approving, others disapproving.

Miss Ethel Langton, the 15-year-old daughter of the keeper of a lighthouse on the Isle of Wight, has been awarded a bronze medal for her courage in keeping the lights working for three days during a gale. Her father and mother had gone ashore for supplies and the storm prevented them from getting back. The girl kept everything in order, although she had nothing to eat but half a loaf of bread, thereby saving many ships and men from disaster.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 29.—A brilliant advance in prices of the lead-motor and industrial stocks was the first response of the stock market today to the enormous demand which awaited the resumption of trading on the stock exchange.

General Motors continued to occupy the limelight. Starting with an overnight gain of 2 points, the stock mounted swiftly to 183 in the first half-hour for a new gain of 4 points.

The moderate improvement in the oil stocks continued, with Marland and Mid-Continent leading the advance. Rails were lifeless, as also were the coppers and equipments. Stocks of the mercantile companies were well bought, and utility stocks spurted under the lead of Consolidated Gas.

Commodity markets were steady with wheat and corn inclined to fractionally higher prices.

at the jail about 10 o'clock and immediately went to Mrs. Hall's room. It was generally believed that McCarter would represent Mrs. Hall in the event of a trial. He is one of the most noted criminal lawyers in New Jersey.

Following a lengthy conference with Mrs. Hall, Attorneys McCarter and Augustus Studder emerged from the jail in search of Prosecutor Bergen. They found him on the street and at his invitation accompanied him to his office.

The three lawyers immediately went into a conference.

It was learned that McCarter and Studder were to discuss two phases of the situation with Bergen, to wit:

1—The possibility of an application for a writ of habeas corpus to release Mrs. Hall from custody until the grand jury had acted on the case.

2—An effort on behalf of Mrs. Hall to preclude any possibility of "third-degree" questioning.

Mrs. Hall was arrested and locked in a cell today.

Bodies Found Under Tree.

Since September, 1922, when the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found beneath a crabapple tree on the Phillips farm in New Brunswick, hundreds of officials and private investigators have worked on the case. The arrest early today came as an emphatic official declaration that the new investigation has solved what has been described as "the most baffling crime of the century."

The arrest was made in Mrs. Hall's home at New Brunswick, N. J., on two warrants, each signed by Francis Bergen, prosecutor of Somerset county and countersigned by Justice of the peace William R. Stuphinat, New Brunswick.

At 1:30 this morning commitments were signed for her immediate imprisonment in the Somerville jail. At 2:30 o'clock she was in a cell. Mrs. Carpenter, her cousin, spent the early morning with her.

"Ridiculous," Says Accused.

Mrs. Hall, it was said, was trying to engage Max D. Steuer, the well-known New York lawyer, to defend her at the coming proceedings.

Captain John L. Lamb, of New Jersey state police, accompanied by two Jersey City detectives, rang the bell of the Hall home shortly before midnight last night. Mrs. Hall was asleep but appeared in a few minutes.

"I suspect that you gentlemen want to question me again," Mrs. Hall said.

Captain Lamb explained that he held a warrant calling for her arrest.

"May I be permitted to read this warrant?" Mrs. Hall asked quite calmly.

"This is ridiculous," she said at length. "What are you going to do with me?"

Captain Lamb informed her that he had served the warrant and she was under arrest.

Telephones Her Attorney.

Mrs. Hall then requested permission to telephone her attorney, Russell E. Watson, of New Brunswick. Watson arrived at the Hall residence within a few minutes after receiving the call. Mrs. Hall then packed a small bag and left with the detectives.

The street was dark and no one was abroad. No crowd gathered for this, the most dramatic moment in New Jersey's greatest murder mystery.

Mrs. Hall climbed into the rear seat of one of two waiting automobiles and the cars started for Somerville.

Indications today were that a new grand jury would be called and that the case would be presented to it for action.

Victim Shot Through Head.

Almost four years have elapsed since the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found. Both had been shot through the head. The minister had been shot twice through the back of the head and one bullet had been sent through Mrs. Mills' forehead.

No weapon was found near the bodies and the course of the bullets proved conclusively that it was a case of double murder and not one of murder and suicide. Near the bodies was found a scattered heap of papers, including three notes in the choir-singers' handwriting which indicated that she had ben in love with the minister.

The bodies were found on September 16, 1922, and both had been missing since September 14. Physicians who examined the bodies said that they had been dead at least 36 hours.

Investigators found evidence to indicate that the couple had been murdered elsewhere and had been dragged to the crabapple tree.

Prisoner is Wealthy.

The Rev. Mr. Hall occupied the pulpit of one of the wealthiest and most fashionable churches of New Brunswick, and his wife had considerable money in her own right and was said to have inherited $1,700,000 a few years before her husband was murdered.

Mrs. Mills' husband, James Mills, was in poor circumstances, having been employed to tend the furnace and do other jobs around the church property. Mrs. Mills was a young woman and considered quite pretty. She had lived in New Brunswick all her life and had been in the habit of accompanying Dr. Hall on his visits to the poor and sick.

Later, letters were found in the Mills' home in Dr. Hall's handwriting, couched in endearing terms, indicating that the couple were in the habit of meeting regularly at a place not far from the farm on which their murdered bodies were found. These letters also spoke of a proposed elopement.

KIWANIS NAMES TWO DELEGATES

State Senator Carpenter Speaker at Noon Luncheon.

Secretary Carl E. Gruber and Prof H. F. Laughlin were unanimously elected delegates to the state Kiwanis meeting to be held in Columbus, September 20, 21 and 22, at the weekly luncheon meeting held in Larkins' annex, Market street, at noon today.

Speaker at the meeting was State Senator Harry C. Carpenter, Steubenville. Mr. Carpenter, whose subject was "State Affairs," was introduced by Municipal Judge Jesse C. Hanley.

Proposed visit of the local club to the Clarkson grange next Wednesday evening will be deferred until September, members decided. The meeting was attended by about 55 members and their guests.

Special guests included State Representative Ralph W. Emmons, East Rochester, and County Auditor Elmer Walker, Damascus.

Mr. Carpenter told the history of the state seal, which he declared, was first adopted shortly after Ohio was admitted to the union in 1803. He then cited a few old laws enacted by the legislature. In the list were legislation which exempted churches and distilleries from taxation, another requiring a state bill to obtain a divorce and a third prohibited the racing of horses down hill.

Mr. Carpenter, who was chairman of the senate finance committee at the last session of the legislature, gave a brief report of how the state gets its money and how it is spent. Revenue each year amounts to about $40,000,000 while the expenditures are about the same. Insane asylums, institutions for the feeble minded, reformatories, penitentiaries and other penal institutions, half dozen state colleges and educational institutions, orphanages and homes are maintained from state funds, he said.

anything about this Ritz evidence and testimony."

"George, the Greek" in Jail.

Psialias' action in asking police last night to lock him up to protect him from being "kidnaped" by private detectives wishing to take him to Canton, was "simply a move to escape a grilling on the Mellett murder," Connors said.

"Psialias knows we're closing in on him with evidence this time," Connors declared. "He couldn't flee from Pittsburgh and he was afraid I would arrest him and put him through a grilling.

"He had to plan a way to keep away from me. That's why he and his attorney and his bondsman got together and decided to lift his bond on the old charge of cutting to wound. In that way Psialias went back to jail on the old charge and in the county jail I can't get at him."

Contos In Youngstown.

CANTON, O., July 29.—Upon receiving information that Mike Contos, wanted for questioning in connection with the Don R. Mellett murder was being held in Youngstown, Ora Slater left for that city this afternoon with a "mystery witness."

The witness claimed that Contos resembled a man thought to be linked with the murder.

CANTON, O., July 29.—While father time tolled the remaining hours of liberty left to the slayers of Don R. Mellett, martyred Canton publisher, a representative group of citizens today prepared to demand the "official heads" of certain leaders of investigating agencies.

Among other things the group is expected to demand the permanent resignation of S. A. Lengel, chief of police now under 30 days' suspension, who was the target for editorial bombshells hurled by Mellett into the police department.

The citizens are also expected to demand the resignation of Earl Hexamer, safety director, now acting chief of police. Hexamer, some of the group stated early today, "has not kept all of the promises he made before being named acting chief."

Sleuths in Steubenville.

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 29.—The trial of the Don R. Mellett slayers led investigators into "Bloody Jefferson" county today.

An automobile load of Canton and Pittsburgh detectives is here working on an important clue it was said.

The Mellett investigators have not taken local authorities into their confidence and nothing is known as to their real purpose here. The visitors merely notified local officials they were here and kept their plans to themselves.

bery of the Brunya garage, Lisbon-Salem road, last Friday night, but the suspect denied any knowledge of the crime. He said that he had served 90 days in the Mahoning county jail at Youngstown last fall upon a charge of suspicion, following his arrest in connection with an alleged hold-up job of which he was not guilty.

The Auto Underwriters' Club of Ohio, Columbus, has offered a "suitable reward" for the recovery of the machine Haas was driving. Police found the card carrying a description of the machine sent out by the insurance agency in their files following the man's arrest.

Haas told police that he makes his home with his parents in Youngstown. He said that he has had no steady job for about a year, his last position having been with the Ohio Leather company of Youngstown. The prisoner was remanded to jail and will be taken to Lisbon this afternoon.

VISITING the sandy ruins of Thebes, Volney writes:

"There a people now forgotten discovered, while others were yet barbarians, the elements of the arts and sciences. A race of men now rejected from society for their sable skin and frizzled hair founded on the study of the laws of nature those civil and religious systems which still govern the universe."

You will perhaps reject the conclusions of Volney as to the importance of the early negro intellect. His view is strongly supported. Lucian says of the negroes:

"The Etheoplans were the first who invented the science of the stars, and gave names to the planets, not at random and without meaning, but descriptive of the qualities which they conceived them to possess; and it was from them that this art passed, still in an imperfect state, to the Egyptians."

DIODORUS declares that the negroes rightfully believe themselves to be the oldest of nations. He says:

"It is probable that born under the sun's path, its warmth may have ripened them earlier than other men."

The man fit to teach his fellows is far ahead of them in intellect, and it is possible for him in the realness of science and of social questions to play the part assigned to inspired prophets in the religious world, Lamarck, Plato, Aristotle, Goethe, and, above all, the great genius, Charles Fourier, made predictions absolutely accurate, and verifying events have proved their right to respect and veneration as prophets of civilization.

"Man's obstacle is his ignorance which misleads him in the means and deceives him in causes and effects. He will enlighten himself by experience; he will become right by dint of errors; he will grow wise and good because it is his interest so to be.

"Individuals will feel that private happiness is allied to public good. The weak that, instead of dividing them, because equality constitutes their force; the rich that the measure of enjoyment is bounded by the constitution of the organs, and that lassitude follows satiety; the poor that the employment of time and the peace of the heart compose the highest happiness of man. And public opinion, reaching kings on their thrones, will force them to confine themselves to the limits of regular authority."

T. A. Maley Grocery Store is Sold to Samuel Manlovitz

As a result of a deal negotiated yesterday, T. A. Maley, Dresden avenue grocer, sold his business to Samuel Manlovitz, St. Clair avenue fruit dealer.

Manlovitz, who will operate both stores, assumed possession of the Maley business yesterday, but will not open the establishment until August 7.

Maley has been owner of the Dresden avenue store for 14 years. Prior to that he was associated for many years with Geon Brothers' grocery in Sixth street. He has not announced his plans for the future.

THREE JUDGMENTS IN CITY COURT

The Beers-Hanks Motor company was awarded judgment in three civil suits heard by Municipal Judge Hanley today.

Judgment for $85, alleged to be due on a note, was returned against Bradley Burns, 1175 Erie street; $36.84 against Francis Crawford, 129 West Third street, and $32 against B. L. Wright, 503 Railroad street.

The suit against Daniel and Viola Jones, 397 West Eighth street, also brought by the Beers-Hanks Motor company, was settled out of court.

NIGHT STICK BRINGS SPEECH TO SHELL SHOCKED WAR VET

LAWRENCE, MASS.—Life is once again worth living to George Hayden Gibbs, World War veteran.

For Gibbs, shell-shocked, deaf and dumb for nine years, has recovered both hearing and speech.

And the manner in which he recovered his lost senses is described by medical men as an almost unprecedented "miracle."

Gibbs at the age of 19, enlisted in the famous Princess Pat Canadian Regiment. He went overseas with his comrades and was wounded in the terrific fighting at Neufchatelle. Removed to a field hospital he was found to be suffering from shell-shock and ten body wounds. He was unable to hear or speak. Physicians worked in vain to restore his lost senses.

A few days ago Gibbs appeared in Lawrence and secured a position as a watchman for Herrick Aiken, guarding a building that was being moved from Pine Street to Chestnut street.

But life in the building was lonely and early one morning the war veteran fell into a sound sleep.

Patrolman Henry Roche, making his rounds, discovered him there.

In belief that Gibbs was just a "tramp", the officer entered the building, played a flashlight on the sleeping veteran, and tapped the soles of his shoes with a night-stick.

Gibbs leaped to his feet, startled. He identified himself to the patrolman and the latter walked to the door, opened it and went out. As the patrolman passed through the door it slammed shut. Gibbs heard the noise. He sat down for a minute and said, referring to the officer, "Damn him."

Discovery that he could both hear and speak was too much for the shattered nerves of the veteran and he cried himself to sleep with joy.

Four brothers and a sister of Gibbs were killed during the fighting at Armentiers.

Angora will have a wireless station.

Czech Army Suicides Increase Since Close Of World Conflict

PRAGUE.—Suicide among soldiers and officers of the Czech army have shown a slight increase in the last four years according to a report of the Minister of War. In the year 1922 the percentage was 6.7 for each 10,000 soldiers in the army of about 75,000 men. Next year it reached 8.04 and in 1924 it was 7.32. Last year it was 9.91 which is unaccountable since the army has been inactive.

The suicides in the army are thirty percent greater than for the civil population. Officers represented about twenty percent of the suicides although they are proportionately only about three per cent of the army.

CHICAGO'S LAKE FRONT FISHERMAN, CALLED WORLD'S STRANGEST HERMIT

CHICAGO.—The world's strangest hermit has been found, in the heart of Chicago!

In a little rock-sheltered cave on the shore of Lake Michigan, within a stone's throw of the Field Museum, Otto the minnow fisher, dwells in peace, comfort and happiness.

Otto, 54, a native of Germany, hasn't any relatives, and few friends, he says. For eight years his only home has been the little nook on the lake front, and he doesn't encourage more than a casual acquaintanceship from any one.

Fishing tackle forms his interior decorative scheme. A frying pan and a coffee pot; a gasoline stove and a few pots and dishes are all he has and "all I need."

"I've seen a couple of picture shows," Otto admitted. "But I like scenery, and,"—his arm swept significantly,— "where is there any better scenery than that? A wide circle, including the lake, Grant park, Field Museum, and the ever-changing Michigan boulevard skyline.

"That," and he pointed to the busy boulevard, streaming with life "that's the blamedest, nicest view there is anywhere. During the week nights, with the lights on, I crawl into my cave and go to sleep.

"When the sun comes up, I'm awake. I make enough money to live on selling minnows to fishermen. And what could be better than that for me?"

Dancing in bathing suits is being frowned upon, perhaps because they they are too warm for such strenuous exercise.—Canton News.

When the eye does not see, the heart does not grieve.

SIGNS OF BYGONE DAYS ARE SEEN AS ST. LOUIS DISCARDS BEER VATS

ST. LOUIS — Reminiscences of bygone days can be seen along the shores of the Mississippi river, where stretching out for considerable distance on the water-front are stored 165 large beer tanks, glass-enameled inside and 10 feet in diameter.

The tanks bear mute evidence of the extent to which the advent of prohibition has injured the brewery business. Thirsty mathematicians, who occasionally wander down by the river to look with longing eyes on the once valuable vessels have figured out that the tanks were capable of holding and did contain at one time 3,950,000 gallons or 31,600,000 drinks of beer.

The equipment, which once was a vital part of the Anheuser-Busch, Inc., breweries, represented an original investment of $500,000. Due, however, to the slump in their popularity and legality, they were sold recently as junk for a price that is said to have been less than 10 per cent of what they cost.

When the Volstead spirit first cast its shadows over the brewery properties, the owners tried vainly to sell them to oil companies, dairies and numerous other concerns using tanks. Finally, when a purchaser could not readily be found, the equipment was sold for junk at only a small fraction of their worth and stored along the river when the brewery's stock house was rented out to a furniture company.

The German commission houses' practice of buying toys in other countries, stamping them "Made in Germany" and reselling them in foreign lands, is causing a protest from competing toy-producing countries.

Because of the great economic development of the Sudan that territory is becoming a separate business field from that of Egypt, according to recent announcements by the Sudan Chamber of Commerce.

German Court Blames Republic for Inflation In Course of Trial

MANNHEIM.—That the Republic was responsible for the inflation has been publicly established by a civil court here in a trial against the national socialist leader Ferdinand Orth.

Orth had to face trial on the charge of offence against the Republic which he allegedly had given in a speech denouncing the Republic as a "profiteers' republic, which deserves to be hanged at the lamp post, for she has robbed widows and orphans of their money.

The court acquitted Orth following the argument of the counsel for defense. In his speech the counsel asserted that the government, in cooperation with the Reichsbank, willfully brought about inflation.

Even though she refuses him a woman always admires the good judgment of the man who proposes to her. —Cincinnati Times-Star.

CLEAR VISION AND COMFORT

GLASSES ARE IMPORTANT

Do you remember Theodore Roosevelt's story of how he discovered when he was thirteen years old that he could not see well?

He complained to his father, who provided glasses.

In his "Autobiography," published by Macmillan, he wrote:

"I had no idea how beautiful the world was until I got those spectacles.

"I had been a clumsy and awkward little boy, and while much of my clumsiness and awkwardness was doubtless due to general characteristics, a good deal of it was due to the fact that I could not see and yet was wholly ignorant that I was not seeing.

"The recollection of this experience gives me a keen sympathy with those who are trying in our public schools and elsewhere to remove the physical causes of deficiency in children, who are often unjustly blamed for being obstinate or unambitious, or mentally stupid."

T. R. was not unique in his defects. Examinations by the American Red Cross nurses in Pennsylvania schools showed that one child in every six or seven was suffering from a physical defect serious enough to retard normal growth and development.

Watch your own child and let your eye sight specialist examine his eyes. Even so small a thing as a pair of glasses may open a new world for the youngster.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 29.—A brilliant advance in prices of the lead-motor and industrial stocks was the first response of the stock market today to the enormous demand which awaited the resumption of trading on the stock exchange.

General Motors continued to occupy the limelight. Starting with an overnight gain of 2 points, the stock mounted swiftly to 183 in the first half-hour for a new gain of 4 points.

The moderate improvement in the oil stocks continued, with Marland and Mid-Continent leading the advance. Rails were lifeless, as also were the coppers and equipments. Stocks of the mercantile companies were well bought, and utility stocks spurted under the lead of Consolidated Gas.

Commodity markets were steady with wheat and corn inclined to fractionally higher prices.

at the jail about 10 o'clock and immediately went to Mrs. Hall's room. It was generally believed that McCarter would represent Mrs. Hall in the event of a trial. He is one of the most noted criminal lawyers in New Jersey.

Following a lengthy conference with Mrs. Hall, Attorneys McCarter and Augustus Studder emerged from the jail in search of Prosecutor Bergen. They found him on the street and at his invitation accompanied him to his office.

The three lawyers immediately went into a conference.

It was learned that McCarter and Studder were to discuss two phases of the situation with Bergen, to wit:

1—The possibility of an application for a writ of habeas corpus to release Mrs. Hall from custody until the grand jury had acted on the case.

2—An effort on behalf of Mrs. Hall to preclude any possibility of "third-degree" questioning.

Mrs. Hall was arrested and locked in a cell today.

Bodies Found Under Tree.

Since September, 1922, when the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found beneath a crabapple tree on the Phillips farm in New Brunswick, hundreds of officials and private investigators have worked on the case. The arrest early today came as an emphatic official declaration that the new investigation has solved what has been described as "the most baffling crime of the century."

The arrest was made in Mrs. Hall's home at New Brunswick, N. J., on two warrants, each signed by Francis Bergen, prosecutor of Somerset county and countersigned by Justice of the peace William R. Stuphinat, New Brunswick.

At 1:30 this morning commitments were signed for her immediate imprisonment in the Somerville jail. At 2:30 o'clock she was in a cell. Mrs. Carpenter, her cousin, spent the early morning with her.

"Ridiculous," Says Accused.

Mrs. Hall, it was said, was trying to engage Max D. Steuer, the well-known New York lawyer, to defend her at the coming proceedings.

Captain John L. Lamb, of New Jersey state police, accompanied by two Jersey City detectives, rang the bell of the Hall home shortly before midnight last night. Mrs. Hall was asleep but appeared in a few minutes.

"I suspect that you gentlemen want to question me again," Mrs. Hall said.

Captain Lamb explained that he held a warrant calling for her arrest.

"May I be permitted to read this warrant?" Mrs. Hall asked quite calmly.

"This is ridiculous," she said at length. "What are you going to do with me?"

Captain Lamb informed her that he had served the warrant and she was under arrest.

Telephones Her Attorney.

Mrs. Hall then requested permission to telephone her attorney, Russell E. Watson, of New Brunswick. Watson arrived at the Hall residence within a few minutes after receiving the call. Mrs. Hall then packed a small bag and left with the detectives.

The street was dark and no one was abroad. No crowd gathered for this, the most dramatic moment in New Jersey's greatest murder mystery.

Mrs. Hall climbed into the rear seat of one of two waiting automobiles and the cars started for Somerville.

Indications today were that a new grand jury would be called and that the case would be presented to it for action.

Victim Shot Through Head.

Almost four years have elapsed since the bodies of Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found. Both had been shot through the head. The minister had been shot twice through the back of the head and one bullet had been sent through Mrs. Mills' forehead.

No weapon was found near the bodies and the course of the bullets proved conclusively that it was a case of double murder and not one of murder and suicide. Near the bodies was found a scattered heap of papers, including three notes in the choir-singers' handwriting which indicated that she had ben in love with the minister.

The bodies were found on September 16, 1922, and both had been missing since September 14. Physicians who examined the bodies said that they had been dead at least 36 hours.

Investigators found evidence to indicate that the couple had been murdered elsewhere and had been dragged to the crabapple tree.

Prisoner is Wealthy.

The Rev. Mr. Hall occupied the pulpit of one of the wealthiest and most fashionable churches of New Brunswick, and his wife had considerable money in her own right and was said to have inherited $1,700,000 a few years before her husband was murdered.

Mrs. Mills' husband, James Mills, was in poor circumstances, having been employed to tend the furnace and do other jobs around the church property. Mrs. Mills was a young woman and considered quite pretty. She had lived in New Brunswick all her life and had been in the habit of accompanying Dr. Hall on his visits to the poor and sick.

Later, letters were found in the Mills' home in Dr. Hall's handwriting, couched in endearing terms, indicating that the couple were in the habit of meeting regularly at a place not far from the farm on which their murdered bodies were found. These letters also spoke of a proposed elopement.

KIWANIS NAMES TWO DELEGATES

State Senator Carpenter Speaker at Noon Luncheon.

Secretary Carl E. Gruber and Prof H. F. Laughlin were unanimously elected delegates to the state Kiwanis meeting to be held in Columbus, September 20, 21 and 22, at the weekly luncheon meeting held in Larkins' annex, Market street, at noon today.

Speaker at the meeting was State Senator Harry C. Carpenter, Steubenville. Mr. Carpenter, whose subject was "State Affairs," was introduced by Municipal Judge Jesse C. Hanley.

Proposed visit of the local club to the Clarkson grange next Wednesday evening will be deferred until September, members decided. The meeting was attended by about 55 members and their guests.

Special guests included State Representative Ralph W. Emmons, East Rochester, and County Auditor Elmer Walker, Damascus.

Mr. Carpenter told the history of the state seal, which he declared, was first adopted shortly after Ohio was admitted to the union in 1803. He then cited a few old laws enacted by the legislature. In the list were legislation which exempted churches and distilleries from taxation, another requiring a state bill to obtain a divorce and a third prohibited the racing of horses down hill.

Mr. Carpenter, who was chairman of the senate finance committee at the last session of the legislature, gave a brief report of how the state gets its money and how it is spent. Revenue each year amounts to about $40,000,000 while the expenditures are about the same. Insane asylums, institutions for the feeble minded, reformatories, penitentiaries and other penal institutions, half dozen state colleges and educational institutions, orphanages and homes are maintained from state funds, he said.

anything about this Ritz evidence and testimony."

"George, the Greek" in Jail.

Psialias' action in asking police last night to lock him up to protect him from being "kidnaped" by private detectives wishing to take him to Canton, was "simply a move to escape a grilling on the Mellett murder," Connors said.

"Psialias knows we're closing in on him with evidence this time," Connors declared. "He couldn't flee from Pittsburgh and he was afraid I would arrest him and put him through a grilling.

"He had to plan a way to keep away from me. That's why he and his attorney and his bondsman got together and decided to lift his bond on the old charge of cutting to wound. In that way Psialias went back to jail on the old charge and in the county jail I can't get at him."

Contos In Youngstown.

CANTON, O., July 29.—Upon receiving information that Mike Contos, wanted for questioning in connection with the Don R. Mellett murder was being held in Youngstown, Ora Slater left for that city this afternoon with a "mystery witness."

The witness claimed that Contos resembled a man thought to be linked with the murder.

CANTON, O., July 29.—While father time tolled the remaining hours of liberty left to the slayers of Don R. Mellett, martyred Canton publisher, a representative group of citizens today prepared to demand the "official heads" of certain leaders of investigating agencies.

Among other things the group is expected to demand the permanent resignation of S. A. Lengel, chief of police now under 30 days' suspension, who was the target for editorial bombshells hurled by Mellett into the police department.

The citizens are also expected to demand the resignation of Earl Hexamer, safety director, now acting chief of police. Hexamer, some of the group stated early today, "has not kept all of the promises he made before being named acting chief."

Sleuths in Steubenville.

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 29.—The trial of the Don R. Mellett slayers led investigators into "Bloody Jefferson" county today.

An automobile load of Canton and Pittsburgh detectives is here working on an important clue it was said.

The Mellett investigators have not taken local authorities into their confidence and nothing is known as to their real purpose here. The visitors merely notified local officials they were here and kept their plans to themselves.

bery of the Brunya garage, Lisbon-Salem road, last Friday night, but the suspect denied any knowledge of the crime. He said that he had served 90 days in the Mahoning county jail at Youngstown last fall upon a charge of suspicion, following his arrest in connection with an alleged hold-up job of which he was not guilty.

The Auto Underwriters' Club of Ohio, Columbus, has offered a "suitable reward" for the recovery of the machine Haas was driving. Police found the card carrying a description of the machine sent out by the insurance agency in their files following the man's arrest.

Haas told police that he makes his home with his parents in Youngstown. He said that he has had no steady job for about a year, his last position having been with the Ohio Leather company of Youngstown. The prisoner was remanded to jail and will be taken to Lisbon this afternoon.

VISITING the sandy ruins of Thebes, Volney writes:

"There a people now forgotten discovered, while others were yet barbarians, the elements of the arts and sciences. A race of men now rejected from society for their sable skin and frizzled hair founded on the study of the laws of nature those civil and religious systems which still govern the universe."

You will perhaps reject the conclusions of Volney as to the importance of the early negro intellect. His view is strongly supported. Lucian says of the negroes:

"The Etheopians were the first who invented the science of the stars, and gave names to the planets, not at random and without meaning, but descriptive of the qualities which they conceived them to possess; and it was from them that this art passed, still in an imperfect state, to the Egyptians."

DIODORUS declares that the negroes rightfully believe themselves to be the oldest of nations. He says:

"It is probable that born under the sun's path, its warmth may have ripened them earlier than other men."

The man fit to teach his fellows is far ahead of them in intellect, and it is possible for him in the realness of science and of social questions to play the part assigned to inspired prophets in the religious world, Lamarck, Plato, Aristotle, Goethe, and, above all, the great genius, Charles Fourier, made predictions absolutely accurate, and verifying events have proved their right to respect and veneration as prophets of civilization.

"Man's obstacle is his ignorance which misleads him in the means and deceives him in causes and effects. He will enlighten himself by experience; he will become right by dint of errors; he will grow wise and good because it is his interest so to be.

"Individuals will feel that private happiness is allied to public good. The weak that, instead of dividing them, because equality constitutes their force; the rich that the measure of enjoyment is bounded by the constitution of the organs, and that lassitude follows satiety; the poor that the employment of time and the peace of the heart compose the highest happiness of man. And public opinion, reaching kings on their thrones, will force them to confine themselves to the limits of regular authority."

T. A. Maley Grocery Store is Sold to Samuel Manlovitz

As a result of a deal negotiated yesterday, T. A. Maley, Dresden avenue grocer, sold his business to Samuel Manlovitz, St. Clair avenue fruit dealer.

Manlovitz, who will operate both stores, assumed possession of the Maley business yesterday, but will not open the establishment until August 7.

Maley has been owner of the Dresden avenue store for 14 years. Prior to that he was associated for many years with Geon Brothers' grocery in Sixth street. He has not announced his plans for the future.

THREE JUDGMENTS IN CITY COURT

The Beers-Hanks Motor company was awarded judgment in three civil suits heard by Municipal Judge Hanley today.

Judgment for $85, alleged to be due on a note, was returned against Bradley Burns, 1175 Erie street; $36.84 against Francis Crawford, 129 West Third street, and $32 against B. L. Wright, 503 Railroad street.

The suit against Daniel and Viola Jones, 397 West Eighth street, also brought by the Beers-Hanks Motor company, was settled out of court.

Knox Township Leads in Largest Number of Horses.

There are 6,781 horses in Columbiana county, a record that has surprised not only farmers, who are now in the habit of using tractors and automobiles, but assessors as well. This character of live stock as has been placed on the tax duplicate is valued at $411,980. Knox township holds the high record, there being 673 horses in that township, with Butler township second, there being 556 horses in that district. There are but 86 horses in Liverpool township, the lowest of all township records.

There are 62 of the 89 horses owned in East Liverpool, the high record for corporations, while Rogers corporation holds the low record, with only five horses.

The record shows there to be 19,719 head of cattle in the county, Knox township holding the record with 2,225 head and Butler township in second place with 2,224 head. The valuation of the cattle, taking the figures placed on the stock by the owners has a total valuation of $789,639.

A feature in the report is the fact that there are 256 mules in the county, the valuation being placed at $12,960. Washington township holds the record with 52 mules, while there are only two mules reported in East Liverpool and one each in Salem and Wellsville.

With 10,323 head of sheep in the county, valued at $82,210, Fairfield ownship holds the record with 1,172 head and Hanover township in second place with 1,149 head.

The 5,786 hogs in the county have been valued at $75,370, with Fairfield township leading with 675 head and Knox township in second place with 674 head.

Records show 152,371 head of poultry in the county, valued at $126,400, with Fairfield township leading with 19,806 head, and Rogers corporation in last place with only 20 head of poultry reported.

The complete live stock record of the county is as follows:

Divorce Granted.

A decree of divorce has been granted Harry R. Seibert against his wife, Blanche M. Seibert, by Judge W. H. Spence on the grounds of gross neglect of duty.

The court awarded the custody of the children to the defendant. The award of children is effective when the defendant obtains a suitable home in which to care for them, and in addition Seibert is to pay his wife $10 per week for the support of the children.

Seeks Restraining Order.

A restraining order is sought in a petition filed in common pleas court by Attorney George L. Lafferty, of Lisbon, representing Luke Wainwright against Normal Nichols, Lillie Nichols and the Peoples Savings & Loan company of Lisbon. The petition relates that the plaintiff is the owner of a strip of land in Lisbon upon which are growing fruit and that unless restrained by an order of court the defendants threaten to destroy the fruit.

Judgment Rendered.

Judgment by default for $1,400 has been rendered by Judge Spence in the case of Jane A. DeVeny against Joseph R. DeVeny and others. The court has ordered one of the defendants, H. H. Kirk, as administrator of the estate of Grace P. DeVeny to pay the plaintiff from the interest or distribution share of Joseph R. DeVeny the amount of the judgment.

Alimony Order.

In the case of George B. Wolfgang against Ella Jane Wolfgang, the court has allowed counsel fees for the defendant, which the plaintiff has been ordered to pay within 10 days. Temporary alimony has also been set by the court at $6 per week, this payment to be made by the plaintiff to the defendant beginning August 4.

Woman Given Divorce.

On the grounds of gross neglect of duty, a decree of divorce has been given Marie Kennedy in her action against her husband, Lester Kennedy. Mrs. Kennedy has been restored to her maiden name, Marie Patterson.

Sale Confirmed.

A sale has been confirmed and a deed and distribution ordered by Judge W. H. Spence in the case of the East Palestine Building and Loan Association against Robert Heads and others.

MRS. VERA MORRIS SEEKS DIVORCE

Leroy E. Morris, a painter, residing at 41 Rose street, Salem, has been sued for divorce by his wife, Vera G. Morris, the petition having been filed in common pleas court by Attorney K. L. Cobourn.

The petition relates that the couple were married at Salem August 24, 1922.

Morris is charged with extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty for the last three years. Mrs. Morris declares that she has been compelled to leave her home and return to the home of her father, George Stewart. In addition to seeking a divorce, the plaintiff also asks the court for custody of her children and alimony, and also a temporary restraining order against Morris from interfering with her or her children.

Marriage License.

Joseph P. Nolan, formerly of Kokomo, Ind., but now residing at East Palestine, and Helen Vanyo, of East Palestine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vanyo, obtained a marriage license from Probate Judge Lodge Riddle and were married at Lisbon by Justice M. K. Zimerman.

Restraining Order Issued.

A temporary restraining order has been issued in common pleas court in the case of Vera G. Morris against LeRoy Morris, the order being granted as prayed for in the petition, and without bond.

Sebring

Several Sebring people expect to attend the Pomona grange picnic at the Mahoning county fair grounds at Canfield, Saturday, July 31. In the morning an indoor baseball game between the married and single men will be staged. At noon a basket picnic will be served. A short literary program will be presented, followed by an address by Hon. John T. Brown, member of the house of representatives.

Class No. 3 of the United Presbyterian church met with their teacher, Mrs. L. H. Glass in Beloit recently. The afternoon was spent in playing games. A picnic lunch was served.

But one report on the program of the Salvation Army drive for $500 in Sebring is available. The Saxon China company reports raising $104. According to Ray Cliff, campaign manager, reports from the other shops will be turned in shortly. The drive for funds which began July 15, will close when the quota has been raised.

With an attendance of more than 5,000, the Sebring camp grounds closed its last session Sunday after 10 days of religious meetings in which close to 20,000 people attended. Do Thin Folks Know These Facts?
Regardless of age, sex or family history—subnormal weight is dangerous!
Excessive Thinness means Low Vitality—Low Vitality means poor resistance—poor resistance means weakness and inability to fight or ward off sickness and disease. Ask your Doctor.
In addition to these well known truths, is this further fact! Life Insurance Companies refuse to sell Insurance to folks who are "too thin." All the Big Companies are very strict in regard to this ruling. Ask your Doctor why.
If you are five or more pounds under weight, you should start at once to correct your condition. Eat plenty of nourishing food, get as much sleep as possible and take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets every day for at least a month!
McCoy's tablets — containing the world known, body building, flesh producing power of old fashioned, stomach turning Cod Liver Oil—are as easy and pleasant to take as after dinner mints, and you can get them from Mathews Medicine Stores and all good druggists (60 tablets 60c) on an absolute guarantee of money back if regular use for 30 days does not increase your weight at least 5 pounds!
Nearly twenty million McCoy's tablets used last month. Ask your Doctor or Druggist why—then, start their use at once!

CHICAGO'S LAKE FRONT FISHERMAN, CALLED WORLD'S STRANGEST HERMIT

CHICAGO.—The world's strangest hermit has been found, in the heart of Chicago!

In a little rock-sheltered cave on the shore of Lake Michigan, within a stone's threw of the Field Museum, Otto the minnow fisher, dwells in peace, comfort and happiness.

Otto, 54, a native of Germany, hasn't any relatives, and few friends, he says. For eight years his only home has been the little nook on the lake front, and he doesn't encourage more than a casual acquaintanceship from any one.

Fishing tackle forms his interior decorative scheme. A frying pan and a coffee pot; a gasoline stove and a few pots and dishes are all he has and "all I need."

"I've seen a couple of picture shows," Otto admitted. "But I like scenery, and,"—his arm swept significantly,— "where is there any better scenery than that? A wide circle, including the lake, Grant park, Field Museum, and the ever-changing Michigan boulevard skyline.

"That," and he pointed to the busy boulevard, streaming with life "that's the blamedest, nicest view there is anywhere. During the week nights, with the lights on, I crawl into my cave and go to sleep.

"When the sun comes up, I'm awake. I make enough money to live on selling minnows to fishermen. And what could be better than that for me?"

Dancing in bathing suits is being frowned upon, perhaps because they they are too warm for such strenuous exercise.—Canton News.

SIGNS OF BYGONE DAYS ARE SEEN AS ST. LOUIS DISCARDS BEER VATS

ST. LOUIS — Reminiscences of bygone days can be seen along the shores of the Mississippi river, where stretching out for considerable distance on the water-front are stored 165 large beer tanks, glass-enameled inside and 10 feet in diameter.

The tanks bear mute evidence of the extent to which the advent of prohibition has injured the brewery business. Thirsty mathematicians, who occasionally wander down by the river to look with longing eyes on the once valuable vessels have figured out that the tanks were capable of holding and did contain at one time 3,950,000 gallons or 31,600,000 drinks of beer.

The equipment, which once was a vital part of the Anheuser-Busch, Inc., breweries, represented an original investment of $500,000. Due, however, to the slump in their popularity and legality, they were sold recently as junk for a price that is said to have been less than 10 per cent of what they cost.

When the Volstead spirit first cast its shadows over the brewery properties, the owners tried vainly to sell them to oil companies, dairies and numerous other concerns using tanks. Finally, when a purchaser could not readily be found, the equipment was sold for junk at only a small fraction of their worth and stored along the river when the brewery's stock house was rented out to a furniture company.

German Court Blames Republic for Inflation In Course of Trial

MANNHEIM.—That the Republic was responsible for the inflation has been publicly established by a civil court here in a trial against the national socialist leader Ferdinand Orth.

Orth had to face trial on the charge of offence against the Republic which he allegedly had given in a speech denouncing the Republic as a "profiteers' republic, which deserves to be hanged at the lamp post, for she has robbed widows and orphans of their money.

The court acquitted Orth following the argument of the counsel for defense. In his speech the counsel asserted that the government, in cooperation with the Reichsbank, wilfully brought about inflation.

CLEAR VISION AND COMFORT
GLASSES ARE IMPORTANT

Do you remember Theodore Roosevelt's story of how he discovered when he was thirteen years old that he could not see well?

He complained to his father, who provided glasses.

In his "Autobiography," published by Macmillan, he wrote:

"I had no idea how beautiful the world was until I got those spectacles.

"I had been a clumsy and awkward little boy, and while much of my clumsiness and awkwardness was doubtless due to general characteristics, a good deal of it was due to the fact that I could not see and yet was wholly ignorant that I was not seeing.

"The recollection of this experience gives me a keen sympathy with those who are trying in our public schools and elsewhere to remove the physical causes of deficiency in children, who are often unjustly blamed for being obstinate or unambitious, or mentally stupid."

T. R. was not unique in his defects. Examinations by the American Red Cross nurses in Pennsylvania schools showed that one child in every six or seven was suffering from a physical defect serious enough to retard normal growth and development.

Watch your own child and let your eye sight specialist examine his eyes. Even so small a thing as a pair of glasses may open a new world for the youngster.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN.

During the latter half of April, Bee's spirit revived, and she drove herself with extraordinary enthusiasm. Day after day she went her job-hunting rounds. Every evening she worked briskly and brightly at the restaurant. To put to use the later nights, she set herself the new task of learning certain Shakespearean roles. Portia was her favorite. She often voiced a pet theory that the long-established custom of using "The Merchant of Venice" as a stellar vehicle for the actor who played Shylock was a monstrosity. "It's Portias play," she would say, "and some day a producer is going to discover that little fact.' She conveyed a measure of her enthusiasm to a studious young actor who had played bits in some of the Village productions, and with him worked earnestly on the casket scene, and also on the balcony scene from "Rome and Juliet."

Louise watched her with interest, even with admiration. The girl was making a fight of it. She wouldn't be beaten. And while it was a question among her friends whether she could ever make real headway, handicapped by her rather small voice and by the lack of a boldly outlined personality—even by her education, many would say, for the stage is a place for the exhibition, in the main, of primitive emotions, to which work the naturally unrestrained sort of nature seems best, or at least most adapted. Still, her fighting spirit inspired confidence. She was the gamest little person, Lou decided, with an affectionate glow, that ever walked on two feet. She knew what she wanted, and went after it with conviction and fervor.

But a blow fell, a small blow. In May business dropped off so sharply at the Peacock Feather that Bee was let go. There would be no more free dinners, and an income of exactly nothing at all. The next morning Louise, over her coffee cup, observed that Bee was dressing for the day, flapperlike, in next to nothing at all—bloomers, a dainty slip, rolled stockings of thin silk in flesh-color, and a scanty, simple little dres. Next appeared the familiar tin make-up box, which had been purchased in considerable girlish excitement on the occasion of her first little role in a Village play, and Bee rather grimly but with a deft hand touched her cheeks withk rouge, strengthened her eyebrows and applied a seldom-used lipstick.

At this, Lou, who had grown preoccupied of late, asked: "What on earth are you up to?"

Bee didn't reply at once, but moved across the room, tried a dance step, pirouetted, and then looked down at herself, smoothing her dress. She knew that her slim little body was prettily made, and hadn't the slightest self-consciousness about it. Without an attractive body a girl couldn't hope to get far in the theater.

"I've got to get something," she finally remarked, "and pretty darn quick."

"Are you out to vamp the managers, child?"

"Not exactly. I figure there's nothing left but the summer revues nad I'm going to get into one of them if I can.'

"Chorus?"

"If it comes to that. Though they often have small speaking parts. I'll take anything. I may not be a Pavlowa, but I could pick up ordinary chorus steps without any trouble."

"You'd look well in tights," mused Lou.

"I'd have to," Bee answered, "if any! Tights, I understand, have rather gone out." She was still in grim mood. "And those hard-boiled gentlemen have got to know that the minute they set eyes on me, or they won't talk business at all." She made a deep courtesy, prettily. "Hence the costume.'

"Well, I don't know why you shouldn't," said Lou, still very thoughful.

"There's a living in it, as a stopgap."

"And a good many different sorts of people turn up in those choruses—though it won't be the same as our Village crowds."

"Certainly not. It'll be Broadway. But look here.' Bee turned on her with more than a touch of heat: 'Do you know how many of our biggest people have begun in the chorus, women and men both? I could name you twenty. More!"

"I don't doubt it.' Lou rose and put on her hat. "Time to go up to the factory. By the way, I forgot to tell you I ran into Delia yesterday. At noon, uptown. She didn't look well. Rather wan, I thought."

Bee dropped down on the couch, curling her feet under her. "I'd almost forgotten her," she remarked, sobering. "What did she have to say?"

"Well—I got the impression that she did and didn't want to talk. I didn't have much time. Was on my way back from lunch. She did finally ask if I knew where Arthur was."

"You don't mean to say he never even told her before he went?"

"He hasn't gone.'

"But—that's funny!"

"There's been some delay about the expedition. Seems to me they're sailing this week, though. Within the next few days. There was something in the paper a day or so ago."

"But didn't she see that?"

"Arthur's name hasn't appeared. And I doubt if that girl knows much about what's going on in the world. By the way, shes lost her job."

"No." Bee was distressed. "I really should have kept in touch with her. Been pretty much occupied with my own problems. Still, I don't know what I could have done."

"Not a thing. She WOULD go her own way."

"Didn't she say any more? How did she come to lose her job, anyway?"

"She only said—what was it?. . . . Oh, yes—that they cleaned out all Fred's crowd when he left the concern."

"Fred out too? My word!" Bee looked more closely at Louise. It wasn't like that exact mind to forget so striking a bit of news.

"And that's all I know."

"You haven't see Fred again?"

"No." Louise moved to the door, then paused to ask: "Where shall we eat tonight?"

"We may as well go over to the Feather. Everything's friendly enough there."

"All right." The door opened. "I'll be down there about six."

"I must say I'd like to know how —" But the door closed.

MONTE CARLO IN SCREEN HIT

When several members of the studio technical staff and research department had visited the resort, memory alone was not relied upon. More than three hundred photographs, drawings and sketches were obtained from libraries and book-stores the country over, so that every detail of the famous continental rendezvous be constructed as it actually exists.

Featured players in the cast of "The Lucky Lady," which is the first production to be directed by Raoul Walsh since "The Wanderer," are William Collier Jr., Greta Nissen, Lionel Barrymore and Marc MacDermott. The picture is from an original story by Robert E. Sherwood, noted magazine editor and motion picture critic, and Bertram Bloch. It was scenarized by James T. O'Donohue and comes to the Ceramic the last three days of this week.

REPORT FILED ON LIVESTOCK

Knox Township Leads in Largest Number of Horses.

There are 6,781 horses in Columbiana county, a record that has surprised not only farmers, who are now in the habit of using tractors and automobiles, but assessors as well. This character of live stock as has been placed on the tax duplicate is valued at $411,980. Knox township holds the high record, there being 673 horses in that township, with Butler township second, there being 556 horses in that district. There are but 86 horses in Liverpool township, the lowest of all township records.

There are 62 of the 89 horses owned in East Liverpool, the high record for corporations, while Rogers corporation holds the low record, with only five horses.

The record shows there to be 19,719 head of cattle in the county, Knox township holding the record with 2,225 head and Butler township in second place with 2,224 head. The valuation of the cattle, taking the figures placed on the stock by the owners has a total valuation of $789,639.

A feature in the report is the fact that there are 256 mules in the county, the valuation being placed at $12,960. Washington township holds the record with 52 mules, while there are only two mules reported in East Liverpool and one each in Salem and Wellsville.

With 10,323 head of sheep in the county, valued at $82,210, Fairfield ownship holds the record with 1,172 head and Hanover township in second place with 1,149 head.

The 5,786 hogs in the county have been valued at $75,370, with Fairfield township leading with 675 head and Knox township in second place with 674 head.

Records show 152,371 head of poultry in the county, valued at $126,400, with Fairfield township leading with 19,806 head, and Rogers corporation in last place with only 20 head of poultry reported.

Divorce Granted.

A decree of divorce has been granted Harry R. Seibert against his wife, Blanche M. Seibert, by Judge W. H. Spence on the grounds of gross neglect of duty.

The court awarded the custody of the children to the defendant. The award of children is effective when the defendant obtains a suitable home in which to care for them, and in addition Seibert is to pay his wife $10 per week for the support of the children.

Seeks Restraining Order.

A restraining order is sought in a petition filed in common pleas court by Attorney George L. Lafferty, of Lisbon, representing Luke Wainwright against Normal Nichols, Lillie Nichols and the Peoples Savings & Loan company of Lisbon. The petition relates that the plaintiff is the owner of a strip of land in Lisbon upon which are growing fruit and that unless restrained by an order of court the defendants threaten to destroy the fruit.

Judgment Rendered.

Judgment by default for $1,400 has been rendered by Judge Spence in the case of Jane A. DeVeny against Joseph R. DeVeny and others. The court has ordered one of the defendants, H. H. Kirk, as administrator of the estate of Grace P. DeVeny to pay the plaintiff from the interest or distribution share of Joseph R. DeVeny the amount of the judgment.

Alimony Order.

In the case of George B. Wolfgang against Ella Jane Wolfgang, the court has allowed counsel fees for the defendant, which the plaintiff has been ordered to pay within 10 days. Temporary alimony has also been set by the court at $6 per week, this payment to be made by the plaintiff to the defendant beginning August 4.

Woman Given Divorce.

On the grounds of gross neglect of duty, a decree of divorce has been given Marie Kennedy in her action against her husband, Lester Kennedy. Mrs. Kennedy has been restored to her maiden name, Marie Patterson.

Sale Confirmed.

A sale has been confirmed and a deed and distribution ordered by Judge W. H. Spence in the case of the East Palestine Building and Loan Association against Robert Heads and others.

MRS. VERA MORRIS SEEKS DIVORCE

Leroy E. Morris, a painter, residing at 41 Rose street, Salem, has been sued for divorce by his wife, Vera G. Morris, the petition having been filed in common pleas court by Attorney K. L. Cobourn.

The petition relates that the couple were married at Salem August 24, 1922.

Morris is charged with extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty for the last three years. Mrs. Morris declares that she has been compelled to leave her home and return to the home of her father, George Stewart. In addition to seeking a divorce, the plaintiff also asks the court for custody of her children and alimony, and also a temporary restraining order against Morris from interfering with her or her children.

Marriage License.

Joseph P. Nolan, formerly of Kokomo, Ind., but now residing at East Palestine, and Helen Vanyo, of East Palestine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vanyo, obtained a marriage license from Probate Judge Lodge Riddle and were married at Lisbon by Justice M. K. Zimerman.

Restraining Order Issued.

A temporary restraining order has been issued in common pleas court in the case of Vera G. Morris against LeRoy Morris, the order being granted as prayed for in the petition, and without bond.

Sebring

Several Sebring people expect to attend the Pomona grange picnic at the Mahoning county fair grounds at Canfield, Saturday, July 31. Do Thin Folks Know These Facts?
Regardless of age, sex or family history—subnormal weight is dangerous!
Excessive Thinness means Low Vitality—Low Vitality means poor resistance—poor resistance means weakness and inability to fight or ward off sickness and disease. Ask your Doctor.
In addition to these well known truths, is this further fact! Life Insurance Companies refuse to sell Insurance to folks who are "too thin." All the Big Companies are very strict in regard to this ruling. Ask your Doctor why.
If you are five or more pounds under weight, you should start at once to correct your condition. Eat plenty of nourishing food, get as much sleep as possible and take McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets every day for at least a month!
McCoy's tablets — containing the world known, body building, flesh producing power of old fashioned, stomach turning Cod Liver Oil—are as easy and pleasant to take as after dinner mints, and you can get them from Mathews Medicine Stores and all good druggists (60 tablets 60c) on an absolute guarantee of money back if regular use for 30 days does not increase your weight at least 5 pounds!
Nearly twenty million McCoy's tablets used last month. Ask your Doctor or Druggist why—then, start their use at once!

DOG WONDER AT AMERICAN

"A Hero of the Big Snows," the new Rin-Tin-Tin picture directed by Herman Raymaker, will open tomorrow at the American theatre. Rinty's mate, Nanette, makes her appearance in this new Warner production, and the cast of humans includes Alice Calhoun, Don Aivarado, Leo Willis and Mary Jane Milliken.

The story, by Ewart Adamson, has the Canadian woods as its locale, and deals with a young wastrel, Ed Nolan, who saves Rin-Tin-Tin from the brutality of a trapper. Rinty strikes up a friendship with a dog belonging to Mary Mallory, a pretty and plucky Canadian girl, and Ed finds the girl a good influence in his unhappy existence.

When Mary's baby sister falls ill and she starts out in a severe snowstorm for the doctor, Rinty aids her, and, in a thrilling fight with a wolf pack, brings the girl safely to her destination.

Rinty had been suspected of injuring the child, but in reality had rescued her from the attack of a wolf. His loyalty and bravery vindicates him of the suspicion, he saves the child, and brings together the two young lovers, after a series of thrilling incidents and encounters.

This is said to be the most exciting as well as most beautiful of Rin-Tin-Tin's pictures, and those who saw him in "Below the Line," "The Clash of the Wolves" and "The Night Cry," his recent Warner production, will realize that he has a high standard of entertainment to surpass.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN.

During the latter half of April, Bee's spirit revived, and she drove herself with extraordinary enthusiasm. Day after day she went her job-hunting rounds. Every evening she worked briskly and brightly at the restaurant. To put to use the later nights, she set herself the new task of learning certain Shakespearean roles. Portia was her favorite. She often voiced a pet theory that the long-established custom of using "The Merchant of Venice" as a stellar vehicle for the actor who played Shylock was a monstrosity. "It's Portias play," she would say, "and some day a producer is going to discover that little fact.' She conveyed a measure of her enthusiasm to a studious young actor who had played bits in some of the Village productions, and with him worked earnestly on the casket scene, and also on the balcony scene from "Rome and Juliet."

Louise watched her with interest, even with admiration. The girl was making a fight of it. She wouldn't be beaten. And while it was a question among her friends whether she could ever make real headway, handicapped by her rather small voice and by the lack of a boldly outlined personality—even by her education, many would say, for the stage is a place for the exhibition, in the main, of primitive emotions, to which work the naturally unrestrained sort of nature seems best, or at least most adapted. Still, her fighting spirit inspired confidence. She was the gamest little person, Lou decided, with an affectionate glow, that ever walked on two feet. She knew what she wanted, and went after it with conviction and fervor.

But a blow fell, a small blow. In May business dropped off so sharply at the Peacock Feather that Bee was let go. There would be no more free dinners, and an income of exactly nothing at all. The next morning Louise, over her coffee cup, observed that Bee was dressing for the day, flapperlike, in next to nothing at all—bloomers, a dainty slip, rolled stockings of thin silk in flesh-color, and a scanty, simple little dres. Next appeared the familiar tin make-up box, which had been purchased in considerable girlish excitement on the occasion of her first little role in a Village play, and Bee rather grimly but with a deft hand touched her cheeks withk rouge, strengthened her eyebrows and applied a seldom-used lipstick.

At this, Lou, who had grown preoccupied of late, asked: "What on earth are you up to?"

Bee didn't reply at once, but moved across the room, tried a dance step, pirouetted, and then looked down at herself, smoothing her dress. She knew that her slim little body was prettily made, and hadn't the slightest self-consciousness about it. Without an attractive body a girl couldn't hope to get far in the theater.

"I've got to get something," she finally remarked, "and pretty darn quick."

"Are you out to vamp the managers, child?"

"Not exactly. I figure there's nothing left but the summer revues nad I'm going to get into one of them if I can.'

"Chorus?"

"If it comes to that. Though they often have small speaking parts. I'll take anything. I may not be a Pavlowa, but I could pick up ordinary chorus steps without any trouble."

"You'd look well in tights," mused Lou.

"I'd have to," Bee answered, "if any! Tights, I understand, have rather gone out." She was still in grim mood. "And those hard-boiled gentlemen have got to know that the minute they set eyes on me, or they won't talk business at all." She made a deep courtesy, prettily. "Hence the costume.'

"Well, I don't know why you shouldn't," said Lou, still very thoughtful.

"There's a living in it, as a stopgap."

"And a good many different sorts of people turn up in those choruses—though it won't be the same as our Village crowds."

"Certainly not. It'll be Broadway. But look here.' Bee turned on her with more than a touch of heat: 'Do you know how many of our biggest people have begun in the chorus, women and men both? I could name you twenty. More!"

"I don't doubt it.' Lou rose and put on her hat. "Time to go up to the factory. By the way, I forgot to tell you I ran into Delia yesterday. At noon, uptown. She didn't look well. Rather wan, I thought."

Bee dropped down on the couch, curling her feet under her. "I'd almost forgotten her," she remarked, sobering. "What did she have to say?"

"Well—I got the impression that she did and didn't want to talk. I didn't have much time. Was on my way back from lunch. She did finally ask if I knew where Arthur was."

"You don't mean to say he never even told her before he went?"

"He hasn't gone.'

"But—that's funny!"

"There's been some delay about the expedition. Seems to me they're sailing this week, though. Within the next few days. There was something in the paper a day or so ago."

"But didn't she see that?"

"Arthur's name hasn't appeared. And I doubt if that girl knows much about what's going on in the world. By the way, shes lost her job."

"No." Bee was distressed. "I really should have kept in touch with her. Been pretty much occupied with my own problems. Still, I don't know what I could have done."

"Didn't she say any more? How did she come to lose her job, anyway?"

"She only said—what was it?. . . . Oh, yes—that they cleaned out all Fred's crowd when he left the concern."

"Fred out too? My word!" Bee looked more closely at Louise. It wasn't like that exact mind to forget so striking a bit of news.

"And that's all I know."

"You haven't see Fred again?"

"No." Louise moved to the door, then paused to ask: "Where shall we eat tonight?"

"We may as well go over to the Feather. Everything's friendly enough there."

"All right." The door opened. "I'll be down there about six."

"I must say I'd like to know how —" But the door closed.

MONTE CARLO IN SCREEN HIT

When several members of the studio technical staff and research department had visited the resort, memory alone was not relied upon. More than three hundred photographs, drawings and sketches were obtained from libraries and book-stores the country over, so that every detail of the famous continental rendezvous be constructed as it actually exists.

Featured players in the cast of "The Lucky Lady," which is the first production to be directed by Raoul Walsh since "The Wanderer," are William Collier Jr., Greta Nissen, Lionel Barrymore and Marc MacDermott. The picture is from an original story by Robert E. Sherwood, noted magazine editor and motion picture critic, and Bertram Bloch. It was scenarized by James T. O'Donohue and comes to the Ceramic the last three days of this week.

Number of local young people plan to attend the dance tomorrow night at Mineral Springs. These affairs are attracting large crowds from various sections of the county.

COUNTY VOTING LISTS APPROVED

Hancock county voting lists were passed on and approved at a meeting of the county court held today at New Cumberland. During the past 10 days a number of additional names from the various districts have been placed on the books.

Grant district, with the heaviest registration in the county, is expected to poll a heavy vote at the primaries next Tuesday.

New Discovery Dissolves Freckles

Gone in 4 Days

Here's a new and inexpensive cream called Flyte that is easy to apply—will not stain—yet after you've used it for four days your freckles are all gone—simply melted away.

Women have waited long for a real freckle remover and now they can obtain it at Carnahan's Drug Stores, C. G. Anderson, J. D. Holloway or any live up-to-date druggist anywhere with the distinct understanding that if it fails your money will be returned.

And after your freckles are gone you'll find that your skin has improved—it will be cleaner, clearer and more youthful looking. Ask for a jar of Flyte.

FISHING LAWS BEING ENFORCED

Deputy state fish and game wardens have been busy during the past month rounding up violators of the state fishing laws. Number of arrests have been made in the lower counties in which the accused were handed fines.

Several deputies working out of Charleston make regular visits to the Panhandle district, including Hancock county. Receipts for hunting and fishing licenses will probably set a new high record this year, according to reports made by the commission.

Teaching Quotas Filled.

Hancock county school districts will begin the term in September with full quotas of teachers. Majority of the teachers of last year were re-engaged prior to leaving for their homes.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

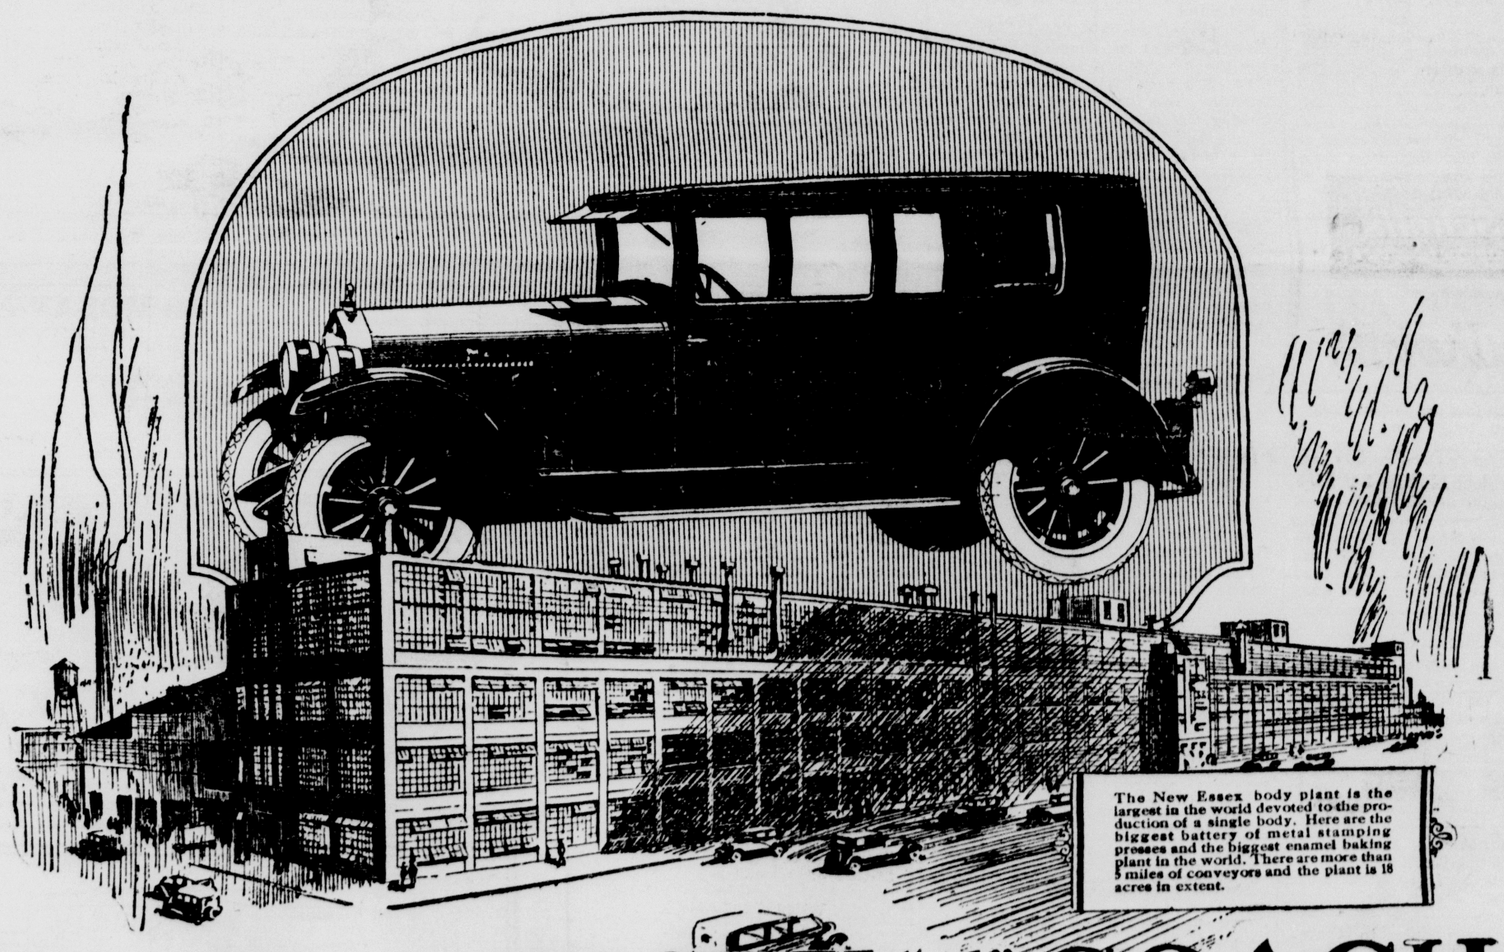
We Built a $10,000,000 Body Plant to Make This New Essex Possible



The New Essex body plant is the largest in the world devoted to the production of a single body. Here are the biggest battery of metal stamping presses and the biggest enamel baking plant in the world. There are more than 5 miles of conveyors and the plant is 18 acres in extent.

"At Your Door"

Standard equipment includes: Automatic Windshield Cleaner, Rear View Mirror, Transmission Lock (built-in), Radiator Shutters, Moto-Meter, Combination Stop and Tail Light.

Many of these advantages you will recognize at a glance. But you will have a higher appreciation of their meaning when you know that a plant of 18 acres which, with equipment, approximated a cost of $10,000,000, was first built and that special machinery had to be designed, to make possible this New Coach now on display.

Again Essex "6" offers in the design and construction of the New Coach as radical an improvement as was the original Coach itself.

It is all steel, bolted and riveted, and so rigid that squeaks, rattles and distortions, are as unlikely as in a steel building. Doors are so hung that a man may hang on an open door while the car is being driven over rough roads, without springing it out of true.

And it is so designed and constructed as to permit the use in a totally new manner of a high baked enamel, most lustrous and lasting finish. This has made possible new combinations in finish that will please your eye.

There has been constant improvement in the chassis from the first Essex shipped. Every week has seen some betterment. But only by the accumulation of the resources, the information, experience, and the skill that have resulted from the purchase of 350,000 Essex "Sixes" in a short period of time, was it possible to erect the plants, to perfect the machinery, to create the designs that have resulted in this car which we ask you to inspect and to drive as the best looking, best value, best Essex ever buil..

DOG WONDER AT AMERICAN

"A Hero of the Big Snows," the new Rin-Tin-Tin picture directed by Herman Raymaker, will open tomorrow at the American theatre. Rinty's mate, Nanette, makes her appearance in this new Warner production, and the cast of humans includes Alice Calhoun, Don Aivarado, Leo Willis and Mary Jane Milliken.

The story, by Ewart Adamson, has the Canadian woods as its locale, and deals with a young wastrel, Ed Nolan, who saves Rin-Tin-Tin from the brutality of a trapper. Rinty strikes up a friendship with a dog belonging to Mary Mallory, a pretty and plucky Canadian girl, and Ed finds the girl a good influence in his unhappy existence.

When Mary's baby sister falls ill and she starts out in a severe snowstorm for the doctor, Rinty aids her, and, in a thrilling fight with a wolf pack, brings the girl safely to her destination.

Rinty had been suspected of injuring the child, but in reality had rescued her from the attack of a wolf. His loyalty and bravery vindicates him of the suspicion, he saves the child, and brings together the two young lovers, after a series of thrilling incidents and encounters.

This is said to be the most exciting as well as most beautiful of Rin-Tin-Tin's pictures, and those who saw him in "Below the Line," "The Clash of the Wolves" and "The Night Cry," his recent Warner production, will realize that he has a high standard of entertainment to surpass.

A coal huckster was arrested in Ireland recently for not displaying a sign giving the price of the fuel.

Sonny Deshler Leads League Hurlers In First Half Season

Hits Peak Form in Pitching Auto Outfit to Place Among Leaders on Opening Lap; Mike Cebula, Chester, Sets Pace in Strikeouts.

"SONNY" Deshler led City Industrial league pitchers during the first half of the season with an average of .833, according to figures announced by T. T. Jones, official statistician of the loop.

The southpaw hurler of the Turk-Nash club shot them over in great style for the auto outfit during the entire initial half and results of games thus far in the final period indicate he has gotten away to a good start on the concluding lap.

Digman, of Laughlin, who severed connections with the city loop after the play-off contest with Chester, was close on Deshler's heels for slab honors. He figured in more games than "Sonny" did and wound up with an average of .800.

Wilde, Chester high school athletic coach and one of Pilot Riley's big finds of the present season, although pitching in but six games, ranked third with a .750 mark.

Mike Cebula, of Chester, statistics show, was the hardest worked slabber in the loop. Mike shoved the horsehide in 61 and 2-3 innings of 13 games. He also pitched the game of June 15 with K. T. K., and won it, but lost the victory when the contest was officially thrown out and ordered replayed.

Had it been permitted to count Cebula would have finished the half with a record of .700 instead of the .667 which he has.

Mike, however, contributed to the record making feats of the half by turning in the leading strike-out mark. He fanned 63 batters and allowed but 41 hits.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

The fast-traveling Yankees made it seven straight by nosing out the Browns again, 3 to 2. Shocker outpitched Wingard and the Browns lost all save honor when Bennett fell asleep and was nipped off second base.

Another winning spurt was stretched to five straight when the Braves beat the Cubs in the thirteenth inning, 3 to 2, on a single by Burrus. Bancroft got four hits.

Connie Mack almost collapsed of heart failure as the Indians scalped the A's twice, 5 to 2 and 2 to 0. Uhle and Levsen were the winning pitchers.

Red Faber won a 5 to 2 decision from Reuther, of the Senators, and the White Sox regained fifth place.

The Tigers got only four hits off Ruffing and lost to the Red Sox again, 5 to 4. A balk by Rip Collins let in the winning run.

With the moth holes in their bats still unrepaired, the Giants were whitewashed by the Pirates, 6 to 0. Lee Meadows allowed five hits and six fouls.

Adolf Luque tamed the Robins so thoroughly that the Red outfielders did not have to make a single putout. McWeeny pitched grade A ball but lost, 4 to 3.

GREYS-HEIMIES PLAY TO 5-5 TIE

The Laughlin Greys and the Heimie All Stars played to a 5-5 deadlock last evening at Newell.

Riser, Laughlin hurler, permitted eight hits and fanned seven. English was touched for 11 bingles and breezed five batters.

Wyant, Heimies' center fielder, contributed the sensations in the outgarden. F. Williams, of the Greys, added a few thrills when he stole home in the seventh with the run that tied the count.

The two clubs will play again on Monday night.

BULGERS BOW TO RESERVES

Chester Club Cops 2-0 Decision at Smith Field.

The Chester Reserves won their fifth straight game last night, beating Bulger Drugs, 2 to 0, at Smith Field, Chester.

The contest developed into a pitchers' battle between Zorzie, of Chester, and "Doc" Kinsey of the Drugs. Each had 10 strikeouts to his credit. The West Virginians, however, punched out three hits while Zorzie gave the Drugs one.

Wobbly support accorded Kinsey put the game on ice for the Reserves, no fewer than six errors being made by the pill rollers' infield.

Chester scored one in the first when Moore reached first on Wurzel's error and went to third on Hendrick's slow grounder to Ferguson and scored when Vorndran dropped Maley's Texas leaguer back of first. Ewing was hit and stole second. He went to third on Langley's roller to Vorndran and scored when Wurzel dropped Hannen's fly.

The Drugs threatened in the third when White got the Ohioans' first and only hit of the game. He was nipped on an attempted steal, however.

The Reserves and Drugs will play later in the season on the Drugs' back yard.

The Reserves will tangle with the Newell Grays at Chester Friday in the second game of a three-tilt series. The Reserves won at Newell last Monday and if Newell should win Friday the play-off will be staged at West End. The Reserves would like to arrange series with the Potters Supply and the K. of C. teams. Morry at 2366-J, is booking manager.

YANKEES PULLING FOR ST. LOUIS TO WIN

'Tell The World,' Says Dempsey, 'I'm Going to Fight-Someone, Somewhere, In September'

"Somebody," Declares Champ, "is Going to Get the Benefit of All My Hard Work."

CAMP VIGIL, near Colorado Springs, Col., July 29.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, gave International News Service the following statement today:

I want the world to know today that I am going to fight somebody, somewhere, sometime in September.

I have been doing all I possibly could in training, knowing I am certain to box again in a few weeks and I am in superb shape.

For the past eight months I have been in almost constant training and someone is going to get the benefit of all my hard work and worry.

I don't know just where I will defend my title, but I hope it is in New York. I wouldn't care about fighting in Chicago, as the law provides for only 10 rounds and I prefer the longer route, affording a chance for a more decisive affair.

I want to go the route with somebody and I am just as sure I can win over a long distance as a shorter one.

This mountain camp is a splendid one and I have done a lot of work here. Three weeks to go, with boxing mostly, will top me off in fine style.

My wind is in fine shape from the drill over the mountain roads and my legs are better than they were five years ago. Yes, and my nose is good and strong, too.

But I want the world to know this—I want to fight. It has been said I don't, but I tell you I do.

I will fight and I can. It's my business and I make my living at it.

INSIDE Ggolf

By CHESTER HORTON, Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

To launch the back swing by initiating the action with body power is a simple enough matter, but one which might easily be confusing to some players, especially when they first tried it. To do so, all that is required is that in moving the clubhead back from the ball you begin the entire action by starting through the hips and moving the body over until you feel you are directly on top of your right leg. Meantime the club has rather dragged along the ground, about even with the hands. This initial movement of the body will call the shoulders immediately into action and, following them, will be the arms. This brings about a thoroughly co-ordinated movement of the club into the back swing. The body, having started things, will remain anchored on the right leg, which stiffens to hold it.

J. M.-A. A. WELLS REACH FINALS

Will Fight it Out for Hall Memorial Trophy.

NOTHING short of a miracle or catastrophe can keep the Hall Memorial trophy from going where a lot of other good trophies have gone—into the hands of Joe M. Wells, former state champ and the best bet in the annual tourney which comes to a close Saturday at the Country club.

Joe will fight it out for the trophy with A. A. Wells, a brother, and a worthy opponent, in the final match in the first division.

Joe Wells defeated Edwin Wells, Jr., 2 up in the semi-finals and Arthur won from R. T. Hall, 3 and 2.

The opponent for T. E. Lewis, finalist in the second flight, has not been selected. Lewis reached the last rung by conquering W. J. Weaver, 2 up, and will face either Ross or C. H. Walker, who have not yet played their semi-final match, for the honors in the division.

In the first flight consolations C. C. Ashbaugh won from C. A. Bough by default and E. H. Hall won from G. R. Thomas, 3 and 2.

In the consolation second flight C. C. Pusey finished ahead of Larry Smith, 3 and 2, and Walter Durkee triumphed over T. S. Brush in a battle that went one extra hole for a decision.

De MOLAY-ACME GAME TOMORROW

But What'll Cards Do With World's Series?

By Ford C. Frick.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 29.—With less than two months to go to the end of the season and their nine and a half game lead showing every sign of perfect health and nourishment, your Yankees finally have allowed themselves the pleasure of a bit of world series conversation.

Which may be a bit premature—but then, as the poets have remarked on previous occasions:

"'Tis better if you love and lose,
"Than if you never love at all."

The thing which brought up the world series talk with the Hugmen was not base hits or opposing strategy or even the Yankee success thus far. It was the St. Louis ball park. A park, incidentally which would drive a deaf mute to eloquent oratory under the circumstances. For the Yankees, be it know, are pulling for the Cardinals to win—or would pull for them if they had some place other than the present concrete hatbox in which to play their games.

Playing a world series in St. Louis under existing conditions would resemble nothing else in the world so much as a seven handed poker game with a stripped deck and four jokers. Anything could happen and probably would.

Cards Think They'll Win.

The Cardinals believe they will win; all St. Louis is determined they shall win, the majority of fans around the country would like to see them win. But supposing they should win. Can you imagine the consternation when the lord high commissioner of baseball's destiny swings into town, calls upon the mayor, and declares:

"Sir, here's your world series. Now what are you going to do about it."

Probably you've already heard the story of the Irishman who bet ten dollars that he could hold a bull by the horn for five minutes. He did it too, and won the money. But it cost him twenty dollars a moment later to hire three men to help him let go.

However, this is a story of the Yankees and their worries, not a recital of the worries attendant upon Sam Breadon when, and if, the Cardinals win the pennant.

While a considerable western trip still lies ahead of them, the Hugmen are not particularly worried. The first game of the series here proved that the boys have regained the batting eyes which carried them to such heights earlier in the season. And once they start hitting they are a tough outfit to head. Hitting is their sole and only strategy but it works—so long as they hit.

The Phils squelched the Cardinals, 6 to 3, but lost the nightcap, 5 to 4, and flopped back into the cellar.

Beatrice Lillie
Lady Peel

ON the stage Beatrice Lillie is the delightfully talented star of Charlot's Revue, which for two years has so successfully invaded America. In private life she is Lady Peel, wife of Sir Robert Peel, descendant of the great English statesman of the same name in the first half of the nineteenth century.

This is what Lady Peel says about one of her experiences in America:

"When I came to this country I did not know what the popular drink was. Soon after my arrival I was offered a glass of Clicquot Club Pale Dry Ginger Ale. I liked it immediately. It has such a delicate taste and such a jolly sparkle. Between the acts and after the theatre I find it particularly welcome. Clicquot Club is indeed one more thing I like about America."

Two flavors to choose from

YOU can now get Clicquot Club Ginger Ale in two flavors. The new Pale Dry Clicquot is very delicate and subtle in taste. The Golden Clicquot is more gingery, a particularly invigorating drink—for a generation the most popular of all bottled beverages, the nation over. Clicquot Club Ginger Ale, noted for its high quality, also gives more generous quantity and at a very reasonable price. The Clicquot Club Company, Millis, Massachusetts.

Hospitals are filled with drivers who didn't care

Every day you read of motor accidents due to faulty, inadequate brakes.

Why? Because the drivers were careless about the brakes—the most important parts of the car. Human life, dollars, time, trouble all depend on those brakes of yours.

Are they in good condition? Will they stop your car quickly, instantly? If not you'd better drive around and let us look them over. They may need a simple adjustment or relining. We'll put on Silver Edge Raybestos and apply it by the Raybestos Method. Then you can feel safe and sure and confident. Better do it today. Tomorrow may be too late!

FISHING LAWS BEING ENFORCED

Deputy state fish and game wardens have been busy during the past month rounding up violators of the state fishing laws. Number of arrests have been made in the lower counties in which the accused were handed fines.

Several deputies working out of Charleston make regular visits to the Panhandle district, including Hancock county. Receipts for hunting and fishing licenses will probably set a new high record this year, according to reports made by the commission.

Teaching Quotas Filled.

Hancock county school districts will begin the term in September with full quotas of teachers. Majority of the teachers of last year were re-engaged prior to leaving for their homes.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens, or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

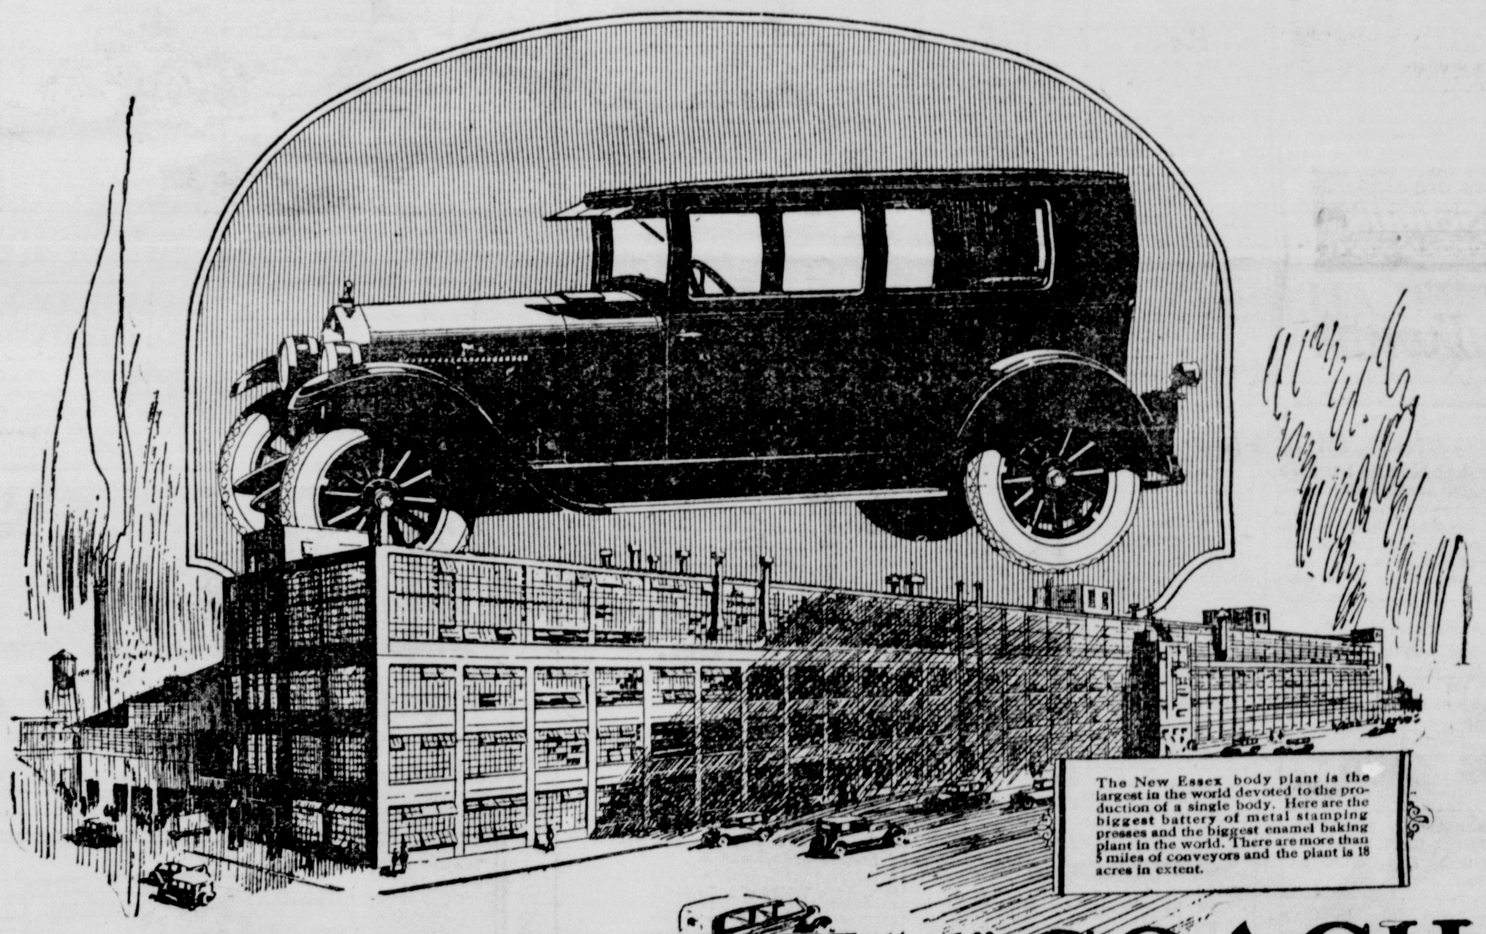
We Built a $10,000,000 Body Plant to Make This New Essex Possible



The New Essex body plant is the largest in the world devoted to the production of a single body. Here are the biggest battery of metal stamping presses and the biggest enamel baking plant in the world. There are more than 5 miles of conveyors and the plant is 18 acres in extent.

"At Your Door"

Standard equipment includes: Automatic Windshield Cleaner, Rear View Mirror, Transmission Lock (built-in), Radiator Shutters, Moto-Meter, Combination Stop and Tail Light.

Many of these advantages you will recognize at a glance. But you will have a higher appreciation of their meaning when you know that a plant of 18 acres which, with equipment, approximated a cost of $10,000,000, was first built and that special machinery had to be designed, to make possible this New Coach now on display.

Again Essex "6" offers in the design and construction of the New Coach as radical an improvement as was the original Coach itself.

It is all steel, bolted and riveted, and so rigid that squeaks, rattles and distortions, are as unlikely as in a steel building. Doors are so hung that a man may hang on an open door while the car is being driven over rough roads, without springing it out of true.

And it is so designed and constructed as to permit the use in a totally new manner of a high baked enamel, most lustrous and lasting finish. This has made possible new combinations in finish that will please your eye.

There has been constant improvement in the chassis from the first Essex shipped. Every week has seen some betterment. But only by the accumulation of the resources, the information, experience, and the skill that have resulted from the purchase of 350,000 Essex "Sixes" in a short period of time, was it possible to erect the plants, to perfect the machinery, to create the designs that have resulted in this car which we ask you to inspect and to drive as the best looking, best value, best Essex ever built.

PRESBYTERIANS TO HOLD MEET

Annual Synod Will be Held in Moundsville October 19-21.

Hancock county clergymen and ministers plan to attend the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of West Virginia and the Synodical society to be held in the First Presbyterian church of Moundsville, October 19-21.

Prominent of the eminent clergy and laymen who will attend is Dr. W. L. Thompson, former president of Ohio State University, Columbus, and moderator of the General Assembly. Dr. Thompson will address the joint meeting of the two bodies on Wednesday, October 20.

Rev. James P. Leyenberger, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, Wheeling as stated, clerk of the West Virginia Synod, is the highest officer in the organization and will address one of the meetings, as will also Dr. Samuel Martin Gibson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who is moderator of the synod.

Miss Anne T. Reid, representing the Foreign Missions, will address the state meeting on that subject. Miss Reid has just returned from the Orient.

The tentative program provides for joint conference of the Synod and the women's organizations, the Synodical society, in the morning with separate sessions of the two organizations in the afternoons. A young people's banquet will likely be featured one of the evenings.

PRIMARY FIGHT NEARING CLOSE

Chief interest in the county primary contest next Tuesday centers in the fight for county clerk and county commissioner on the Republican tickets where both incumbents have opposition.

R. R. Hobbs, of Chester, present clerk, is being opposed for the nomination by James A. Gracie, of Pughtown, while N. W. Ballantyne, seeking renomination for county commissioner, is opposed by M. N. Price. Both are from New Cumberland.

Corporate Communion.

Corporate communion of St. Matthew's parish will be held in the church at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. All communicants are urged to attend.

NOTICE.

The annual meeting of lot owners of Locust Hill cemetery will be held in the First National Bank Bldg., Saturday, July 31st, at 2 p. m. Election of officers will be held.

Pennsylvania—From points within a radius of 75 miles of Wheeling and Bridgeport. This including also points from the Ohio River and Western division.

Deaths of Weirton Men Investigated by G. A. Arner.

Coroner George A. Arner, of Chester, conducted inquests yesterday into the deaths of two Weirton men, George Thomas, 37, who was killed Tuesday by a fall of tin while working in the plant of the Weirton Steel company, and Stanley Coskey, 27, who died suddenly Monday night while visiting with friends in New Cumberland.

The former met his death while operating a crane which struck a heavy mass of tin, causing it to topple, burying him under the debris. Verdict of "accidental death" was returned.

Coskey, who recently recovered from an attack of pneumonia, was stricken while dancing. The coroner returned a verdict that death was caused by heart disease.

Thomas leaves a wife and large family in Greece.

Union Services Arranged.

Union services of the congregations of the First Presbyterian, United Presbyterian and First Methodist Episcopal churches will be held Sunday evening in the latter church. Special music will be featured.

Farewell Sermon.

Rev. C. L. McCoy, who recently accepted a call to the Sligo Presbyterian church, Clarion county, will preach his final sermon at 2:30 Sunday afternoon in the Mill Creek Presbyterian church. He will leave for his new charge next week.

Lot Holders to Meet.

Lot holders of Locust Hill cemetery will hold their annual meeting in the First National bank building Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Officers will be elected at this session.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

What do you need to know? Is there some point about your business or personal life that puzzles you? Is there something you want to know without delay? Submit your question to Frederic J. Haskin, director of our Washington Information Bureau. He is employed to help you. Address your inquiry to the East Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C., and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

Q. What was the first long photoplay? B. B. N.

A. The first long moving picture film was the Great Train Robbery, 800 feet long. Two other early long feature pictures were Cabiria and the Birth of a Nation.

Q. Do the policemen of London carry pistols? T. A. C.

A. The police of London do not carry pistols under ordinary circumstances. The police regulations, 20th of August, 1920, amended 1922 and 1923, mention among the equipment of the metropolitan police handcuffs, a truncheon, whistle and chain. During the recent strike in London, it was suggested that the policemen be armed, but the policy was not adopted.

Q. Do any animals hibernate in the summer time? C. T. A.

A. Such a torpor or stupor in the summer time is called estivation. Some animals do approach this state in summer time, when their food is still plentiful. In dry countries, when moisture and herbage become scarce, many animals estivate.

Q. What instrument is used to furnish music for the Highland Fling in Scotland? M. G.

A. Bagpipes usually play stathspeys for this dance.

Q. What is a herbicide? H. F.

A. This is a general name applied to any substance used to destroy weeds.

Q. What kind of bugs are the largest? L. B. T.

A. Fish killers are the largest of existing bugs, sometimes reaching a length of four inches. They breed and develop in water, but live at least part of the time on land. They swarm about electric lights in such numbers that they are often known as electric light bugs.

Chester Booked Tonight.

Chester team is booked to meet Knowles, Taylor & Knowles in an Industrial league contest tonight at Columbian park, East Liverpool. Manager Riley will probably pitch Wilde.

Council To Meet.

Council will meet in regular session next Monday evening in the municipal building. Number of matters will be considered at this session.

Many Attend Outing.

More than 600 persons attended the outing yesterday at Rock Springs park under the auspices of a colored organization of Wheeling. Sport program was featured.

Work is Progressing.

Work is steadily progressing on the erection of the new Sacred Heart Catholic church, Fourth street and Indiana avenue. Dedication of the edifice will probably take place next month.

Attending Campmeeting.

Number of Chester residents plan to attend the annual campmeeting which opened today at Hollow Rock. Several families have taken cottages for the period of the meetings.

Haskin's Letter

owners have piled up demands running into thousands of dollars.

The Indians have made this community ownership stand a court test, and some 20 years ago when a group of tourists from Seattle sallied ashore one night and stole a great 60 foot totem pole which was taken home and erected in Pioneer Square in their home city, the Indians raised a loud protest and finally collected a big bill of damages, which was paid through the Chamber of Commerce of Seattle. This episode dampened the enthusiasm of private collectors.

It seems that a few generations ago the inheritance laws of these tribes worked through the female line, from a chief to his sister's eldest son. It is believed this scheme was originally devised to remove the temptation for sons to murder their fathers, or for some other purpose of avoiding intra-tribal strife. Whatever the purpose, about the time the first white settlements this law began to break down in favor of a complete distribution of property among all direct and collateral heirs, and the chieftains having already in mind the potlatch system of holding great feasts and giving away their wealth during their lifetime, have ceased to leave any great amount of goods to anybody. Thus the totem poles have become practically community property.

H. W. Kieger, ethnologist from the Smithsonian and the National Museum, visited southeastern Alaska this year and toured much of the old totem region. He found old Kassan quite hopeless for any purposes of preservation. On the west coast of Prince of Wales Island is the village of Kowkan, with 50 good totems intact, but it is far from the course of white man's travel and is inhabited and its totems not for sale.

Captain Cook Represented.

Tongas village has some of the unique totems. Three of these have a carved emblem declared by natives to represent Captain Cook, the first white man seen by their ancestors. One pole has a very fair likeness of Abraham Lincoln carved among its bears and eagles and ravens. The natives think probably that the chief who made it had seen a white man, an event worthy of preservation in native history, and had acquired a picture of Lincoln which he copied on his totem. It is also possible that the carver sought to record the purchase of Alaska by the United States, since one earlier totem has been found with what was probably a portrait of the Czar of Russia.

Totem carving stopped soon after the earlier white settlements, and most of the poles date before that time. The events they record are the events in the life of their makers. The tribal emblem of the carver appears at the top, usually an eagle or a bear, then the personal emblem of the owner. His wife's emblem is at the bottom. Members of the family may be commemorated, or events. One chief who gave a great potlatch to a neighboring tribe was disappointed because the neighboring chief was a dissipated wretch who could not afford to respond with a proper feast and gifts. The potlatch donor commemorated this on his totem pole with his symbol, a bear biting the symbol of his neighbor, a whale.

So much history had to be crowded on to one pole that many conventional designs were used for abbreviation. The Indians considered themselves as more or less literally identified with their symbol, a bear, a whale, an eagle, or what not. Thus a bear might be carved on a pole merely as a man's face with the tongue hanging out, or a shark as a face with three slashes on the cheek, symbolizing gill slits.

In a few places, notable in Sitka, which has 16 poles, totem poles have been treated with creosote and paint to preserve them. Otherwise they are probably doomed to early destruction by the elements. The scientists have recorded all that the totems can tell of history and ethnology, and these emblems have helped trace the connection of the coast tribes back to the interior rivers and northward to the Yukon valley, and investigations now under way may lead to evidence that they sprang from the same source as the Eskimo, and that this source goes back into Asia.

The totem poles have told their story, and had they been carved in stone might have rivalled the earlier records of many other races in permanent value and interest. Wood, however, was the natural medium of these coastal tribes, and where desert tribes left records almost for eternity, the coastal peoples carved for but a few generations to read. In a land where it rains almost two days out of three, this writing of primitive history was not destined to last long.

Sonny Deshler Leads League Hurlers In First Half Season

Hits Peak Form in Pitching Auto Outfit to Place Among Leaders on Opening Lap; Mike Cebula, Chester, Sets Pace in Strikeouts.

"SONNY" Deshler led City Industrial league pitchers during the first half of the season with an average of .833, according to figures announced by T. T. Jones, official statistician of the loop.

The southpaw hurler of the Turk-Nash club shot them over in great style for the auto outfit during the entire initial half and results of games thus far in the final period indicate he has gotten away to a good start on the concluding lap.

Digman, of Laughlin, who severed connections with the city loop after the play-off contest with Chester, was close on Deshler's heels for slab honors. He figured in more games than "Sonny" did and wound up with an average of .800.

Wilde, Chester high school athletic coach and one of Pilot Riley's big finds of the present season, although pitching in but six games, ranked third with a .750 mark.

Mike Cebula, of Chester, statistics show, was the hardest worked slabber in the loop. Mike shoved the horsehide in 61 and 2-3 innings of 13 games. He also pitched the game of June 15 with K. T. K., and won it, but lost the victory when the contest was officially thrown out and ordered replayed.

Had it been permitted to count Cebula would have finished the half with a record of .700 instead of the .667 which he has.

Mike, however, contributed to the record making feats of the half by turning in the leading strike-out mark. He fanned 63 batters and allowed but 41 hits.

CHANNEL BEATS SWIMMING COP

CAPE GRIS NEZ, July 29.—Olav Farstad, the swimming cop, of Oslo, lost in his attempt to swim the English channel, only after he had been battered by high seas for hours.

Farstad gave up his attempt at 3 o'clock this morning, after having been in the water slightly more than 16 hours.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

The fast-traveling Yankees made it seven straight by nosing out the Browns again, 3 to 2. Shocker outpitched Wingard and the Browns lost all save honor when Bennett fell asleep and was nipped off second base.

Another winning spurt was stretched to five straight when the Braves beat the Cubs in the thirteenth inning, 3 to 2, on a single by Burrus. Bancroft got four hits.

Connie Mack almost collapsed of heart failure as the Indians scalped the A's twice, 5 to 2 and 2 to 0. Uhle and Levsen were the winning pitchers.

Red Faber won a 5 to 2 decision from Reuther, of the Senators, and the White Sox regained fifth place.

The Tigers got only four hits off Ruffing and lost to the Red Sox again, 5 to 4. A balk by Rip Collins let in the winning run.

With the moth holes in their bats still unrepaired, the Giants were whitewashed by the Pirates, 6 to 0. Lee Meadows allowed five hits and six fouls.

Adolf Luque tamed the Robins so thoroughly that the Red outfielders did not have to make a single putout. McWeeny pitched grade A ball but lost, 4 to 3.

GREYS-HEIMIES PLAY TO 5-5 TIE

The Laughlin Greys and the Heimie All Stars played to a 5-5 deadlock last evening at Newell.

Riser, Laughlin hurler, permitted eight hits and fanned seven. English was touched for 11 bingles and breezed five batters.

Wyant, Heimies' center fielder, contributed the sensations in the outgarden. F. Williams, of the Greys, added a few thrills when he stole home in the seventh with the run that tied the count.

The two clubs will play again on Monday night.

BULGERS BOW TO RESERVES

Chester Club Cops 2-0 Decision at Smith Field.

The Chester Reserves won their fifth straight game last night, beating Bulger Drugs, 2 to 0, at Smith Field, Chester.

The contest developed into a pitchers' battle between Zorzie, of Chester, and "Doc" Kinsey of the Drugs. Each had 10 strikeouts to his credit. The West Virginians, however, punched out three hits while Zorzie gave the Drugs one.

Wobbly support accorded Kinsey put the game on ice for the Reserves, no fewer than six errors being made by the pill rollers' infield.

Chester scored one in the first when Moore reached first on Wurzel's error and went to third on Hendrick's slow grounder to Ferguson and scored when Vorndran dropped Maley's Texas leaguer back of first. Ewing was hit and stole second. He went to third on Langley's roller to Vorndran and scored when Wurzel dropped Hannen's fly.

The Drugs threatened in the third when White got the Ohioans' first and only hit of the game. He was nipped on an attempted steal, however.

The Reserves and Drugs will play later in the season on the Drugs' back yard.

The Reserves will tangle with the Newell Grays at Chester Friday in the second game of a three-tilt series. The Reserves won at Newell last Monday and if Newell should win Friday the play-off will be staged at West End. The Reserves would like to arrange series with the Potters Supply and the K. of C. teams. Morry at 2366-J, is booking manager.

YANKEES PULLING FOR ST. LOUIS TO WIN

'Tell The World,' Says Dempsey, 'I'm Going to Fight-Someone, Somewhere, In September'

"Somebody," Declares Champ, "is Going to Get the Benefit of All My Hard Work."

CAMP VIGIL, near Colorado Springs, Col., July 29.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, gave International News Service the following statement today:

I want the world to know today that I am going to fight somebody, somewhere, sometime in September.

I have been doing all I possibly could in training, knowing I am certain to box again in a few weeks and I am in superb shape.

For the past eight months I have been in almost constant training and someone is going to get the benefit of all my hard work and worry.

I don't know just where I will defend my title, but I hope it is in New York. I wouldn't care about fighting in Chicago, as the law provides for only 10 rounds and I prefer the longer route, affording a chance for a more decisive affair.

I want to go the route with somebody and I am just as sure I can win over a long distance as a shorter one.

This mountain camp is a splendid one and I have done a lot of work here. Three weeks to go, with boxing mostly, will top me off in fine style.

My wind is in fine shape from the drill over the mountain roads and my legs are better than they were five years ago. Yes, and my nose is good and strong, too.

But I want the world to know this—I want to fight. It has been said I don't, but I tell you I do.

I will fight and I can. It's my business and I make my living at it.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON, Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

To launch the back swing by initiating the action with body power is a simple enough matter, but one which might easily be confusing to some players, especially when they first tried it. To do so, all that is required is that in moving the clubhead back from the ball you begin the entire action by starting through the hips and moving the body over until you feel you are directly on top of your right leg. Meantime the club has rather dragged along the ground, about even with the hands. This initial movement of the body will call the shoulders immediately into action and, following them, will be the arms. This brings about a thoroughly co-ordinated movement of the club into the back swing. The body, having started things, will remain anchored on the right leg, which stiffens to hold it.

J. M.-A. A. WELLS REACH FINALS

Will Fight it Out for Hall Memorial Trophy.

NOTHING short of a miracle or catastrophe can keep the Hall Memorial trophy from going where a lot of other good trophies have gone—into the hands of Joe M. Wells, former state champ and the best bet in the annual tourney which comes to a close Saturday at the Country club.

Joe will fight it out for the trophy with A. A. Wells, a brother, and a worthy opponent, in the final match in the first division.

Joe Wells defeated Edwin Wells, Jr., 2 up in the semi-finals and Arthur won from R. T. Hall, 3 and 2.

The opponent for T. E. Lewis, finalist in the second flight, has not been selected. Lewis reached the last rung by conquering W. J. Weaver, 2 up, and will face either Ross or C. H. Walker, who have not yet played their semi-final match, for the honors in the division.

In the first flight consolations C. C. Ashbaugh won from C. A. Bough by default and E. H. Hall won from G. R. Thomas, 3 and 2.

In the consolation second flight C. C. Pusey finished ahead of Larry Smith, 3 and 2, and Walter Durkee triumphed over T. S. Brush in a battle that went one extra hole for a decision.

De MOLAY-ACME GAME TOMORROW

The DeMolay baseball club will clash with the Acmes in a contest tomorrow evening at Columbian park.

The game is sceduled to start at 5:45 o'clock.

But What'll Cards Do With World's Series?

By Ford C. Frick.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 29.—With less than two months to go to the end of the season and their nine and a half game lead showing every sign of perfect health and nourishment, your Yankees finally have allowed themselves the pleasure of a bit of world series conversation.

Which may be a bit premature—but then, as the poets have remarked on previous occasions:

"'Tis better if you love and lose,
"Than if you never love at all."

The thing which brought up the world series talk with the Hugmen was not base hits or opposing strategy or even the Yankee success thus far. It was the St. Louis ball park. A park, incidentally which would drive a deaf mute to eloquent oratory under the circumstances. For the Yankees, be it know, are pulling for the Cardinals to win—or would pull for them if they had some place other than the present concrete hatbox in which to play their games.

Playing a world series in St. Louis under existing conditions would resemble nothing else in the world so much as a seven handed poker game with a stripped deck and four jokers. Anything could happen and probably would.

Cards Think They'll Win.

The Cardinals believe they will win; all St. Louis is determined they shall win, the majority of fans around the country would like to see them win. But supposing they should win. Can you imagine the consternation when the lord high commissioner of baseball's destiny swings into town, calls upon the mayor, and declares:

"Sir, here's your world series. Now what are you going to do about it."

Probably you've already heard the story of the Irishman who bet ten dollars that he could hold a bull by the horn for five minutes. He did it too, and won the money. But it cost him twenty dollars a moment later to hire three men to help him let go.

However, this is a story of the Yankees and their worries, not a recital of the worries attendant upon Sam Breadon when, and if, the Cardinals win the pennant.

While a considerable western trip still lies ahead of them, the Hugmen are not particularly worried. The first game of the series here proved that the boys have regained the batting eyes which carried them to such heights earlier in the season. And once they start hitting they are a tough outfit to head. Hitting is their sole and only strategy but it works—so long as they hit.

The Phils squelched the Cardinals, 6 to 3, but lost the nightcap, 5 to 4, and flopped back into the cellar.

Hospitals are filled with drivers who didn't care

Every day you read of motor accidents due to faulty, inadequate brakes.

Why? Because the drivers were careless about the brakes—the most important parts of the car. Human life, dollars, time, trouble all depend on those brakes of yours.

Are they in good condition? Will they stop your car quickly, instantly? If not you'd better drive around and let us look them over. They may need a simple adjustment or relining. We'll put on Silver Edge Raybestos and apply it by the Raybestos Method. Then you can feel safe and sure and confident. Better do it today. Tomorrow may be too late!

Beatrice Lillie
Lady Peel

ON the stage Beatrice Lillie is the delightfully talented star of Charlot's Revue, which for two years has so successfully invaded America. In private life she is Lady Peel, wife of Sir Robert Peel, descendant of the great English statesman of the same name in the first half of the nineteenth century.

This is what Lady Peel says about one of her experiences in America:

"When I came to this country I did not know what the popular drink was. Soon after my arrival I was offered a glass of Clicquot Club Pale Dry Ginger Ale. I liked it immediately. It has such a delicate taste and such a jolly sparkle. Between the acts and after the theatre I find it particularly welcome. Clicquot Club is indeed one more thing I like about America."

Two flavors to choose from

YOU can now get Clicquot Club Ginger Ale in two flavors. The new Pale Dry Clicquot is very delicate and subtle in taste. The Golden Clicquot is more gingery, a particularly invigorating drink—for a generation the most popular of all bottled beverages, the nation over. Clicquot Club Ginger Ale, noted for its high quality, also gives more generous quantity and at a very reasonable price. The Clicquot Club Company, Millis, Massachusetts.

PRESBYTERIANS TO HOLD MEET

Annual Synod Will be Held in Moundsville October 19-21.

Hancock county clergymen and ministers plan to attend the annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of West Virginia and the Synodical society to be held in the First Presbyterian church of Moundsville, October 19-21.

Prominent of the eminent clergy and laymen who will attend is Dr. W. L. Thompson, former president of Ohio State University, Columbus, and moderator of the General Assembly. Dr. Thompson will address the joint meeting of the two bodies on Wednesday, October 20.

Rev. James P. Leyenberger, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, Wheeling as stated, clerk of the West Virginia Synod, is the highest officer in the organization and will address one of the meetings, as will also Dr. Samuel Martin Gibson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who is moderator of the synod.

Miss Anne T. Reid, representing the Foreign Missions, will address the state meeting on that subject. Miss Reid has just returned from the Orient.

The tentative program provides for joint conference of the Synod and the women's organizations, the Synodical society, in the morning with separate sessions of the two organizations in the afternoons. A young people's banquet will likely be featured one of the evenings.

PRIMARY FIGHT NEARING CLOSE

Chief interest in the county primary contest next Tuesday centers in the fight for county clerk and county commissioner on the Republican tickets where both incumbents have opposition.

R. R. Hobbs, of Chester, present clerk, is being opposed for the nomination by James A. Gracie, of Pughtown, while N. W. Ballantyne, seeking renomination for county commissioner, is opposed by M. N. Price. Both are from New Cumberland.

Corporate Communion.

Corporate communion of St. Matthew's parish will be held in the church at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. All communicants are urged to attend.

NOTICE.

The annual meeting of lot owners of Locust Hill cemetery will be held in the First National Bank Bldg., Saturday, July 31st, at 2 p. m. Election of officers will be held.

EXCURSION RATES TO STATE FAIR

Excursion rates on all railroads leading to Wheeling have been granted for the West Virginia state fair, September 4-11, according to information received from C. A. Fox, chairman of the Central Passenger association, Chicago, and C. M. Burt, chairman of the Trunk Line association, New York. The rate will be one and one-half fare for the round trip (minimum fare 25 cents), round trip tickets to be sold from all points outlined, on September 4 to 11, inclusive, with return limit Monday, September 13. The following points are included in the special rate:

Baltimore and Ohio railroad—Buckhannon and all line stations to Tygart Junction and Grafton, Weston and intermediate stations to New Martinsville, via Clarksburg, Fairmont, Morgantown, Pennsboro, Ravenswood, Pittsburgh, St. Clairsville, New Philadelphia, Newark and intermediate stations.

Pennsylvania—From points within a radius of 75 miles of Wheeling and Bridgeport. This including also points from the Ohio River and Western division.

Deaths of Weirton Men Investigated by G. A. Arner.

Coroner George A. Arner, of Chester, conducted inquests yesterday into the deaths of two Weirton men, George Thomas, 37, who was killed Tuesday by a fall of tin while working in the plant of the Weirton Steel company, and Stanley Coskey, 27, who died suddenly Monday night while visiting with friends in New Cumberland.

The former met his death while operating a crane which struck a heavy mass of tin, causing it to topple, burying him under the debris. Verdict of "accidental death" was returned.

Coskey, who recently recovered from an attack of pneumonia, was stricken while dancing. The coroner returned a verdict that death was caused by heart disease.

Thomas leaves a wife and large family in Greece.

Union Services Arranged.

Union services of the congregations of the First Presbyterian, United Presbyterian and First Methodist Episcopal churches will be held Sunday evening in the latter church. Special music will be featured.

Farewell Sermon.

Rev. C. L. McCoy, who recently accepted a call to the Sligo Presbyterian church, Clarion county, will preach his final sermon at 2:30 Sunday afternoon in the Mill Creek Presbyterian church. He will leave for his new charge next week.

Lot Holders to Meet.

Lot holders of Locust Hill cemetery will hold their annual meeting in the First National bank building Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Officers will be elected at this session.

Answers to Questions

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

What do you need to know? Is there some point about your business or personal life that puzzles you? Is there something you want to know without delay? Submit your question to Frederic J. Haskin, director of our Washington Information Bureau. He is employed to help you. Address your inquiry to the East Liverpool Review-Tribune Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C., and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

Q. What was the first long photoplay? B. B. N.

A. The first long moving picture film was the Great Train Robbery, 800 feet long. Two other early long feature pictures were Cabiria and the Birth of a Nation.

Q. Do the policemen of London carry pistols? T. A. C.

A. The police of London do not carry pistols under ordinary circumstances. The police regulations, 20th of August, 1920, amended 1922 and 1923, mention among the equipment of the metropolitan police handcuffs, a truncheon, whistle and chain. During the recent strike in London, it was suggested that the policemen be armed, but the policy was not adopted.

Q. Do any animals hibernate in the summer time? C. T. A.

A. Such a torpor or stupor in the summer time is called estivation. Some animals do approach this state in summer time, when their food is still plentiful. In dry countries, when moisture and herbage become scarce, many animals estivate.

Q. What instrument is used to furnish music for the Highland Fling in Scotland? M. G.

A. Bagpipes usually play stathspeys for this dance.

Q. What is a herbicide? H. F.

A. This is a general name applied to any substance used to destroy weeds.

Q. What kind of bugs are the largest? L. B. T.

A. Fish killers are the largest of existing bugs, sometimes reaching a length of four inches. They breed and develop in water, but live at least part of the time on land. They swarm about electric lights in such numbers that they are often known as electric light bugs.

Council will meet in regular session next Monday evening in the municipal building. Number of matters will be considered at this session.

Many Attend Outing.

More than 600 persons attended the outing yesterday at Rock Springs park under the auspices of a colored organization of Wheeling. Sport program was featured.

Work is Progressing.

Work is steadily progressing on the erection of the new Sacred Heart Catholic church, Fourth street and Indiana avenue. Dedication of the edifice will probably take place next month.

Attending Campmeeting.

Number of Chester residents plan to attend the annual campmeeting which opened today at Hollow Rock. Several families have taken cottages for the period of the meetings.

Haskin's Letter

owners have piled up demands running into thousands of dollars.

The Indians have made this community ownership stand a court test, and some 20 years ago when a group of tourists from Seattle sallied ashore one night and stole a great 60-foot totem pole which was taken home and erected in Pioneer Square in their home city, the Indians raised a loud protest and finally collected a big bill of damages, which was paid through the Chamber of Commerce of Seattle. This episode dampened the enthusiasm of private collectors.

It seems that a few generations ago the inheritance laws of these tribes worked through the female line, from a chief to his sister's eldest son. It is believed this scheme was originally devised to remove the temptation for sons to murder their fathers, or for some other purpose of avoiding intra-tribal strife. Whatever the purpose, about the time the first white settlements this law began to break down in favor of a complete distribution of property among all direct and collateral heirs, and the chieftains having already in mind the potlatch system of holding great feasts and giving away their wealth during their lifetime, have ceased to leave any great amount of goods to anybody. Thus the totem poles have become practically community property.

H. W. Kieger, ethnologist from the Smithsonian and the National Museum, visited southeastern Alaska this year and toured much of the old totem region. He found old Kassan quite hopeless for any purposes of preservation. On the west coast of Prince of Wales Island is the village of Kowkan, with 50 good totems intact, but it is far from the course of white man's travel and is inhabited and its totems not for sale.

Captain Cook Represented.

Tongas village has some of the unique totems. Three of these have a carved emblem declared by natives to represent Captain Cook, the first white man seen by their ancestors. One pole has a very fair likeness of Abraham Lincoln carved among its bears and eagles and ravens. The natives think probably that the chief who made it had seen a white man, an event worthy of preservation in native history, and had acquired a picture of Lincoln which he copied on his totem. It is also possible that the carver sought to record the purchase of Alaska by the United States, since one earlier totem has been found with what was probably a portrait of the Czar of Russia.

Totem carving stopped soon after the earlier white settlements, and most of the poles date before that time. The events they record are the events in the life of their makers. The tribal emblem of the carver appears at the top, usually an eagle or a bear, then the personal emblem of the owner. His wife's emblem is at the bottom. Members of the family may be commemorated, or events. One chief who gave a great potlatch to a neighboring tribe was disappointed because the neighboring chief was a dissipated wretch who could not afford to respond with a proper feast and gifts. The potlatch donor commemorated this on his totem pole with his symbol, a bear biting the symbol of his neighbor, a whale.

So much history had to be crowded on to one pole that many conventional designs were used for abbreviation. The Indians considered themselves as more or less literally identified with their symbol, a bear, a whale, an eagle, or what not. Thus a bear might be carved on a pole merely as a man's face with the tongue hanging out, or a shark as a face with three slashes on the cheek, symbolizing gill slits.

In a few places, notable in Sitka, which has 16 poles, totem poles have been treated with creosote and paint to preserve them. Otherwise they are probably doomed to early destruction by the elements. The scientists have recorded all that the totems can tell of history and ethnology, and these emblems have helped trace the connection of the coast tribes back to the interior rivers and northward to the Yukon valley, and investigations now under way may lead to evidence that they sprang from the same source as the Eskimo, and that this source goes back into Asia.

The totem poles have told their story, and had they been carved in stone might have rivalled the earlier records of many other races in permanent value and interest. Wood, however, was the natural medium of these coastal tribes, and where desert tribes left records almost for eternity, the coastal peoples carved for but a few generations to read. In a land where it rains almost two days out of three, this writing of primitive history was not destined to last long.
